Giant Main Street Elm Found To Be One Hundred and Sixty-One Years Old

The giant elm tree, located in front of the Bemis block, Main street, was found to be at least one hundred and sixty-one years old when the big butt was felled last Thursday afternoon. Tree Warden Howard E. Hurley, who counted the rings to ascertain the age of the tree, said that the trunk of the tree was thirteen feet and seven inches in circumference. The work of taking down the elm was started several weeks ago and the butt, about eighteen feet high, was left standing until after the Christmas shopping.

The work of taking the butt down was started early Thursday morning by the New England Tree Expert Co., Inc., of Boston. F. R. Ralson was in charge. A large motor driven saw was used to cut through the big butt. Lined from the Spencer Gas Co. and the New England Telephone Co. were on duty throughout the process because the big trunk was to be dropped into Main street about three feet from a pole which carried several high tension wires and a large telephone cable. In the event that the butt struck the pole both of the two shoe factories and the entire east end of the town would be without electricity and telephone service.

When the big butt was ready to be dropped into the street several hundred people gathered near the spot. Officer Evangelist Jette was on traffic duty and was kept busy keeping the crowds at a safe distance. The trunk was sawed within two inches of one side. A heavy rope was tied to the top of the butt and attached to a large truck belonging to the tree company, which pulled the big trunk to the street. It fell perfectly missing the light pole by about two feet and neatly passing under the high tension wires. A police department "no parking" sign was hit by the big butt and driven three feet into the ground. This sign was left there by Superintendent of Streets Armand Jalbert to prevent the trunk from rolling after it hit the ground and damaging store front windows. A large hole was made in the sidewalk but the town is to put in a new walk after the removal of the tree. The trunk was cut in three pieces and hauled away by the street department.

The sentinel elm, which began its life, according to its rings, way back in 1775 or 1776, was one of the town's three landmarks. The elm was on the south side of Main street, close to the Bemis block. The other two giants are on the north side of the road, near the Kleven Shoe Co. yard. These two trees are believed to be about the same age as the Bemis tree, one of them perhaps a little older.

The bridge is a graduate of David Prouty high school and of the University of Maine. He was prominent in athletics at both places. He is now a teacher-coach at the high school in Mexico, Maine. The bride was Miss Alice Cotter of Orono, Maine.

This lineup will probably start the game: Wilson f, Small f, Doolittle c, Aucoin g, Bosse g, Mullett g. The athletic directors and team managers all over the circuit report increased enthusiasm for basketball this year.

The men are Henry Viau, twenty-one, of Spencer, Edward Gregory, thirty, of Grosvenor street, Worcester, and Ernest Oakley, twenty-seven, of 30 Dawson street, Worcester. Viau was picked up by Officer Cole early one morning last week when he was found hanging around Main street. He appeared in the District Court December 31 and was held for the grand jury by Judge Arthur P. Butterworth after he found probable cause for complaints against him for breaking and entering in the night time. He was unable to post the $750 sureties demanded by the court and was committed to the Worcester County jail to await trial.

Gregory and Oakley were arrested December 31 in Worcester by Chief of Police Meloche and Patrolman Cole. They were arraigned before Judge Butterworth in court last Saturday morning on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. Gregory was held for the Worcester County grand jury when the court found probable cause against him. He was committed when unable to produce $750 sureties. Oakley's case was continued until January ninth that he might procure counsel.

The breaks of the past week include the Spencer Lumber Co., Victory Cafe, Spencer Grain Co., and the home of Mrs. Bridget Heffernan, Grant street. The lumber company was broken into three times. Local police charge the trio with the grain company and Victory Cafe break, but have been unable to link the defendants with the Spencer Lumber and the Heffernan house break.

Archibald MacMullen Is Eighty-seven

On Monday Archibald MacMullen celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday at his home on Maple street. He did nothing out of the ordinary, took his usual walk down to town, and pondered over the days when he was a young lumberjack in Canadian and Maine woods. It was in those days that he had his birth date tattooed on his right arm. He was born in New Brunswick on January 4, 1849 and has been doing a day's work since he was twelve years old. It was at that age that he started working in the great woods and for the great part of thirty-five years he worked in driving logs on the Mattawamkeag river in Maine. He was born a short distance from the American line and frequently crossed for visits and for work. He has been a resident of this town for eight years and for each year he has conducted a large garden at the rear of his home, from which he markets every year in this town. Mr. and Mrs. MacMullen have celebrated sixty-four wedding anniversaries. Mr. MacMullen's political record has been confined to fourteen years of service on the county council of New Brunswick. The elderly couple have made three trips to California and once went by boat and passed through the Panama canal. They have several children now living: William conducts a fruit and almond ranch in California, Angus of Bangor, Mrs. William Gray and Mrs. Sarah Briggs of this town, and Miss Ida who makes her home with her parents. Two daughters, Alice and Sarah, served during the World War as Red Cross nurses and served overseas in aiding the wounded at the battle front during the war period. His recipe for old age has always been two words, "hard work." He declared that a liberal amount of work during one's younger years tends to build a good constitution which remains during old age. Mr. MacMullen completed the work of saving three cords of wood at his home several days ago and it was wood that he had cut himself several weeks ago at a woodlot on the West Brookfield road.

Mrs. Nellie Plukas Sued By Town

Townpeople have taken a keen interest in the suit which was filed in Worcester court by which the town seeks to recover a sum of money which allegedly has been paid out to a local welfare recipient, and seeks reimbursement on the grounds that a relative of the recipient is now able to return the amount expended on the particular case.

The suit was filed by Ralph W. Igoe, town counsel, and it was entered against Mrs. Nellie Plukas and is for the sum of $317.46, an amount the welfare board declared had been paid out in a period of almost two years to the late Mrs. Monica Mikulski, Birch street. Mrs. Nellie Plukas, a daughter of Mrs. Mikulski and the wife of Anthony Plukas, is the defendant on the ground that receipt by her of an insurance policy after Mrs. Mikulski's death has enabled her to return the money. The basis of the town's action is the affirmation by members of the welfare board, Mrs. Minnie H. Crooks, George E. Banks and Henry McCarthy, that the funds should be paid back to the town, now that Mrs. Plukas is financially able. The case, which has aroused interest in the county too, is the first of its kind in the county and it will provide the opportunity for a test case to determine whether a relative of a welfare aid recipient can be held liable for financial aid rendered by a town welfare department.

Much of the local interest centers on the outcome of the suit for many believe that should a verdict be returned in favor of the town, scores of other residents here may be forced to return funds which have been received by relatives. Such a case is also of interest because of the heavy cost to the local welfare department during the past few years and chiefly in 1936, when more than $200,000 had been appropriated for local welfare, exclusive of federal funds which were spent here. Most of the money paid in favor of Mrs. Mikulski was for hospital expenses incurred at a Worcester institution and for medical care when she had returned to her home here.

The case in question is a peculiar one, inasmuch as it was not one of the run-of-the-mill cases of Mrs. Mikulski, a resident of this town for the past twenty-five years, fell at her home on Jan. 3, 1935, two years ago last Sunday, and suffered a broken bone in her left leg. A short time after the fall she was forced to go to bed and, in the greater part of two years was unable to move and during that time had been cared for by her daughter, the defendant, Mrs. Plukas. Last May the left leg was amputated in an effort to save her but her condition sadly became worse and she died on Dec. 3, 1936 and at that time, payments, which had been started in January 1935, were discontinued. Mrs. Plukas had been employed before the accident but later gave up her work in order to care for her mother. According to information available the town provided $12 for several weeks for hospital care while the fee for the hospital was $22 weekly. Mrs. Plukas and a late son of Mrs. Mikulski provided the difference.

Effort to locate Mrs. Plukas at her home here met with little success and residents in the neighborhood declared that Mr. and Mrs. Plukas had left town several weeks ago for some unknown destination. They stated that the couple left at Christmas and beyond a postcard from Pennsylvania no word has been received here. Mr. Plukas formerly resided in that state. It is believed that Mrs. Plukas is unaware that she is a defendant in a suit and efforts are being made through friends to locate her.

Mrs. Plukas returned here early in the week and had no knowledge of the suit until her arrival here. She was served with a summons on Tuesday to appear in Worcester court on February 1, the date of the opening of the trial. The summons was served by Deputy Sheriff Edward B. Conroy. Mrs. Plukas declared that she had received insurance money as a result of the death of her mother and tested that after the funeral expenses and other financial obligations were cleared up little remained. She declared that when local welfare board members visited her home last month in connection with return of the money to the town, that slightly over $400 was listed as due and that she could not understand how the figure had risen to $317.46. A large amount of the sum in question was expended for sedatives for Mrs. Mikulski, who had been suffering intensively pain for a year before her death. Mrs. Plukas had not retained counsel by Tuesday, but declared she would soon and that she would be prepared to appear with counsel on the date of the trial opening.

Election Interest Present
With the annual town election but a few weeks away considerable interest has already been noted with the usual prediction candidates receiving considerable mention for the various offices.

Besides the offices of selectmen, town clerk, collector of taxes and many other minor offices, vacancies will also exist on the board of assessors, board of public welfare, school committee, board of library trustees (three). Three candidates besides the present board, are being mentioned for the selectmen's race but each of the three candidates declared this week that they would make no definite statements yet. The board of public welfare has come in for some attention too, with one of the younger men of local politics being urged by friends to seek office. In last year's voting 917 ballots were cast, in one of the heaviest turnouts in years.

Football Picture One of Star Theatre's Attractions

"Rose Bowl," starring Tom Brown and Eleanor Whitney, is the feature attraction at the New Star theatre next Sunday and Monday. Whether you are of college or collegiate by nature makes no difference, you'll enjoy this picture. The story of course winds up with football in the Rose Bowl, and Eleanor Whitney, instead of their usual five, his alma mater. But football is not the only thing in the picture. Benny Baker introduces a glass-breaking gag that is the funniest thing he has done in celluloid. Then there Eleanor Whitney, who shows definite proof of dramatic ability and looks pretty enough to inspire any team on to victory. Larry Crabbe does a nice job as the handsome football hero for whom Eleanor has been pining only to learn that Larry isn't at all interested, while it's Tom Brown in whom beats the heart of gold. Nydia Westman, as Eleanor's sister in a college town candy shop, gives a good account of herself as does William Fawcett in the role of football coach. Good gags, good football and good-looking girls make this a real entertainment for the family.

A double feature program is now playing at the theatre for many nights with an all-star cast is one, while the companion feature is "I Give My Life," starring Sir Guy Standing and Frances Drake. Here is a bill of entertainment that comes highly recommended.

Next Wednesday and Thursday the feature will be Jimmy Dunn in "Come Closer Folks." Also every "Thursday night is 'Bank Nite' and they are becoming more and more popular. This is the night to visit the Star Theatre, enjoy a good show and perhaps go home with extra money in your pocket.

The latest news reels and short subjects are always an important part of the Star Theatre's programs.

High School Defeats Brookfield 26-17

In a thrilling game that was marked by exceptionally hard playing on both sides the local high school team had little trouble in watching the long lead which they had gained during the first half and to which they added five points in the final half assure them of victory over the arch-rivals, the bitter enemies and the athletic opposition of many years, Brookfield. The final score was 26 to 17, but in the final period Brookfield was closing the gap and the return of the local first-string lineup was needed to keep the visitors from getting too close. Brookfield had come here with a highly-rated team, a team that had scored wins over Chatham and Auburn, but in the first half they were unable to furnish first class opposition, due mainly to their failure to complete passes, and at the end they were trailing 21 to 5.

Coach McCarthy had drilled the local team in a man-to-man defense against Brookfield, instead of their usual five man spread, and in Tuesday night's battle it worked well with the Brookfield passing play, which at times showed good form, failing to materialize and ending usually with a long shot or a wild heave at the basket. The local opening lineup was composed of Salem, Tucker, Rooney, Griffith jumping center, and Klimavich. The team started off with the first score, continued to do so while breaking up Brookfield plays, and at the quarter they led 11 to 2. They continued their work in the second and finished up with Brookfield play behind, 21 to 5. During the first half Curry substituted for Griffith and this was the only local replacement.

In the second half a lineup composed of Griffith, Sandman, Smith, Slora and Curry started. They were, except Griffith, members of the second team and they played a fine game against Brookfield, but the visitors commenced to pare down the lead, while the local made no score. Brookfield had run up six points and before long four first team replacements came in for the locals and from that time on they scored but four points while Brookfield, playing an inspired game in the face of defeat, managed to net six. Numerous fouls were called on both sides.

It was a sweet night for the girls too, as the Brookfield girls in a game which marked the first defeat for the visiting girls, who had run up a string of 21 wins. The score was 25 to 16 but it was exceptionally close until the final minutes of the last period.

The local league basketball team will open Tuesday night in the new hall, with Holden coming from the opening game of the season, which promises to provide some exciting basketball. Holden has one of the best teams in the usual close game between the two teams in the past is expected opening night.

The year, 1937, is the golden anniversary of the dedication of Our Lady of the Rosary church and a celebration will be held in the fall, according to announcement made Sunday by the pastor, Rev. James S. Barry. It is also planned to do some enlarging and improving of the sanctuary before the observance takes place. The pastor at the same time announced that a mission will be held in the Spring.

Rev. Father Barry announced that the year had been a fair one financially in the parish. He also stated that in the future all arrangements for funeral should be made personally at the rectory and not by telephone. He also announced that attendance of priests at the cemetery for communal service will be only at the request of the family.

Some of the principal improvements made at the church property during the past year included: new cement floor in church basement, drainage system to prevent water from running into parish hall, increased parking space, new toilet in the church, new steam piping system, doors weather stripped, roof installed in the boiler room, roof and windows repaired.

The pastor at the Masses last Sunday also thanked their members, Sunday school teachers and girls in charge of the altar for their services during the year. He also announced the parish list as being ready for distribution probably at the end of this week.

Mrs. Emma S. Lynde
The funeral of Mrs. Emma (Henry) Lynde, sixty-seven, widow of Henry A. Lynde, of this town, who had been a resident here practically all of her life, and who died at the home of her nephew, William J. Andrews, Middle-town, Conn., was held last Sunday afternoon at two from the Kingsley Funeral Home. The Rev. Ralph S. Huffer, pastor of the Congregational church, of which she was a member, officiated. A large number of members of the church and the Woman's Guild attended; also members of the Reading club and Harmony Rebekah lodge. Burial was in Pine Grove cemetery in charge of the A. E. Kingsley Co.

Mrs. Lynde left East Main street about two months ago to live with the nephew, because of ill health. Besides the nephew, she leaves a brother, Charles, of North Brookfield, and two sisters, Mrs. John L. Andrews of Hartford, and Mrs. John N. Learned of Stafford Springs, Conn.

The body was brought to Marlboro Wednesday and the funeral was held from the Immaculate Conception church at nine o'clock this Friday morning. Burial was in Holy Rosary cemetery. She was born in Spencer and since going to Marlboro had resided with her sister, Mrs. Arthur Simon.

The driver, brother, Guido Petrelli, 39 Cross street, Southbridge, was not injured. The car was badly damaged. Dr. J. C. Austin attended Miss Hosner.

Police Nab Boy Taking Money From Church Boxes
Chief of police Charles H. Meloche took into custody Tuesday an eleven year old Spencer boy whom he says has been taking money from the poor boxes in both Our Lady of the Rosary and St. Mary's churches. The thefts have been going on since Christmas and this week the police set a trap and caught the boy in the act of opening one of the boxes. Police say that the youngster would go into the churches between five and six o'clock in the evening and pry open the bottom of the box and take its contents. The boy was released in the custody of his parents pending probable court action.

Arthur G. Norcross

The David Prouty basketball team is its first home game tonight at new gym, when they will meet the local high school team in a regular Western Worcester County league game. A large crowd is expected to attend the game both from Spencer and Rutland.

Chicken Dinner Disappears When Law Appears
The aroma of a roast chicken proved to be the one and only course of a full-course chicken dinner which Henry Gainley, twenty-six, a resident of this town, had prepared New Year's day at his home on Elm street. The dinner ended just before it started, when State Trooper Arthur Desmond of the Brookfield barracks entered upon the scene, tasted the chicken, declared it very toothsome, conducted a fowl investigation and arrested Gainley on a charge of stealing the chicken from a coop at the rear of the home of William J. Igoe on School street. When New Year's day dawned five chickens from the flock, owned jointly by Mr. Igoe and Oscar C. Hirshour, were missing. One it is alleged was located in the roasting pan by Trooper Desmond but Mr. Gainley declared he had no knowledge of the whereabouts of the chicken. The roast chicken was declared "the best" by the trooper and Mr. Gainley was ordered to pay over the $2 to the owners of the bird. No mention was made of an allowance for roasting charges.

The Strike Outlook

The strikes in the motor industry certainly reveal an alarming condition. The U. A. W. in the attempt to organize the workers into a so-called vertical union, embracing all people employed in the industry, has made several demands, among them the designation of its organization as the sole medium to carry on whatever "collective bargaining" is to be done; slowing up of the production line; seniority rights to be dictated by the union. Yet the real fight is not with the employers, but with another labor organization, the A. F. of L. and its plan of trades unions. Moreover thousands of employees want to work, some sympathizing with the A. F. of L. and some wanting no truck with either union. The irony of the situation is revealed in the fact that the contest comes not when the workmen are suffering from curtailed revenue, as they were to some extent in the depression years, but at a time when they are able to make in the aggregate the greatest wages ever, both because of the scale of wages and the steady employment. Thus the manufacturers and the buying public are in the middle, so to speak. The pity is that the innocent and those anxious to work are prohibited from doing so by a fight between two factions, each aiming to be boss and coveting the right to control and dictate the labor market in the motor industry; that workers who were perhaps just getting on their feet again after using up their life savings in trying to weather the depression years, must again be set back in the red or onto relief. In the loss of this conflict to see who is going to be boss will cost plenty—in loss of wages, loss of revenue to those whose livelihood depends in whole or in part upon the manufacture or merchandising of automobiles and the various accessories, and to the purchasers of cars in the future who in increased prices for cars must pay for the cost of the strike at least in part. It rather puts President Roosevelt on the spot—because there is no doubt that labor, rightly or not, has got the impression that he will be with them to the finish, influenced largely by their view of the election returns. On the other hand there are those who believe he is sensible enough to see the unfairness of some of the demands and pursue a middle course, if indeed he does anything about it. The word has gone out this week that a squadron of agitators and organizers has been sent into this district to unionize under the Lewis regime the wire, shoe and other industries of Worcester county. If the present day workers were made up of those who went through the dark and dismal days of the Worcester County shoe workers strike of the Knights of Labor in 1887 there would not be much question as to what would be the attitude of the employees of this section. They and the employers too learned a very expensive lesson. One has only to call to mind the fact that the town of Spencer dropped in population from nearly ten thousand people and the largest town in the county but one, to almost half that in the decade that followed that strike. And from that situation it took the decade that followed that strike. Three or four of the largest stores on our principal business streets unattended today are mute evidence of what has been happening. It has been charged that some of the merchants have not been very aggressive in meeting the modern merchandising and advertising methods of the city stores and thus have brought some of the conditions on themselves, but that does not by any means account for the full situation. Roger Babson, the well-known statistician, in a recent issue of the Bankers and Tradesman, while forecasting the coming year, views with some alarm the ominous labor outlook, when he says:

"I predict that 1937 will be our first year of real prosperity since 1929. It will be a year of genuine business expansion, considerable real estate activity, constant labor troubles, shortages of skilled workers, rising prices and living costs, and brisk retail trade. Nearly every line will enjoy good gains in both volume and profits with the heavy industries showing the greatest percentage improvement. Truck this forecast away for a check-up next December and I predict that you will find general business around eight per cent above today's figures and not far from the 1929 peak!"

"It is seldom that there is no 'unless.' Nineteen thirty-six was an exception. Then there was no 'but' to my bullishness. Today, however, there is one major question in my mind—the labor problem. If this issue is not handled properly, business could receive a very rude set-back. Workers are in the most strategic position today they have ever held. Labor leaders can prosper in a knif if they call a general walk-out or they can give prosperity a boost if they keep their heads. Do not misunderstand me. I am not predicting grave national labor tie-ups, even though some current situations do look threatening and even though there will be a big increase in the number of strikes. I merely say that if labor leaders try to push too far and too fast in their demands for higher pay and shorter hours, we are in for serious trouble."

Let Us Be Thankful—But Alert

It would be well for us all, on the threshold of the new year, to look abroad at dictator-ridden Europe. In many great countries the free press has been abolished. Free speech has been silenced with imprisonment and death. In some countries the right to worship has been arrogated by law, the state has been made divine, the dictator in power must be regarded as a god, and the individual has been reduced to an actual state of slavery. While we pity the citizens of those nations, and wonder that such things could have come to pass in this century, we can learn an invaluable lesson from their plight. We still live under a Constitution that guarantees us freedom of religion, freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Upon the preservation of that Constitution and the liberties it guarantees depends the future of the United States and the American people. In the pursuit of an economic millennium we must not sacrifice national ideals and principles that are the very lifeblood of democracy.

On Taking Up the Slack

It seems next thing to a huge joke to be asking industry to pull the country out of the hole and to "take up the slack" by putting more people to work. Industry no doubt would be pleased to put more people to work, but it must have something for them to do. Business as a rule in the competitive fields particularly does not afford such a wide margin of profit that more people can be employed than are absolutely necessary to do the job. Politicians may be able to make jobs for their friends where none grew before but that isn't business.

High School Notes

The all-electric scoreboard arrived at the school this week and is expected to be installed in time to be used at the first home game this evening. At a class meeting held on Wednesday, the seniors voted to pay for this scoreboard without the generous offer to help them pay for it made by the classes of '34 and '35.

The tickets for the senior play, "Big Hearted Herbert," went on sale Wednesday. The play will be presented at the Town hall on Monday, February eighth.

The student body attended the basketball practice in the new gymnasium on Wednesday afternoon. With the cheer leader, Adrien Graveline, they practiced the various cheers to be used throughout the basketball season.

The first of a series of entertainments by the four classes was presented in the assembly hall today by the senior class. Miss Gabrielle Laporte was chairman of the committee in charge.

The program was as follows: songs by Adrien Graveline; piano selections by Ruth Green and Thelma Corney; accordion selections by Robert Switt; guitar selections by Clifford Doolittle and James Eldridge; and selections by the boys' quintet.

Cow Receives Broken Leg In Auto Accident, Owner Seeks To Recover

A cow, a fifteen-year-old local boy and his mother are involved in an auto accident in which preliminary testimony was heard last Monday.

The boy, Thaddeus Luszez and his mother, Mrs. Agnes Luszez, seek to recover for injuries in a truck automobile collision at Central and South streets, Auburn, March 12, 1935.

Mrs. Luszez also seeks to recover $100 for the decreased value of her cow because of the "cow's broken leg and other injuries."

They are suing Frank Allen, Jr., Auburn, whose automobile was in collision with their truck, in which Meyer Grace, North Brookfield, operator of the truck, Mrs. Luszez, her son and the cow were riding. The hearing is before Judge William A. Longfellow.

According to the testimony, Mrs. Luszez was in the front seat with Grace and the boy riding in the truck with the cow. The truck swung around after colliding with the Allen car and hit a pole. None was seriously injured.

Girls' Club at Methodist Church Has Party

There was a large attendance of young people from Worcester and surrounding towns at the party of the Girls' club of the Methodist church, Thursday night at the church vestry. The program included vocal presentations and a skit. A skit was given by Edith Eldridge, Beverly and Irene Fulton, Mary Sands, Marjorie Hunter, Sylvia Albino and Lois Ward. The Epworth League orchestra played several selections. James Eldridge of Spencer and Kenneth Gardner of Milford sang.

The committees in charge were: Decoration, Marjorie Hunter, Lois Ward, Eleanor Suprenant, Sylvia Albino, Olive Ward, Marion Hunt, Gloria LaFleur; refreshments, Mary Sands, Janet McCann, Marie Kenney, Beverly and Irene Fulton; games, Lydia Farmer and Doris Warren. Miss Edith Eldridge was general chairman.

Third Member of Trio Charged With Breaks Here, Held for Grand Jury

Ernest L. Ostley, twenty-five, of 30 Dawson road, Worcester, was ordered held for the Worcester County grand jury under $800 bail by Judge Arthur E. Butterworth in district court last Saturday morning, when he found probable cause in the complaint against him for breaking and entering in the night time at the Victory Cafe on Chestnut street. A second complaint of breaking and entering in the night time at the Spencer Grain Co. office was dismissed.

Ostley's two companions, Edward Gregory of Worcester and Henry Viaux of Spencer already at the county jail awaiting grand jury action on similar complaints, appeared in court Saturday morning to testify against him.

Chief of Police Charles H. Meloch and Night Patrolman William R. Cole made the arrests.

The stock in the Sugden block store has been removed to the Grove street location.

Prouty Basketball Team Gets Off To Poor Start

The David Prouty basketball team, competing in the Western Worcester County High School League, got off to a poor start by losing their first two league games, one to Leicester and the other to Auburn. The standings follow:

A. M. Latour Co. To Move To Leavitt Store In Sugden Block

The A. M. Latour Company, news dealers and stationers, announced Thursday that they would move one of their stores the latter part of the month from the Kingsley block to the Sugden block. The new location is a store used for several years by the late Charles P. Leavitt as a grocery and is next door to the postoffice. The other store belonging to the Latour Company, located in the Lacroix building, Main street on the north side of the Town Hall hill, will continue as at present.

The new Sugden block will have a good deal more floor space and a larger show window and is more centrally located. The management believes that the change will give them a much more modern store and one in which the townspeople will find shopping a pleasure.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

"I took three risky dashes today, but I'll score better tomorrow."

MAKE A GAME OF SAFE DRIVING

It might help safety statistics if a lot of us took careful driving as seriously as we take golf—and played at it as hard.

Do you "tailor" on curves? Do you "hook" on hills? Every night when you get home (if you get home) release your day's driving. How many times did you darned near have an accident? How many narrow squeaks did you have? How many times were you reckless when you should have taken a little more time and played safe?

Did you dart out of line on curves or hills when you should have waited a little longer? According to statistics gathered by the Travelers Insurance Company, that is one of the worst traffic sins.

In golf and in driving, a good score is a matter of keeping your head

"Poise under stress" is what Bobby Jones calls it. A good golfer or a good driver lets his head be steady as a rock. There are many times in your day's driving when you "blow up" on hills. There ought to be loving cups for people who make exceptional driving records. Let's give a cup, for example, to William Lavin, a chauffeur of Toledo, who has driven 500,000 miles without an accident.

"You've got to give more than you take," says Mr. Lavin. "Even if you have the right of way, it doesn't mean you have to take it. It's only a matter of time before you'll be in a jam. And if you give the pedestrian the right of way, if he walks into your car, he won't damage it. But if you drive into him, it's a matter of time before you'll be in a jam."

Mary Lamb, Mrs. Alberta Putnam and John Marsh.

Direct News from Spain

Rafael Gabarro, a seventh grade student at Lawrence Junior high school, during three weeks fighting for the Spanish government, gives an interesting account of what he saw in Barcelona during six months of the civil war. A native and citizen of this country, the boy, who is now living with his mother in Foxcroft district, returned back to Spain two years ago to remain there for twenty months with his mother. His father is employed at the American Steel and Wire Co., Worcester.

His father, an American citizen, arranged with the American consulate to leave the country safely. The young man told a remarkable story of the horrifying struggle that engulfed the entire nation. The most interesting of his many war tales was that of the heroism of a young blonde woman, Edward L. McKeown, and his wife, Mrs. Delia Perry. Mrs. Perry, who had been reported as unwilling to run for office this year issued the following statement: "Many persons from all sections of the town have called upon me and requested that I again be a candidate for selectmen, and I feel it my duty to the community to accept the nomination. In view of recent happenings in my home and the death of Mrs. Belleville, I had, for a time about next year to actively engage in political matters for some time." However, the urging has come from persons whom I know, have only the town's best interests at heart, and I can look on the matter of making a decision only as a civic duty. I am not anxious to enter into a political arena and shall for a great part, rely upon fair-minded voters to answer the question of whether I have given Leicester a fair, conservative, economical administration. If consideration is also given to what has been accomplished with the WPA, especially since the floods last March, and the costs, to the town, of such accomplishments, then I shall abide by the decision of the voters of the town on election day, and feel that the answer will be that Leicester, my home since 1905, appreciates honesty, enterprise and fairness in local government."

The young man speaks English and Spanish and was able to translate the news bulletin heard in Spanish. He told of a threat issued by General Franco, that if bombing was resorted to in Barcelona the government forces would kill every Fascist in the city. Twice baseball games were interrupted by the war. Baseball is very popular in Spain and one scheduled game was called off in respect of General Franco, who talked, well, you admitted the Fascists, who was shot in the back from a hotel window while going to the front to encourage his troops. The general was shot in Madrid but his body was brought to Barcelona for burial and the city was in mourning.

HER OWN IDEA

By R. H. WILKINSON

It is unwise to brood, or to "hold in" as the saying goes. People who think a lot, nurse a grievance and never get it out of their systems, are apt to "go off the onions." Nuts, I mean. Statistics show that nine out of every ten brooders have nervous breakdowns, five out every ten go, eventually, bawling, three out of every ten die young.

Consider the case of Maud Blain. Maud was in love with young Dr. Fred Avery. She had been in love with him for three years. But she hadn't told anyone about it; no one guessed it. Why? Well, because Maud didn't want to appear ridiculous. She knew that if she told him, she would be laughed at. And she didn't want to be laughed at.

Maud was plain and quiet and retiring. She didn't like to draw attention to herself. She was a good girl, and she was a good worker. She was a good friend, and she was a good neighbor. She was a good person, and she was a good woman.

Bouffard Returned To Concord In Local Burglary And Assault Case

Joseph Bouffard, twenty-three of 46 Chestnut street, was returned to Concord Reformatory for violation of parole by Judge James C. Donnelly Wednesday in the Worcester Superior Court after he pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering in the night time, with intent to commit larceny, and for assault upon an officer. Bouffard had served fourteen months of a five year term.

Bouffard was arrested November sixth in Spencer by Night Patrolman William R. Cole when he found him entering the Spencer Grain Company through a window. The officer charges that Bouffard assaulted him with a three-foot club when he attempted to arrest him. Night Patrolman Cole received two black eyes during the melee. Three other men, arrested by local police and charged with breaking and entering in the night time, will be arraigned in the Worcester Superior Court today. They are Henry Vian, twenty-one, of Spencer, Edward Gregory, thirty, of Grovesnor street, Worcester and Ernest Oatley, twenty-seven, of 30 Dawson street, Worcester.

Vian was arrested December 30 by Night Patrolman Cole when he found him loitering on Main street early in the morning. Gregory and Oatley were arrested December 31 in Worcester by Chief of Police Charles H. Melochie and Patrolman Cole. All three men were held for the grand jury when they appeared before Judge Arthur Butten. The district Court and he found probable cause for complaints against them for breaking and entering in the night time. Local police charge the trio with breakers at the Victory Cafe and the Spencer Grain Company.

Advertising Sells Commodities

Before Thanksgiving this year, progressive food stores of the country carried on an aggressive turkey sales campaign. More turkeys were sold than ever before, and at prices that were attractive to consumer as well as producers. Sales methods varied somewhat in different localities, but the participating stores seemed to appreciate the value and necessity of newspaper advertising. For example, here is an excerpt from the report of one large chain system: "Newspaper advertising was carried in all the principal metropolitan and rural newspapers in our territory. . . . Before our Thanksgiving demands had been filled there was a decided scarcity of turkeys of the top grade in our market." Another chain reported: "We have advertised turkey in approximately 250 newspapers this week as well as 750,000 circulars which were distributed to the consuming public's homes. Present indications are that we sold about 30 per cent more turkeys for Thanksgiving this year than a year ago." Newspapers have been a potent factor in other food sales campaigns—such as the recent beef and real drive. Similar future campaigns—of which the first will feature grapefruit—are planned. It is apparent that this is good business all around—for the farmer, for the merchant, for the newspaper and for the consumer. In the past, some retailers have attempted to eliminate newspaper advertising—and they have usually found that it was the poorest kind of economy. "The paper"—whether it be a daily or weekly—is a fixture of the American home and finds an eager audience. Food stores—chain or independent—which have not yet joined in special selling campaigns would do well to take a leaf from the book of the stores which have. Pay the farmer a fair price, charge the consumer a fair price, advertise extensively—and consumption of commodities soars.—E.S.

That Shorter Hours Make for Prosperity Is a Myth

One of the issues which has been kicking around for years but which will be pushed again at this session is the proposal to legislate a thirty-hour work week for all industry on the theory that simply by having all plants curtail working hours everyone will have an overnight trip to Utopia with no return ticket. There is hardly an economist in the country that has not pointed to the fallacy of this reasoning. The New York Times disposes of the issue neatly in commenting upon a statement by the president of the A. F. of L. as follows: "The need for higher incomes on the part of the great mass of the American population is obvious. It does not follow, however, that Mr. Green's particular recommendations to achieve that end are sound. His remedies put the cart before the horse. A nation can never 'buy back' more than it produces. The primary way to increase American incomes is not to 'redistribute' more income than there is to go around, but to improve labor skills, machine efficiency and industrial organization—in short, to increase both individual earning power and national production. One of Mr. Green's proposals is the precise opposite of this. He wants to shorten the working week. The only result of this would be to increase production costs and hence prices, which would reduce the purchasing power of wages. It would reduce total national production, and hence American incomes, even below their present inadequate levels."

What's the Difference Between Nazism and Sovietism?

There are of course many differences in details of a Soviet government and Hitler's iron rule in Germany. But in one respect, and that an important respect, they are much alike. In the last analysis, they both represent dictatorships of men seeking to keep within their hands complete powers, and both are the opposite of democracy as we understand it. They both represent government from the top down, and that is just the sort of government the people of this country must beware of, if they are to retain for themselves the right of self-government. Therefore anybody who resists any encroachment upon the prerogatives of the people and objects to too much concentration of power in the hands of one or a few has, after all, to that extent, a proper conception of our scheme of constitutional government, and there is little cause, in the absence of other good reasons, for classifying him as reactionary as is frequently done. After all, he is the real progressive, for he stands for democracy, while the others are for centralized government, and by whatever name one may call it, after all it is essentially monarchism. And the fathers who founded this republic sacrificed enough to shake off that form of government, it would seem, to make present generations realize what it cost to afford them escape from one man government, if they will but read or recall past history.

Increase in Fire Hazards

It is doubtful if many people give sufficient thought to fire hazards and to what the effect would be on their pocketbooks in case of partial or complete loss by fire. Only those who have experienced a fire loss in their homes or places of business realize that it is seldom that one carries sufficient coverage to replace the goods damaged or destroyed. How many people are methodical enough to make an inventory of their belongings in the home, clothing, furniture, books, tools, valuables of any sort? Yet unless one does that he is almost sure to find, in case of fire, that he is underinsured; so many things are bought from time to time and that represent a considerable investment in the aggregate and which would strain the resources of some people to replace. Then of course there is the co-insurer clause, which many forget, and by which the insured must stand his proportion of the loss if the percentage of insurance required, eighty or ninety percent as the case may be, is not carried. But just at the present time what brings this thought particularly to mind is that a great many fires start in accumulations of rubbish. Since the introduction of oil burners in ranges and home boilers, people do not have the facilities for disposing of such refuse that they had in the coal-burning days. As a result it is likely to accumulate and presents a potential fire hazard that must not be ignored, if we are to play safe.

A Sale in the Wind

By RICHARD H. WILKINSON
Associated Newspapers.
WNU Service.

IT WAS the famous wind storm of 1935 which lasted three days and nights, which devastated the town of Maple Ridge that gave Silas Kent the idea of selling his windmill to the town. The heavy gales which were blowing from the south had been blowing for some time, and the windmill was in a very bad state of repair. The idea of selling it was first suggested by the town council, but it was not until the storm had passed that the idea was seriously considered.

The town council had been discussing the matter for some time, and it was finally decided to sell the windmill. The price was set at $1000, and the windmill was sold to the town. The council hoped that the windmill would be a useful addition to the town's defenses, and that it would be a reminder of the storm of 1935.

How's that?" said Asa, regarding the town's decision to sell the windmill. "It's a pretty good idea, but I don't know if it will be a success. The windmill is in a very bad state of repair, and it will cost a lot of money to fix it. I don't think the town will be able to afford it."

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THE homemaker can, by simple devices, save her furniture and furnishings from getting marred and at the same time protect paint and wall paper in her rooms. Also in similar ways she can guard against breakage, and entanglements of door fastenings that are annoying rather than disastrous. For example, door stops can be made to do more than prevent doors from hitting the wall, and lengths of chain can be put to unusual uses of protection against accidents.

Door stops can keep furniture from rubbing against a wall back of it. The stops may be screwed into the base board, or into the furniture itself, in some instances. The stops should be positioned where the rubber tips will strike the base board or panelling of the wall, and not where they will come in contact with plastered walls or wall paper.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

"Step on it, Daddy. Don't be a hypochondriac."

"I'd rather be a hypochondriac than the late Mr. Jones."

SO I'M A HYPOCHONDRIAC?

One of my friends (in fact, it was my older daughter) has accused me of being a hypochondriac. I don't know what a hypochondriac is, but I don't think I am one.

When your train stops in a station, you see and hear men tapping the wheels and brakes, looking for possible trouble.

Retained hypochondriac, I guess. All along the railroad tracks are red and green lights, to keep trains from busting into each other. If the engineer sees a red light, he's just enough of a hypochondriac to stop his train.

Constant inspection and constant care are the price the railroads pay for their valuable safety records. They know that they can't depend on luck.

Old-Fashioned Nomination Paper
Almost Causes "Jam"

The faces of fifteen candidates for town offices who are running for re-election at the town election on February 8 came very close to being tinted a deep red, through no fault of their own. The closeness was caused by the fact that the one nomination paper which was used for the fifteen candidates, and which is known as a "blanket," was of an old-fashioned form which was outlawed in 1936, and has no official bearing in a 1937 election, according to Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook. As has been the custom in past years, any candidates who plan to seek re-election may have their names grouped together, and the voters who sign the nomination paper sign for all candidates listed on the paper. This year there were fifteen candidates, one of the heaviest lists in years, and by an oversight the names of three candidates seeking re-election to three of the town's important offices were omitted. The nomination paper was legal before 1937 elections but was outlawed last year. The difference in the papers, while insignificant on the surface, is nevertheless important. On all nomination papers issued by a town clerk prior to this year, the place of residence was signed as "April 1" of the preceding year. On the new form issued this year and which was signed by voters signing papers other than the "blanket" in question, place of residence was signed as of "January 1, 1937." Had the old-fashioned form still been used, the place of residence would have been signed as of "April 1, 1936." Substantively, the residence dates are now from January 1 to January 1 instead of from April 1 to April 1 of a given year. The old-fashioned nomination paper was not issued from the office of Town Clerk Monica E. Short, and when it was presented at the office last Saturday for filing with the registrars of voters for certification of names it was noted that the names were not entered on a proper form. Whether or not the fifteen candidates are entitled to placement on the town ballot rests with the decision of the local board of registrars. Should the paper be ruled null and void, the fifteen candidates would be compelled to run on stickers, while the three candidates left off and several other candidates who have taken out papers and who were not out for re-election would be the only names entered on the town ballot.

High School Wins Basketball Game

The local high school basketball team, after suffering four straight defeats, came through with a narrow victory Tuesday night in a game played against Auburn High School in that town. It was only the very hard playing and ability to come from behind in the last minutes of play that enabled them to tie and to enter into two overtime periods from which they emerged with victory by virtue of a one-point margin which made the score 30 to 29. Trailing by 10 points in the third quarter, they battled their way into a 21 tie at the end of the regulation game. In the first overtime period both teams scored 3 points, leaving the score at 24 all. In the second overtime of five minutes, the local boys scored 6 points to Auburn's 5 and they had a victory. Salem with 12 points at forward and Tucker with 8 points at forward were the big scorers for the locals, while Bonin, the Auburn center, had a big night by netting 13 points. As a result of that win, the local team has two victories and four defeats. Tonight they oppose David Prouty High of Spencer in that town. Next Tuesday night they will oppose Rutland High here and on Friday night will oppose Holden in that town. The girls' team of the local school came through again with victory by defeating the Auburn High girls in the preliminary game: 30 to 18.

Erection of Telephone Building Starting in March

From "soapbox" to dial—those four words tell the story of the local telephone office stretching over a period of more than thirty-five years. The title of the chair which was first used when the first telephone switchboard was installed here was "soapbox," and that name has lingered through the years as a reminder to those of long service of the days when a telephone was a brand new affair and when the first switchboard was located in the old Gleason store on Main street. The dial angle of the local telephone exchange enters the story with the announcement this week by J. A. Donoghue of Southbridge, who is the manager of the local office, that work on the erection of the new telephone building on the site of the land at the junction of South Main and Gilbert Streets will start on or about the first of March. Mr. Donoghue stated that present plans, while not complete, call for the completion of the structure on or about July first. The land was purchased by the telephone company several months ago and it was stated at that time that building operations would not commence for at least a year. Recent reports here that work was starting in March were certified by Mr. Donoghue on Wednesday. The structure will be the future site of the present exchange, now located in the Duncan Block, which serves this town, the three remaining Brookfields, and New Braintree. Tentative plans call for the installation of the dial system in this town during the summer, and it is believed that the new dial system will be ready for operation late in the fall. Mr. Donoghue stated that additional information concerning the building and plans of the company concerning the local exchange would be made public at a later date. At the present time there are about 1500 subscribers and eight regular operators. They are: Miss Susie A. Finn, chief operator, Mrs. Carboni, Mrs. Dorothy Robinson, Miss Evelyn Herard, Miss Mary Bresnahan, Miss Grace Ryan, Miss Erma Howe, and J. Arthur Sullivan, who is the night operator.

Armorteds and Rosebuds Beaten

The Armorteds and the Fitchburg A. A. met on the field of combat Wednesday night in the Town Hall and during the first half of the game it was nothing short of high explosive action with every hold permitted in a basketball game; the result was a very low score with Fitchburg leading 12 to 8. The teams slowed down into a basketball game during the last half and at the end of the third quarter the score was 36 to 13 in favor of Fitchburg. Their shooting star, Shattuck, managed to score basket after basket from the center of the floor, and the final score was 38 to 22. The Grabert boys and John Lane played their usual hard game with Jake McCarthy doing some good interference work on round-end plays in the first half. The spectators took to rear seats when the players began skipping the benches and climbing the walls. The preliminary game was a much different affair with a grand exhibition of smooth basketball between the Rosebuds and the Athol Boys' Club. Athol was much too strong for the Rosebuds, and the final score was 56 to 30. King, of Athol, gave a shooting exhibition which was the best, according to many fans, that has been seen here in many years. Dancing followed the games and the entire affair was promoted to aid the local Red Cross chapter in the drive for funds to aid flood sufferers.

Jane Withers and John Boles at Star Theatre

"Career Woman," starring Claire Trevor and Michael Whalen, and "The Accusing Finger," with Paul Kelly are the two feature pictures that are being shown at the Star Theatre for today and Saturday.

For next Sunday and Monday Jane Withers and Slim Summerville will be seen in "Can This Be Dixie." You'll see a new Jane Withers in this one which is full of chuckles and heart-throbs. The story gets under way when Jane and Slim, a traveling minstrel team, wander onto the estate of old Colonel Peachtree (Claude Gillingwater). The Colonel, a proud and penniless son of the Old South, is trying to save the homestead from the clutches of the village banker (Donald Cook), a black-hearted villain who holds the mortgage. Mr. Cook has the temerity to suggest an exchange of the mortgage for the hand of the Colonel's daughter. Little Jane saves the old plantation and the gal's honor by winning an amateur show contest. Real good entertainment throughout.

"Craig's Wife," starring John Boles and Rosalind Russell, is the feature attraction at the Star next Wednesday and Thursday. This is Columbia's picture of the prize winning stage play, and it's a job well done. Rosalind Russell plays the part of Craig's wife and she succeeds in making her self thoroughly detestable as a selfish, grasping woman whose schemes for her own security eventually result in gaining her that security . . . and losing everything else in the world, including her friends, her niece, and her husband. John Boles, as the "romantic fool" of a husband, turns out a performance that in no way suggests any kind of a fool at all. A film that the whole family can enjoy.

Don't forget that every Thursday night is Bank Nite at the Star Theatre. The latest news reels and short subjects can always be seen at this popular playhouse.

District Court

Kenneth S. Howes of 24 Gilbert Avenue, Springfield, was fined $50 for operating while under the influence of liquor when arraigned Monday before Judge Arthur F. Butterworth; $25 for leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known; and had a drunkenness charge filed. He appealed and furnished $200 bail. His counsel was Attorney George Rice of Spencer.

Mr. Howes was arrested by State Trooper James Leary of Brookfield and Police Chief Charles Meloche of Spencer. It is alleged that Howes operated a car which sideswiped a vehicle operated by Alston Vanceltette of Wiggam Hill, Worcester, and continued on two miles and crashed into a tree near the Catholic Cemetery in Spencer. Attorney Rice claims his client was practically unconscious from the effects of the first collision and had no knowledge of what transpired after that time.

Charles Waskiewicz, Jr., of Warren was sentenced to serve two months in the Worcester House of Correction when found guilty of assault and battery on his wife, Helena Waskiewicz.

The Lookout Committee met on Tuesday for organization and to report on calls. Mrs. William C. Prentiss was the acting chairman.

A teachers' meeting was held Tuesday afternoon at the high school building. At that meeting Charles D. McCarthy reported on the Boston University Educational Conference which he attended on January 15 and 16. Mrs. Elizabeth Lyons' Nolan, school nurse, reported the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Worcester County School Nurses' Association held in Worcester on January 20. The remainder of the meeting was given over to discussion of courses of study in language and English, reading and so.

Winners at the Knights of Columbus beano party Tuesday night, held in the society hall, were Alex Zelatores, George Charron, Mrs. Odessa Powers, Charles Payles, Miss Margaret McCarthy, Mrs. John Lane, Robert Tyne, Mrs. Nellie Collins, Jesse Quinn, Mrs. Leo Cushing, John Dowra, Mrs. Charles S. Lane, Mrs. Lillian Powers, Mrs. Ellis Ingram, Mrs. Rose Gascou, Mrs. John Dowra, Fred Brucker, Mrs. John Donnelly, Stanley Rice, Michael Melesky, and James Tobin. The regular weekly party will be conducted Tuesday night.

Miss Harriet L. Shedd, one of the oldest residents of the town, died at her home on Walnut street last Saturday after a long illness. She was in her 89th year and would have reached her 90th birthday in April. A native of Oakham, Miss Shedd came to this town many years ago and resided in the Shedd home on Main street. She was the child of Israel P. and Mary (Hoar) Shedd and is survived by one sister, Mrs. Jane S. Damon, and one brother, Jonas T. Shedd, both of this town. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday afternoon from the funeral parlors of Charles S. Lane on Maple Street. Rev. Hiram T. Carpenter of Bethany church in Springfield officiated at the services. The bearers were Jonas T. Shedd, Ralph Shedd, Arthur G. Holmes of Canaan, New Hampshire, and Harry D. Pollard of New Braintree. Interment was in the family lot in Evergreen Cemetery, New Braintree.

This Season's Undefered Leicester

David Prouty High School basketball team added another victory to their winning streak of the past weeks when they defeated Leicester High School 29 to 7 last Tuesday night at the High School gym. In a regular Western Worcester County High School league game and the victory puts the local crew in a position where they can dispute third place with the league with Leicester. Last until last Tuesday's game was with Oxford for second place but was down into third position. The local team led the contest throughout the entire contest. Captain Doolittle tossing four balls and two free tries for a total of 10 points. Mullet and Billie were in great form and piled up points each for Spencer. Fitzsimmons for Leicester, was the outstanding player for the visitors with a total of 4 points.

Coach McDonough and the Spectators anticipated a strenuous contest with the Leicester aggregation prior in the season they gave the local team a beautiful licking at Leicester. The fact that Spencer triumphed over the victor in Tuesday night proves that the first two games a team plays are not always a good barometer for judgment of their worth. While we don't look upon to sit in the coveted position this season, the boys certainly have every indication of being at the top of the ladder.

Very little has been said of the local team this year which is fast making a name for itself. This outfit has had the entire season so far without a contest. Piloted by Coach McDonough, the team is made up of very good basketball material. Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who will be in the regular team next season.

Spencer Moves Into Fourth Place In High School League

The David Prouty High School basketball team by defeating Leicester High Tuesday night moved into fourth place in the Western Worcester County High School League. Previous to Tuesday night's defeat Leicester High was tied for second place with Oxford but now goes down into third position. Holden is leading with eight games won and one loss. The half way mark of the season has been reached and it is fair to assume that by the brand of basketball the Prouty team has been displaying in the past few weeks, the close of the season will see them in a position much nearer the top in the league standing.

New Series of Breaks Reported Here

Four breaks were reported this week to Chief of Police Charles H. Meloche. The new breaks come within a week after the local police had just finished what they thought was a clean-up of a gang who had been involved in several breaks here. In the roundup one man was sent to Concord Reformatory and two others were given probation. With the exception of one case, local police believe that the breaks are the work of amateurs.

Juveniles have been involved in two thievery cases here. One a house break, when entrance was made through the discovery of where the occupant of the house had left the key. The other breaks where juveniles were involved were at the two Catholic churches, when money was being taken from the poor boxes located in the church. Both of these cases have been cleaned up by the local officers.

The new breaks include the following: Mrs. Napoleon Alex, South Spencer, entrance was made by breaking a window, and a half ton of coal was stolen; the home of Mrs. Josie Juire, Temple Street, was ransacked and jewelry and money valued at $50 were taken; a break was reported at the Roger Bemis Farm, Hillsville, where farm equipment valued at about $40 which had been stored in an outbuilding was stolen; the A. & P. Store on Mechanic Street was entered by thieves who made entrance by boring around the lock on the front door and removing the entire mechanical device; the loss was undetermined.

Four protectographs, comparatively new, were found by hunters near the Catholic Cemetery and turned over to Chief of Police Meloche. An effort is being made by local police to find the rightful owners of these machines. It is the opinion of Chief of Police Meloche that out-of-town crooks cached the machines there with the intention of picking them up later.

Selectmen Confer With Spencer Gas Company

Negotiate For Better Street Lighting at Lower Rate

The board of selectmen and Representative George Rice have been negotiating with the Spencer Gas Company concerning electric rates charged for street lighting, also service to household users and merchants. Several conferences have already been held.

Chairman Traill said today that they have succeeded in getting from the company a proposal which provides for a substantial increase in wattage and hours of burning for a relatively small increase in cost. This proposal will be submitted to the annual town meeting for approval.

With street lighting out of the way, these officials are now making an effort to reach an agreement with the company with respect to household and store rates, so that reductions may be put into effect with as little delay as possible.

Superintendent of Schools Has Interesting Report

Repairs to Old High School Building Total $1,125.00

Spencer's New Building Has Separate Fire Alarm System

Lou Reinteau and Charland Grapple to a Draw in Wrestling Show Here

Lou Reinteau of Springfield, very popular here with wrestling fans, went thirty minutes with R. Charland of Worcester for a decision of draw, at the first of a series of wrestling matches on Monday night at the social hall in Memorial Town Hall. It was the fifth time that the two grapplers have met, and each contest has resulted in a draw. The Reinteau-Charland bout was the outstanding event of the entire card.

Bad Man Stilackey of Keene, N. H., was defeated by George Louthier of Fitchburg in the main bout of the best two out of three falls. Stilackey injured his right leg during the first fall when he was thrown against a post supporting the ropes of the ring. This injury probably contributed largely to his defeat, as the next two falls went only four minutes and three minutes, respectively.

In a preliminary bout, Will Tetreault of Holyoke defeated Wilbert Raineille, Y. M. C. A. champion of Pittsfield. The contest lasted twelve minutes with Tetreault taking the decision with a scissors and body press.

To add some local color to the bouts the promoters conducted a battle royal in which four Spencer wrestlers were the performers. The hometowners consisted of Cliff Young, Andy Ethier, Norman Collette, and Ozzie Kane. The four boys jumped into the ring together and tried to pin each other to the floor. The idea was to see who could stay the longest and still have his arms and legs intact. Kane was the first to go out. He was floored by Collette in five minutes. Collette followed in less than a minute when he was attacked by both Ethier and Young. With Ethier and Young left in the ring an interesting seven-minute match followed, which was finally brought to a close when Ethier pinned Young's shoulders to the floor with a body press.

There was an attendance of about three hundred. Foster Bemis was announcer and time-keeper and Gideon Beaudin was referee. Another wrestling card will be held at the social hall on February 15.

Alfred Ledger

Alfred Ledger, 34, of 19 McDonald street, a resident of Spencer for about fifteen years, died early Wednesday morning at St. Vincent Hospital, Worcester, where he was taken last Saturday afternoon suffering from pneumonia. He had been employed of late by the Klevan Shoe Co. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Ledger of Lynn and a twin brother, George Ledger of Maine. The funeral and burial will take place Saturday in Lynn.

Superintendent of Schools, Irving H. Agard, in his annual report, recommends a change in the school calendar which for many years has placed the spring vacation for all of the local schools the week including the 19th of April. Mr. Agard says that while this arrangement has proven satisfactory for the elementary schools which have a February vacation, the attendance at the Junior and Senior High Schools has been affected by it. Mr. Agard maintains that a poor attendance record due to fatigue and illness has been characteristic of the last few weeks of the long winter term. He recommends that the spring vacation be the last of March and to give up the eighth-week vacation for the elementary schools.

A gift of a piano to the High School from Mrs. John Goddard, and books for the school library from Miss Mary Cruickshanks are gratefully acknowledged in the superintendent's report.

The report states that the new High School addition has a fire-alarm system separate from the classroom bell system and that there are five fire doors in the corridors. A master clock in the school office controls clocks and bells in all classrooms and study halls as well as the yards bells. Provision has been made for future installation of a modern sound system which will permit radio programs, programs for Assembly Hall, and announcements from the school office to be heard in all class and study rooms.

The report also states that the school committee found it necessary to make other repairs at the High School building in connection with the building of the addition. These repairs were made outside the general contract and paid for from the school appropriation. They consisted of repairs to the roof of the building at a cost of $125 and the painting of the entire building at a cost of nearly $1000.

Two Injured In Auto Accident Here

Ernest J. Johnson of Amherst received a sprained back and Mrs. Helen B. Johnson, also of Amherst, suffered a bad shaking up when an automobile in which they were riding was in collision with another car Thursday morning at the corner of Main and Maple streets. Both were treated by Dr. J. C. Austin. The driver of the other car involved in the accident was Wilbur F. Prescott of 255 Central avenue, Auburn. Mr. Prescott was uninjured. Both cars were badly damaged.

Prescott told Chief of Police Charles H. Meloche that he was going west on Main street and was going to turn around the traffic signal at the junction of Main and Maple streets. He told police that he saw nothing coming until the Johnson car suddenly loomed up in front of him.

Local People are Urged to Save Tin Foil for Shriner's Hospital

An appeal is made to local people to save the tin and lead foil from candy, cigarettes, tobacco, empty tubes of tooth paste, cold cream and ointments for the fund for crippled children who are cared for at the Shriner's hospital at Springfield. These children have no one to give them care and treatment and the sale of this foil is a great help in providing for these unfortunate.

When you have collected some of the foil you may leave it at the A. M. Latour Co., Sugden Block, Main street, next to the post office. It will then be turned over to the proper parties to be turned into cash.

Flood Relief Total $800

Anyone wishing to contribute clothing for the flood sufferers may leave them with Mr. Bosse, janitor of the Town Hall.

NORTH BROOKFIELD

Congregational Church Notes

Regular Sunday services at the Congregational church will be held, starting at 10:45, with Rev. William C. Prentiss officiating.

About 75 men gathered Monday night at the church for the affair sponsored by the Men's Club with William T. Smith presiding. A feature of the gathering was an illustrated lecture by Rev. Elsie of Brookfield dealing with "In the Homes of Abraham Lincoln." A demonstration was given by members of Boy Scout Troop 129 and the entertainment of the evening was composed of tap dancing specialties by Miss Pauline Gaudette and selections by the club quartet. An open invitation was extended to members of the school committee and to the men of the high school faculty to attend. Refreshments were served with the following in charge: Arthur Salem Walter, Robbins, Donald Vore, Ralph A. Chase and Eugene W. Reed.

Members of the Local Proctor group met Monday night at the home of Mrs. John J. O'Hare. Mr. Frederick C. Swornhouse, president, was in charge of the meeting.

Members of the cast of the church minstrel show journeyed to Springfield last Saturday night for dinner and attended a hockey game.

Wally Beery To Be Seen In New Film At Star

Wally Beery will be seen in his latest screen offering, "Old Hutch," next Sunday and Monday at the Star Theatre. This picture shows Beery at his best. He's the town's laziest man, an uncouth fellow who fishes, leaving the support of the bright-eyed hungry brood to his wife and young daughter. He stumbles onto a cache of $100,000 in stolen bills. . . and decides that he will have to go to work so that town-folk will get accustomed gradually to his having money. But the thugs who planted the "hot" money force Wally into their ranks. He turns the tables on them, becomes a hero. Elizabeth Patterson is Old Hutch's wife. Her dramatic denunciation of her shiftless husband will win a spontaneous burst of applause from any audience. Notable, too, for appealing sincerity are the fine bits delivered by lovely Cecilia Parker in her scenes with Eric Linden. . . who also rates an orchid. No screen pair can equal their ability to depict youth's first naive and awkward rapture, difficult roles which they play perfectly. There are four cute children in the picture that will give many chuckles.

A double feature program is now playing at this popular theatre. Lewis Stone and Bruce Cabot in "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," is a vigorous and thoughtful drama about parole systems. The co-feature is "A Son Comes Home," starring Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles. In this one Mary Boland refuses to help her son escape punishment for a crime. Excellent performances by a really unusual cast.

For next Wednesday and Thursday the management will offer Martha Raye and Robert Cummings in "Hideaway

Rod and Gun Club Have Venison Dinner

Fifty members of Brookfield Rod and Gun Club, Inc. enjoyed the venison dinner furnished and served in Banquet Hall last week by their new president, Harold Jones of Warren, assisted by Frank Wells and Richard Freeman. Seated at the head table were President Jones, past president Richard Freeman, secretary Ralph Green, treasurer Winfield Howe, game warden Oleg Creagan, vice-presidents Lucius E. Estey and Stuart Hall, and James Long, now president of the Massachusetts Skeet Shooting Association.

Three of Spanky's "Our Gang" playmates have exceptionally fine parts. In particular, Billie Thomas, the four-year-old colored boy, makes his debut into features with a sparkling portrayal of a slave that prompts the prediction that he will eclipse the screen success scored by the favorite, "Parina." Carl Switzer receives an opportunity to put over one of his justly-celebrated songs to add to his reputation as the "greatest off-key singer of the films," that started with the fine notices he received in "Too Many Parents." "Porky" Lee, only three, is one of a group of clever youngsters who form Spanky's "Kid Army."

Nature, which often plays tricks on Hollywood shooting schedules, actually came to the aid of a picture during the filming of "Bulldog Drummond Escapes," latest in the popular series of detective stories, which begins on Fri-Sat at the Casino Theatre, Warren. The opening scenes of the new film called for the landing of a plane in fog-bound Croydon Field, just outside of London. When the shooting commenced, an honest-to-goodness fog settled down over the lot and Director James Hogan ordered everybody into action to take advantage of it. The result is a perfect fog shot which no artificial means could produce.

Ray Milland plays the title role in "Bulldog Drummond Escapes," in which he has eight hours to solve a series of crimes which break out in London. Heather Angel, Sir Guy Standing, Porter Hays, Reginald Denny and E. E. Clive are also in the cast, and for a really unusual cast.

James Dunphy of Hartford passed the weekend here as the guest at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Dunphy.

Confessions for the first Friday were heard yesterday afternoon and evening at St. Joseph's church and masses were celebrated this morning at 5:30 and 7:15 o'clock. Masses Sunday will be at 7:30, 8:30 and 10:30.

Hayes and Mrs. Roland F. Walker.

George Herbert of Central Street and Ralph Brown of Boston Post Road attended a conference of tree wardens and gypsy moth superintendents at the Hotel Statler, Boston, on Thursday. Mr. Herbert is local tree warden and Brown is local gypsy moth superintendents.

A telegram was received Friday from Walter May, former resident, stating that he and his wife and four-year-old daughter Deanne have escaped safely from Paducah, Kentucky, and are at Fulton, Kentucky. No further details were available but this scant news brought a feeling of relief to his family and his many old friends here.

Joseph J. Durkin of Main Street, this week emphatically denied the rumor that he would not be a candidate for the office of Selectman at the March town meeting. He said he had at no time made any remark which could be construed as such intention. He is assuredly a candidate and will remain as one.

George Duquette who recently underwent a serious appendicitis operation at Memorial Hospital, in Worcester, returned to the barracks of the State Police on South Maple Street on Sunday and took over some of his duties as custodian. He has been in Clinton recuperating since leaving the hospital a short while ago.

Kelly of West Main Street is now chairman of the local Red Cross committee; Mrs. Richard Routledge of West Brookfield is vice-president; Miss Sadie Eaton of Sherman Street, is secretary; Hardy G. The stock in trade is listed in the town valuation accounts at $1,000. Mr. Gaudette has been a clerk in the store for about a year, and previous to that time served as a clerk for Walter R. Howe for many years. He has had other store experience, is well known and respected. He will conduct the store along its present track and will be among Brookfield's young business men. Mr. Pease took over the store two years ago last Spring, purchasing from Patrick H. Gorman. The building, still owned by Mr. Pease and gypsy moth superintendents, was used for many years by Henry F. ### Charlton Defeats High School 40 to 32

The high school losing streak in basketball was extended to four straight games, when Charlton defeated the local team 40 to 32 in a league game at Town hall Tuesday night. It was a disappointment for local fans who had hoped for a victory after the visitors had been held in check during the first half. Coach McCarthy started with the lineup of Tucker and Salem at forward, Quigley at center and Klimavich and Smith at guards and kept the same lineup until the third period. Charlton had previously defeated the local boys 40 to 1. The first quarter finished with the local boys leading 9 to 4 after some sharp and hard playing. Their lead did not remain for long as Charlton came back quick to score one field goal and then scored on three straight foul shots and the score was tied. North Brookfield again took the lead and held it at the close of the half when the score was 19 to 16. Klimavich and Salem of this town and Lacanto of Charlton were the hard workers during the first half.

The third quarter was very exciting with the teams playing very hard basketball and at times exceedingly rough. Charlton started a scoring spree and got ahead but Tucker, having a good night, managed to net shots and keep the score fairly close. Several times it was tied in each team's favor. At the end of the period Charlton had taken the lead 28 to 24. The last quarter opened with Charlton attempting to salt the game with some early scoring while the local boys, endeavoring to score a win on the home floor, tried to even matters. They almost succeeded by netting a field goal and a foul shot to bring their total to 27. After that they scored but 5 points while Charlton proceeded to open up. They tossed baskets very easily during the period, scored several free tries and succeeded in smothering the local when the locals approached the Charlton basket.

The lineup:

Word has been received from Mrs. P. R. Barlow, who is spending the winter in Los Angeles, Cal., with her husband and daughter, that the condition of the fruit crop is pathetic. There has been so much cold and frost that the fruit has frozen on the trees. Many of the orchards had to be cut down for fueling to save the trees which have withstood the cold weather. Natives believe that it may take from twelve to fourteen years to replace the trees.

"Jungle Princess" to Return to Park Next Tuesday

Because of the many requests and of the fact that many were unable to get seats the last time it played here, the management of the Park Theatre will repeat the showing of "The Jungle Princess" next Tuesday. The picture stars the beautiful Dorothy Lamour in her first screen role, and because of this one film the public is due to see a great deal more of her. She appears in an interesting story of the Malay Peninsula. Orphaned in infancy, she grows up with only a tiger and an ape as guardian. When a young explorer, Ray Milland, ventures into the jungle to solve the mystery, he is wounded by the jungle maiden's love. Love blooms while she nurses him back to health in her hideaway. The native captures the jungle princess, and start to put into practice their fixed idea that she should be buried alive. Rescue by Milland and the ape convinces the hero that life in the jungle is too exciting to abandon, and so one more Tarzan is added to the list. An unusual picture that will certainly please. On the same program William Boyd will be seen in "Trail Dust," a real Western full of gun-shooting and fast riding.

For next Sunday and Monday a double-feature program will be presented with "Rainbow on the River" starring Bobby Bren and Mae Robson, and "Off to the Races" with the Jones Family.

Wednesday and Thursday audiences at the Park will see another double feature program that is full of surprises. Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster in "The Plough and the Stars," and "Sing Me a Love Song," starring James Melton, Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts and other Hollywood highlights.

Glady's Swarthout and Fred MacMurray will be seen in "Champagne Waltz" next Friday and Saturday.

This sprightly romance is well named because it is light, effervescent, and certainly induces gaiety. Miss Swarthout plays the grand daughter of Johann Strauss. The young girl and the old man run a highly successful dance palace, featuring the famous Strauss waltzes, until Fred MacMurray arrives in Vienna, with his American band and moves in next door. The second-quarter examinations of the school were held on Friday of last week and Monday and Tuesday of this week.

The seniors had their pictures taken at the school Monday and Tuesday by cameramen from the Falk Studios of Boston. Group pictures were taken of the senior play cast, basketball squads, tennis team, baseball team, and the debating team.

Wednesday afternoon the student body witnessed the intramural games in the new gymnasium. The blue team defeated the purple team in the first contest while the orange team defeated the red team in the other game. The standing to date in the intramural league is as follows:

A surprise party visits the home of D. P. Bagley, Spencer, and as token of good will presents him with a piano stool. Miss May Grady makes the presentation.

Labor street brawls are very much in evidence this week in Spencer. The army of workers keeps increasing but there is no great change except in the tactics of the strikers, which has finally landed one man in jail for ninety days and the other into exile.

The selectmen appoint these special officers for strike duty: A. W. Luckey, Walton, Henry Bemis, A. D. Putnam, Thomas J. Keleher, P. W. Belcher, Charles H. Sibley, E. B. Stone, J. J. ### Will It Be a Judicially Minded or Politically Minded Supreme Court?

That the fundamental law of the land should be altered, or machinery set up so that that law—specifically the Constitution—may be abrogated or amended at every whirl of the wind in popular demand, is an unsound and dangerous idea. He who is reported to have said that "the people are always right" was not more than fifty percent correct. We have on record too many instances of the people reversing their opinions in a short space of time. As an example, the voters of Massachusetts, as we have noted before, and their legislators, right about faced three times in as many years on the direct primary legislation and the party enrollment question. What happened in the matter of the prohibition amendment is too recent history to need further comment. Were it not for the policy of Jew baiting and anti-clerical attitude of the Nazi policy what would be the general opinion of the German people today, as compared with the intense hatred of 1917, stimulated as it was by propaganda of various sorts, pro-German and anti-German? People are too easily swept off their feet momentarily by excitement and clever propaganda. Do we forget the NRA which was hailed with such acclaim for a moment, but which Congress, yielding to changed opinion, was ready to kick out of the window if the Supreme Court had not by unanimous decision invalidated it? The requirement that in changing our Constitution it must be ratified by two-thirds of the states, is a saving proposition and shows the wisdom of the fathers who framed that great instrument, because it affords time for reflection and for artificially stimulated fever to cool off. That usually "the people are right" in the end may not be denied. But the old maxim: "Write your letter today and mail it tomorrow when you are mad," has its counterpart in this subject under discussion. Hence any law empowering anybody to change the complexion of the Supreme Court at the whim of an individual or collection of individuals in answer to the popular feeling or individual notion of the moment is not only dangerous but—in the light of history—an unnecessary thing to do. The celebrated publicist, Mr. George Sokolsky, in his address at Worcester Monday night, put it concisely and accurately when he stated that we did not need more law but enforcement of the laws we have and which are being ignored—taking the motor industry strike as an example, which he said was an illegal strike; because all of them, the General Motors Co., the strikers and the government, were not acting legally. We call people poor sports who want to change or kill the umpire every time a decision goes against the home team. At any rate we would not think we were helping the old ball game if we abolished the umpire entirely, and that's what Mr. Sokolsky maintains, viz., that President Roosevelt's move would not mean the "jacking" or "upacking" of the Supreme Court, but its actual abolition in favor of somebody else determining what is not law for the moment. To have stable government and prevent unrest we must have confidence in some court of last resort—and the Supreme Court, until now, for the most part, has had the confidence of the people generally. The present day attacks upon the conclusions of its members is certainly not helping make the country safe for democracy, if we may twist about a historical statement of President Wilson. That court of last resort should not be a politically-minded but a judicially-minded body, and any movement tending in essence to make it a political offshoot of the executive or legislative branch of the government might one day be the factor which provoked revolution, because it is not beyond the realm of human possibilities that some day a consummate rascal might occupy the White House.

Is the United States Successful in Colonization?

That the United States is not doing too well in colonization is a thought that is very definitely impressed upon one who has had opportunity to contrast the condition of the natives of Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, United States possessions, with any of the other West Indies that are under the dominion of the British, French or Dutch. The manner of living—or existing—would be putting it more adequately—of the natives in Porto Rico is deplorable and almost unbelievable. The result of improper diet or lack of sufficient food, and any sort of sanitation that could be called such, and life in the huts that serve as habitations and their surroundings, who look undernourished, the children particularly seemingly suffering from malnutrition, undersized, with poor teeth, etc. One might believe that these conditions were about what one might expect in the tropics, were it not for contrast with the natives of the nearby islands of Guadalupe, Granada, Trinidad or Curacao, where they are somewhat better housed, certainly much cleaner and better dressed and showing a much stronger and healthier physical appearance. If one remarks upon these conditions and comparisons he is likely to be met with the statement that things were much worse before the United States took possession and the blame placed upon the indifference of the old Spanish government. All of which may be true, because we had no opportunity of seeing things in those days, but by the wildest stretch of imagination one could hardly think of conditions that could be much worse than those in the outlying districts of Porto Rico. Of course the people are poor, the wages being small, and it may be that too much of the revenue goes for the omnipresent rum, yet rum is just as common on the other islands. One may well conclude that God's sunshine, in which the natives live without much in the way of clothing between themselves and the sun's rays, is the agent that prevents general pestilence. Having assumed the responsibility of administering the affairs of these islands it would seem that in justice to itself this country should start upon a general housecleaning like that accomplished in the Panama Canal zone. It is perhaps true that the natives don't care to be shifted into a higher plane of living, but that should not prevent the government tackling the job and proving that it is not so far behind the other countries in colonization. It is surely a great contrast between filthy rural Porto Rico and "pizen new" Dutch Curacao. In spite of our boasted progress it sort of takes us down a peg to find that some other countries do some things better than we do, though we are justified in boasting that we do most things better than the others.

TOWN ESTIMATES FOR 1937

Indications That a Raise in Tax Rate Is in Sight

The selectmen have compiled the following estimates for 1937, after conference with the various department heads. These have yet to undergo examination and endorsement of the finance committee.

The total amount to be raised, aside from what may be authorized by special articles in the town warrant, will exceed $200,000, which is perhaps an all time high for routine and regular appropriations. It looks very much like a substantial increase in the tax rate the present year.

Light Reductions On Domestic and General Rates Explained

An explanation of the new reductions in domestic and general lighting rates, effective March 1, 1937, has been announced by Burton R. Smith, manager, as follows:

"Previously there were two domestic rates but under the new plan there will be only one. Domestic service rate A is available for all domestic purposes in an individual private dwelling or an individual apartment. The new rate follows: 75 cents for the first three kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month, plus 7.5 cents per kilowatt hour for the next 85 kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month, plus 4.5 cents per kilowatt hour for the next 90 kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month in excess of the above. The cost of electricity under this rate shall not exceed ten and a half cents per kilowatt hour, provided that the total cost of service be not less than the minimum charge herein specified. Minimum charge, $9.00 per year.

"General lighting rate C is available for all lighting purposes and for motors aggregating not more than two horsepower of rated capacity when used in conjunction with a lighting installation. The new rate—11.5 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 100 kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month, plus 8.5 cents per kilowatt hour for the next 200 kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month, plus 6.5 cents per kilowatt hour for the next 200 kilowatt hours of electricity delivered each month, plus 5.5 cents per kilowatt hour for all electricity delivered in excess of 500 kilowatt hours. Minimum charge, 75 cents per month.

The average domestic rate user who uses between twenty and twenty-five kilowatts will save about twenty-two cents a month. The average general rate user who uses between seventy-five or eighty kilowatts will save about $1.10 per month.

The increase of the police department appropriation from $2500 to $3600 means, we understand, that the selectmen favor the appointment of a regular day patrolman.

The town accountant is asking for an increase of $300 in his salary, and an increase in the appropriation for assessors' salaries contemplates, we are told, an increase of about $300 in the salary of the clerk of that board, who happens to be the same individual, E. H. Gaudette.

The assessors have been paid on an hourly basis for the number of hours which they have billed to the selectmen. This has resulted in the appropriation being substantially overdrawn. There is a feeling that it would be better to put the assessors on a salary basis. The sum of $600 for the clerk is suggested by one faction, with $500 for the chairman and $300 each for the other three members of the board. All of the assessors save one last year, we understand, received amounts in excess of the above.

The school department is asking for an increased amount, as the cost of upkeep of the new plant, in spite of consolidation of the junior high with the high school in the same building, is increased and there is still some furniture necessary to moderately equip the plant.

What the Labor Racketeer Is Doing to Industry

Quite the most disturbing factor in an uneasy labor situation in this country is the so-called "labor racketeer," who is putting legitimate labor organizations on the spot, giving them an unjustifiable reputation for crookedness and discouraging honest-to-goodness labor organizers. Between the two elements sits the innocent—or almost innocent—employer who is penalized no matter which way he turns. The extent to which the racketeer has "bored into" labor organizations and lined up with the Communists, whose avowed purpose, ably-financed by Moscow, is to destroy by force the capitalist system in vogue in this country, is exposed in a very striking manner in the book, "This Labor Union Racket," by Edward Dean Sullivan. Yet Sullivan looks upon the unionizing of labor with a sympathetic eye, and is alarmed, and the public will be seriously alarmed if they read this book, at the way in which the racketeer has introduced the strong arm methods of the prohibition regime and beer rackets into the labor market, with the purpose of bleeding both sides for their own pockets. The manner in which these racketeers have by methods-devious and sinful got control of many labor organizations and set up rules by which they may perpetuate themselves in office and enrich themselves at the expense of the real workers, while they loll in luxury, is really astounding. Millions collected in dues and assessments from the workers, for which no accounting is made, perhaps often used to hire thugs to intimidate and injure the very man from whom the dues were collected, is a revelation, which, however, is supported by Mr. Sullivan with evidence, facts, dates and names. The conclusion that he draws, similar to that of many others, is that we will never be able eventually to secure reasonable peace until labor organizations are incorporated, made financially responsible and properly audited by reliable authorities, and until we have copied some of the laws which have been adopted in England by which the law takes a hand in regulating the affairs of the unions as well as the employers. Certainly the biggest job that labor has at the present moment, if we are to make up our judgment from some of the facts presented in this book, is to purge itself of these parasites who are enjoying an easy living off the hard-earned money of the workers, not to say anything about the other source of revenue derived by black-jacking contractors and other employers of labor. It is going to be a nasty job to tackle because the racketeer does not work too easily with schemes that are fashioned by the labor union. He has worked them out himself into positions of authority. It used to be had enough when men of little or no judgment and no experience in handling men or affairs got to the head of labor organizations, and who never having been in authority before had a yen to display that authority. In that case the battle was against ignorance or incompetence. But now we have an astute, conscienceless and reckless bunch of pirates and parasites to deal with, who are a whole lot worse than anything the old days provided, and labor certainly has a job on its hands to rid itself of this incubus, because it cannot go far without public sentiment back of it and the racketeers are doing much to destroy that sentiment.

Some of the Old Ways Were Not So Bad

While it may be and probably is true that the state system of town accounting now in vogue in most towns affords the state bureau of accounts reports which are more readily compiled by them, and by which the various town expenditures are listed under the same denominators, thus making the state reports on statistics uniform and comparable, yet in most towns the system is very unsatisfactory, so far as giving the voters adequate information as to how their money is spent. At least that is true of the Spencer report, where the expenditures by departments are lumped in the order of periodic disbursement. In other words the expenditures of the various departments are not broken down in the report so that the voter is able to determine what each town officer draws in salary and other perquisites; how much the superintendents of the various departments get in the way of remuneration; what the laborers and foremen of the street department receive; how much is paid per hour for trucks, and how many hours they worked; what salaries the school teachers, superintendent and janitors receive; and so on down the list. When one questions the lack of adequate information he may perhaps be met with the statement that the books are open for anybody to see, who wishes. But who wants to be classed as a busy-body and general nuisance by going to the town officers for this information? The information contained in last week's copy of this paper, insufficient though it is, is about the only information the voters will get upon many of these items. They will not find much of it in the town officers. We are aware that the printing of this information may add a small amount to the cost of producing the town report, but are not the voters entitled to the information if it can be furnished at a reasonable cost? How are they to act intelligently, for example, upon an appropriation of several thousand dollars for a department if they do not have the estimates broken down, so that they may know how much is being spent, what for and to whom the money is paid?

What Kind of a Man Do You Hold Up As An Ideal?

If it is true, as some think, that one shows what kind of a person he himself is, by the persons he idolizes, or holds up as ideal or pattern to imitate, then some have little reason to feel particularly self-satisfied. Although one may walk the straight and narrow path himself; and live the life of a virtuous citizen, must there not be something radically wrong with his character after all, if he knowingly supports and endorses men in public life who are dishonest, grafters, spoliars, winking at crime, incompetent, unethical, afraid to perform the obvious duties which, in consequence have given solemn oaths to truthfully perform? If one ignores all these failings because the office seeker is a good fellow, belongs to our lodge, is of the same national descent, can make an eloquent speech, sing well, or dance better, or is affable and a good hand-shaker, or one we applaud because he is "smart enough to get away with it," we might ask ourselves, what's the matter with us? It must be true that we are to a degree morally as bad as the false heroes whom we have set up for adulation.

Super-Families of Seals

Seals may be divided into two super-families, including the hair or true seals and the fur seals, walrus and sea lions. These super-families differ from each other in important respects in structure, appearance, habits, disposition, and method of locomotion, states a writer in the Indianapolis News.

The animal that produces the seal-skin of commerce is properly the fur seal, which is a native of the northern Pacific and Arctic oceans, and is found chiefly in the island of Bering sea and contiguous waters. Three principal herds of these animals are the American or Alaskan, the Russian and the Robben Island herd.

These herds constitute three distinct breeding grounds, feeding grounds, and routes of migration, and the individuals of each differ in form, color, and in character of fur. Only the young males called "bachelors" are killed for their skins, many of which are used for fur coats.

Agate as Most Precious

Of all the folklores surrounding various stones, jewels and semi-precious stones, that connected with agate is one of the most interesting, says the Chicago Field Museum News.

In ancient Persia the Magi believed that agates could stop a storm or hurricane. For this purpose the stones were thrown into a boiling cauldron, and if they turned the water cold they were regarded as possessing the necessary magical power.

According to the ideas of the Magi, the stones, to be really efficacious, had to be fastened with lion's hair; they rejected hyena's hair as being provocative of family discord. An agate containing only one color was believed by the Magi to render an athlete invincible.

Horses Versus Cows

In an article in Spur, it is said that when a horse is sick it lies down whereas a sick cow will stand. Contrary to her usual habits. When a horse is frightened he runs against the wind, the cow with the wind. It is also stated that when two animals are drinking at the same trough, if the horse drinks first there will not be enough water for either. If the cow drinks first, there will be plenty for both.

As a result of walking beside camels during certain seasons, manes are given three to five pints of camel's milk per day to supplement their meager feed of herbs, roots and flowers. The Arab rides his horse without bit, whip, spurs or blinkers. Generally the Bedouin rides without a saddle and with just a headstall and single rope.

"The Goose Hangs High"

The expression "The goose hangs high" is generally regarded as a corruption of "The goose hangs high." The cry of the wild geese high up in the air is considered a good sign, a sign of fair weather.

SOME HINTS FOR INFORMAL PARTY

Suggestions on Menu and Table Arrangements.

By EDITH M. BARBER

SOME readers are interested in informal parties, as requests for suggestions prove. Perhaps you will all be interested in the questions and answers.

"I am having a buffet supper for about fifteen people and would like some ideas in the way of menus and table arrangements. May a punch, instead of cocktails, be served? It seems to me that it would be easier to serve." Let's take the last question first. Punch is easier for a buffet supper, because it can be made ahead of time and also because guests can help themselves from the punch bowl. Of course, some cocktails can also be mixed ahead of time, but the shaker must be refilled often unless you have an unusually large one or several at hand.

Whatever menu you serve, food and plates, silver and napkins should be arranged on a large table in order. First plates, then the hot dishes, salad, bread, relishes, then silver and napkins. If coffee is served with the meal it is usually better to put it on a separate table, unless the latter is unusually large.

Now about the menu: The main dish is usually hot and must be selected with regard to the fact that it is to be eaten with a fork from a plate balanced precariously, unless, of course, you have enough small tables so that each guest may have a solid surface at his command. Unless, however, you actually set card tables, meats, such as chicken, which demands carving, should be avoided. Very tender cold meats or cold meat loaf may be used if you like. Otherwise, choose the following for your main course: Veal paprika with sour cream sauce, oysters in cream, creamed lobster, creamed lobster or crab with mushrooms, chicken pie or a casserole of meat.

For the salad select mixed greens or grapefruit with grapes or avocado with romaine, lettuce or endive, combined with a french dressing. Salad may be served in a bowl, or may be arranged in lettuce cups for individual servings on a large platter.

From another reader comes a request for a menu which may be served on the sixteenth day of March, 1937, to guests seated in comfortable chairs around the room. She asks if beer may be served with lobster Newburg and if soup or salad could be omitted. Beer may be offered to guests, but there should be coffee as well for those who prefer it. Soup is seldom served for supper of this sort unless there is plenty of help in the kitchen. Any one of the salads mentioned used in the buffet menu may be chosen. Her last question concerns the serving of a meal by one maid or young person. The guests are ready, the filled plates may be brought in and offered with the napkins and silver to each guest.

Beef on Daube.
8 strips of bacon
3 pounds round steak, cut into two-inch pieces
Flour
3 cup water
3/4 cup red wine
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3 cloves garlic
9 onions
9 carrots, sliced
12 peppercorns
8 cloves
4 bay leaves

Cook bacon in skillet until light brown, but not crisp. Drain and cut into small pieces. Sprinkle the beef with flour and brown on all sides in bacon fat. Add water and salt, bring to a boil and turn into large casserole. Add remaining ingredients and bacon, cover and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Veal Paprika.
2 pounds veal steak
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons fat
1 1/2 cups water
3/4 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon paprika

Cut the veal into two-inch pieces and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cut gashes in the garlic and cook in fat three minutes. Add meat and sear on all sides until light brown. Add water, cover and simmer over a low heat for one hour. Add cream and paprika, reheat. Remove garlic and serve with fried noodles.

Lobster a la Newburg.
2 pounds lobster
1/4 cup thin cream
1 tablespoon flour
Salt
Paprika and nutmeg
1 cup thin cream
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sherry

Remove meat from cooked lobster and cut into cubes. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings and add cream gradually. Add lobster and when thick add egg yolks and flavoring, mixed with some of the hot sauce.

Hands Reveal Character

Anyone who sits with hands loosely clasped in the lap is a quiet, well-balanced mind, while the nervous person tries to control nervousness by tightly gripping the hands together, states a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. One who has a habit of clasping hands with fingers entwined is not keeping strictly to the truth, while one who partially covers the mouth with a hand while talking has certain knowledge, but is trying desperately not to reveal it. A person who remains seated while conversing with another who is standing finds it very difficult to tell an untruth and attempts to do so is easily detected by the person standing.

Saint Bernard of Mastiff Family

Unlike many other breeds, the origin of the Saint Bernard is a bit hazy, but early historians have agreed this type of dog belongs to the Mastiff family. The ancient records produce evidence that Mastiffs were brought from Asia, and used by the Romans as herders of sheep, besides being kept as watch dogs at army outposts. It has also been established that Roman soldiers used large dogs to guide sheep over the mountain passes, one of which was the Saint Bernard Pass, no more than a pack mule path. A hostile tribe destroyed this path and cut off travel over the mountains around 850 A. D.

Lenning, Scandinavian Rodent

The Lenning is a Scandinavian rodent, about five inches in length, noted for its pugnacity, its productivity and its curious mass migrations. They eat as they travel, and breed with amazing rapidity. They drive away all other animals in their path, attacking cows, reindeer and even man, fearlessly.

Mrs. Walter Dubois Dies

There was true sorrowing in town Sunday afternoon and a most sincere outpouring of sympathy for a bereaved family when it became known that Mrs. Walter J. Dubois had passed away.

Known as a true neighbor, a sincere and earnest Christian she was a well loved personage here. A week ago she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and a happy crowd of relatives joined the couple to make the day one of real happiness. At its close Mrs. Dubois expressed the opinion that she had concluded one of the very happiest days of her entire life and stated she was grateful to her God for granting her this special privilege of seeing her entire family united in health and joy, a gathering not always possible to families. On Tuesday, which was the real date of her anniversary, she was stricken seriously ill and never rallied, despite every medical aid. The family group, which had gathered in joy the previous week gathered once more a heart broken family group.

Mrs. Dubois was Miss Elizabeth Goode, previous to her marriage and was born in Boston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Goode. She lived the greater part of her life here, being educated in the local public schools, graduating from Brookfield high in 1881. After graduating she engaged as a public school teacher here and in East Brookfield. Fifty years ago last Tuesday she married Walter J. Dubois and thirty-six years ago they came here to live.

She was an ideal mother and a genuine friend, an ardent worker in St. Mary's parish and a most worthwhile citizen of the town.

She was a member of Our Lady's Sodality. Although impaired health forced a retirement from active work in the church she always maintained a keen interest and an ever willing aid to all church and town betterment.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Walter J. Jr. of North Brookfield, a clerk at the Gaudette Store here, and C. Alfred Dubois, present superintendent of the Lyman School for Boys in Westboro, and for eleven years master of the Williams junior high school in Chelsea; three daughters, Irene, wife of Leon Gadaire, Miss Marguerite Dubois of New Haven, Conn. and Miss Marie Dubois of this town; two sisters, Annie, wife of Irving Farrar of West Norwell, and May, wife of Abbott Richardson of Brockton, and nine grandchildren.

The funeral was held Wednesday from her late home on Pleasant street followed by a solemn high Mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's church at nine o'clock. The mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Leo Rock. The curate, Rev. Andrew Grady was deacon and sub-deacon was Rev. McCullough of St. Joseph's church, North Brookfield.

Father Smith of Chelsea was seated within the sanctuary. Relatives and friends attended from South Norwalk, Conn., New Haven, Conn., Springfield, Westboro, Chelsea, Boston, Worcester, Brockton, West Norwell, Spencer, the Warrens, Palmer, and the Brookfields.

The floral tributes were most beautiful and the room in which Mrs. Dubois laid was banked with flowers. There were quantities of spiritual offerings as well.

The funeral cortege was the largest here in many years.

Interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery North Brookfield, with John F. Lyons of North Brookfield in charge.

The bearers were James Fenton, William Fenton, Dr. John F. Clancy, William F. O'Brien of this town, William Walker of Framingham, and John McDonald of New Haven, Conn.

The O. G. C. of the Congregational church met Tuesday night with Mrs. Percival Ridley. Mrs. Ridley was assisted in serving by Mrs. Clayton Steadman and Mrs. Frank Mellen.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack LaConte of Charlton and Chester Tiberii, student at Massachusetts State College, Amherst, were guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cronin.

Miss Philippa Donahue, student at the McDuffie School for Girls, Springfield, was the weekend and holiday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Donahue.

William Fletcher, student at Yale University, New Haven, Conn., passed the weekend with relatives in Boston, and the holiday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Glover S. Fletcher.

"The Tender Spot" was the sermon topic chosen by Rev. Howard A. MacDonald for last Sunday's service of worship. Fremont N. Turgeon presided at the organ, and the choir was directed by Edward H. Ladue.

A meeting was called for last night for all persons interested in organizing a tennis club in town. The meeting was called by Roy L. Moulton, custodian of the municipal tennis courts at Community playground. The meeting was held in the fire station club-room.

Employers and Employees Confer

Employees of the North Brookfield Manufacturing Company and owners of the plant were present at the State House in Boston on Wednesday at the conference to which all parties agreed in the settlement of the strike here last week at the plant. The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration heard charges from employees that the firm paid from $5 to $8 weekly for 48 hours work, that sanitary conditions at the plant were poor and that on several occasions pay was withheld from the workers. They declared that the owners of the plant violated the minimum wage requirements for skilled workers which is $13.75 weekly. Under the terms of the four-party agreement last week the workers sought shorter hours, a minimum wage, collective bargaining and improved working conditions. Representatives of the employers told Chairman Thomas F. Curley of the board and his associates that they were unable to find skilled workers in this vicinity but they agreed, it was stated, to comply with the requirements the board fixes. Organizers, including Kate Greco of Worcester and James Gallagher of Boston, representing the I. L. G. W. U., attended and the owners, Mr. and Mrs. David Zelikow and Alex Sulzer also attended. Town Clerk Ralph Igoe, who aided in the agreement for arbitration of the dispute, also attended the conference. Forewomen at the plant here who testified for the owners refused to give their names at the conference.

Local Residents Escape Injury in Crash

Four local residents miraculously escaped serious injury Tuesday morning when the heavy sedan in which they were riding burst a tire, careened over curbing, turned over on its side and slid along the roadway on the turnpike between Westboro and Southboro while the party was riding to Boston. Those in the machine were: William H. Minns, St. John street, operator of the car, which was owned by Brainerd H. Smith of 53 Summer street. With Mr. Minns were Mrs. Brainerd H. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. William Cary Duncan. None of the four received injuries but all were badly shaken up by the crash. Mr. Minns, who is chauffeur for Mr. Smith, was driving the car towards Boston when it suddenly lurched against the curbing of the turnpike. The car careened over the center banking, struck the edge at a rear wheel and turned over on its side and came to rest in the opposite side of the roadway. The four occupants returned to their homes here Tuesday. The machine, which was badly damaged, was towed from the scene to the Pullam garage here.

New Comedy Featured at Star Theatre

One of the season's most refreshing and amusing comedies will be the New Star's attraction for next Sunday and Monday. The title is "Theodora Goes Wild" and it is a film you'll enjoy as much as any you have seen. It presents Irene Dunne as a delightfully adept comedienne. Miss Dunne plays the part of Theodora Lynn, an extremely proper young lady who resides with two prim maiden aunts. Neither the aunts or the neighbors in Lynnfield know that Theodora is also Caroline Adams, author of sexy novels. When Theodora pays a secret visit to New York and her publisher, she meets Michael Grant (Melvyn Douglas), an artist a bit on the carefree side, who follows her back to Lynnfield and hangs around until he creates a village scandal. Theodora promptly dashes to New York, moves into Michael's apartment and creates a nice little scandal herself, since the frantic Michael has a wife somewhere in the background. Their romantic turnabout is hilariously funny in the capable hands of Miss Dunne and Mr. Douglas, and much credit is also due Richard Boleslawski's splendid direction. Besides offering a brand new Irene Dunne, it's swell entertainment. For next Wednesday and Thursday, "Champagne Waltz," starring Gladys Swarthout and Fred MacMurray, will be the feature. "Also don't forget that every Thursday night is Bank Nite at this popular playhouse.

A double feature program will be presented for next Friday and Saturday with "Mind Your Own Business" with Charles Ruggles and Alice Brady as one, and a Hopalong Cassidy story, "Trail Dust," as the companion feature.

Lenten devotions opened Thursday night for the Congregational people in addition to a special series of Lenten sermons delivered each Sunday. The Thursday meetings will be at individual homes and will have one local and one visiting speaker. The meeting this week was with Misses Martha and Harriet Ormsby. The project by Alvin Magowan was on "John Elliott, Apostle to the Indians." The visiting speaker was Mrs. James Durban of South Africa.

Finance Committee's Proposals Are Largely Adopted

At Spencer Town Meeting Held Last Evening

Only Upset is In Appropriation For Street Lighting

Only about two hundred attended the annual town meeting Thursday night when $243,091.43. Last year $252,631.98 was appropriated.

Practically all of the finance committee recommendations were approved by the voters, which the exception of the committee's recommendation for street lights of $5000, which was raised to $6500. Under the new plan the town will probably see new light fixtures, larger lamps and all night lighting.

A town warrant consisting of twenty-six articles was acted upon by the voters, several of them being routine articles which were passed upon without opposition.

The meeting was called to order at 7:30 by Wm. J. Heffernan, moderator. Among the routine articles disposed of were these:

Voted to accept the reports of the town officers as printed. The selectmen were authorized to defend and prosecute suits on behalf of the town and the collector was authorized to use the means of collecting taxes which the treasurer may have when appointed collector.

Town property was left in the care of the same hands as last year. Authority was given the treasurer with the approval of the selectmen to make temporary loans in anticipation of the taxes of 1937 and 1938.

The sum of $100 was appropriated for the Worcester County Extension service in behalf of boys' and girls' club work and for the benefit of agriculture. George B. Treadwell was appointed director of this work.

The firemen were voted the same compensation as in 1936.

Authority was given the water department to use the receipts of that department, amounting to $12,500 in one case and $2706.23 in another case for the use of that department.

Moderator Heffernan reappointed the following members of the finance committee for three years: Charles E. Allen, Lewis D. Bemis, Frank Collette Jr., Nathan E. Craig and Stephen Dufault. Article eleven was to see if the town would vote to raise and appropriate a sum of money to be used in carrying out certain Works Progress Administration Projects, Administration and Expenses. The finance committee recommended that $3500 be appropriated. Roger Warren moved that the report of the finance committee be accepted. W. O. Capen asked that the voters be given an explanation of where this money was going to be spent. Frederick B. Traill explained that $2500 would be used for grading at the high school and $1000 would be used for repairs at the dam in Wire Village.

Article twelve was to see if the town would vote to raise and appropriate a sum of money for the improvement of Main street; said money to be used in conjunction with any money which may be allotted by the state or county, or both, for this purpose, or take any other action in relation thereto. The finance committee recommended that $2500 be appropriated and this was accepted by the voters.

The article to see if the town would install an electric light opposite the home of Arthur Geoffrion, 90 Mechanic street; on motion of Robert Kittredge was referred to the selectmen for investigation.

The strangest and most peculiar action occurred on article twenty, which was to see if the town would authorize the selectmen to grant an easement over a strip of its land on the easterly side of Seven Mile River to the New England Power Co.; the strip to be sixty feet in width and to be used for the transmission of high and low voltage electric current and for telephone use. William A. Thibault moved that the town grant the New England Power Co. the easement. W. O. Capen spoke against the proposition because he thought the town should get paid for the easement. The moderator asked for a standing vote and the result was twenty-eight in the affirmative and twenty-nine in the negative.

The voters authorized the moderator to appoint a committee of seven to investigate the advisability of disposing of the town farm and report at the next annual town meeting. The moderator appointed this committee: Walter V. Prouty, Frederick B. Traill, Henry J. Lacaire, G. Henry Wilson, Edward Desplaines, Hector Letendre and Thomas Casey.

In the selectmen's estimates there was an appropriation of $6500 asked for street lighting. The finance committee's recommendation was for $5000, or no increase over last year. When the appropriation was brought before the voters John L. Mulcahy asked Burton R. Smith, manager of the Spencer Gas Co., to explain to voters the new street lighting plan that an additional $1500 might be used for. Mr. Smith told of the new plan which consisted of new fixtures, larger lamps and all night lighting. He also said that the company was willing to buy back the old lighting equipment that would mean between $350 to $450 that could be placed against the new appropriation. Mr. Mulcahy again took the floor and told of the dark streets in town and what a great aid to safety the new lighting plan would be. He amended the original motion that called for the acceptance of $5000 recommended by the finance committee, and asked the voters to approve the selectmen's original estimate of $6500. Charles E. Allen, a member of the finance committee, took the floor and stated that the town's debt ratio was the highest of any town in the state. He said that was one of the main reasons why the finance committee had cut the appropriation. Mr. Mulcahy's motion was put to a vote and was approved by the voters.

Considerable discussion came from the floor on the recommendation of the finance committee that the town accountant's salary be increased $300. W. O. Capen objected to one man holding three jobs and also objected to the town accountant auditing his own books as was necessary for him to do while employed by the street department doing clerical work. Mr. Gaudette spoke at length in his own behalf and told of the long hours it was necessary for him to put in on the town accountant job. Henry L. Whitcomb told that the state accountant had praised the work of Mr. Gaudette. Representative Rice spoke in Mr. Gaudette's behalf and said that the town of Spencer had set an example for other towns in the efficient way its accounting department had been operated since Mr. Gaudette had charge.

An increase of $300 in Mr. Gaudette's salary was approved by the voters as was a $300 increase for Henry L. Whitcomb, treasurer and $300 increase in Mr. Gaudette's salary as an assessor.

Armorteds Defeat Fitchburg 34 to 30

The Armorteds and the Independent Look team of Fitchburg battled it out in a basketball game at the Town hall last Friday night and after a thrilling final quarter the Armorteds once again came through with victory. Before they did they had to play some desperate and sizzling basketball and were as close as the fact when a window of the Town hall was smashed. The game was in Fitchburg's favor until the final period. The Grabert twins and Wiley had managed to keep the local boys in close touch and in the final quarter they came up on even terms. With about a minute to go the score was 30 to 30 and John Lane managed to get a basket. White followed with one and the game was over in a few seconds. The Armorteds are the town basketball champions and the game again demonstrated that Fred Grabert has a great eye for the basket. He scored several baskets from mid-floor while playing a stellar defensive game. The Town hall took a beating when several players scrambled around an unprotected window facing Main street. Brown, Fitchburg forward, was pushed through the window and escaped with only a slight cut. He was treated by Dr. Thomas J. O'Boyle. Dr. O'Boyle had been called to the hall a short time before to treat a sprained ankle suffered by Robert Varum while his Rochester mates were dropping a hard fought game to the Spencer Collegians to the score of 40 to 32. Small was the hero in the Spencer victory. In the first game of the triple-header the local League of Youth team lost to Palmer 27 to 14. The Armorteds playing in Oxford Saturday night were defeated by the St. Roch team 46 to 36.

Bing Crosby Picture Featured at Star

Bing Crosby's new picture, "Pennies From Heaven," will be featured at the Star theatre next Sunday and Monday. It is a crowd as usual and is lustily supported by young Edith Fellows, playing an engaging part who is something like the little girl of Mother Goose ancestry. . . . sometimes "very good" and sometimes "horrid." The picture has Bing as a happy-go-lucky guy who wanders about the countryside strumming guitar and hoop-dooping love ballads to the world in general. He meets Edith Fellows and her grandfather (Donald Meek), and spends much time in trying to keep Edith out of the clutches of the county trustee officer. The trustee officer is Madge Evans. One of the high spots of the picture is a cafe scene with Lewis Armstrong, the dusky dispenser of song and hot trumpet, rendering "Skellington in the Cloud." One of Bing's best songs is "Close So Do I." Edith Fellows, who portrays the screen's nastiest bristles, a difficult part to perfection. Madge Evans plays the love interest.

Joseph Durkin Elected Selectman

Monday was an ideal voting day with no weather alibi for not being at the polls to vote personal opinion on town officials for the year. Cars were at the disposal of all who did not care to walk and to from the Town hall. The polls opened at six a. m. and closed at four p. m. The vote was announced before six p. m.

A total of 545 of the 734 registered voters cast ballots.

At the morning session it was voted to adjourn the business meeting until 1:30 o'clock Saturday.

There were two contests and in the major one for selectman, Joseph J. Durkin, war veteran and a young man running for this office for the initial time, came through with a win, polling the highest vote for this office. The two veterans, whose yearly election for a term of a century or more speaks for itself in so far as the townfolk esteem and affection go, were re-elected, namely Albert H. Bellows, and Arthur W. Mitchell.

Chlorinator For Town Water

Announcement was made this week of the purchase of a chlorinator for town water. It will be installed at the pumping station soon and it is expected, according to the announcement, that it will be in operation during the latter part of next week. Dr. Windsor R. Smith of the local water board, stated that the step was one which many other towns have taken and that in time all towns with spring water will have the same system. The cost of the affair will be about $800, according to Dr. Smith. Residents of the town have complained for several years that the water has tasted badly, especially during the fall. They described the taste as "fishy" and it is partly because of the complaints and is an effort to remove the condition that the chlorinator is being installed. Under its arrangement for water systems it will infuse four pounds of chlorine gas into 1,000,000 gallons of water and it will also reduce the bacteria in the water. Dr. Smith explained that with floods of the past few years much additional bacteria has been entering reservoirs in many sections. The chlorine gas will remove much of the so-called "fishy" taste, which was not caused by fish but by a fungus growth in the water, known as "algae." State water officials have advocated the installation for some time.

Spelling Shakespeare

The name of William Shakespeare has been variously spelled Shakespeare, Shakspeare, Shaksper, by the different printers and publishers of his plays; but, in his dedications to "Venus and Adonis" and "The Rape of Lucrece," he himself spelled it Shakespeare. The form Shakespeare has been in use since the publication of the First Folio Edition of his works. Dowden, Furnival, and Delius all use that form.

Use of "Franks" in England

The Mirror, London, 1832, contains an amusing anecdote relating to the use of "franks" in England. It is that when only a "nobody" had to pay postage in England. The Princess Augusta had asked Lord Walsingham for a "frank" and he had written one for her in such admirable characters that after wandering over England, it had been opened and delivered to her as "illegible." When she complained to Lord Walsingham, he wrote another for her in so legible a hand that it was at once returned to her with the notation "forgery."

Beavers' Dams

Dams built by beavers depend upon topography, the depth of water, the distance between banks and the availability of construction material. All members of a beaver colony aid in repairing dams. Even the kits take a hand in the work. Males are first to attempt repairs, but when they fail, every member of the colony takes a hand.

Comets Contain Gases
The spectroscopic rays shown comets contain a number of well known terrestrial gases, such as hydrogen, which makes up the bulk of the air; methane, the most important constituent of natural gas; and cyanogen, a poisonous gas composed of carbon and nitrogen. When a comet gets close to the sun, and the presence of sodium and iron in the same form of matter as in the sun, it always points away from the sun. It must be made up of rarefied gas or gaseous ions being away from the head by the pressure of the sun's radiation.

Labor's Right to Do Wrong

Under the above caption in the current issue of the national weekly, America, appears the editorial reproduced below. The editor's comment has particular force, because if there has been an outspoken advocate of the proper rights of labor and critic of whatever has been wrong with capital, it has been America, yet it follows its usual policy with consistency as to the rights of property, when it says:

"Should Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., enter one of the homes of John L. Lewis and refuse to leave, Mr. Lewis would be justified in calling the police. Should Mr. Sloan while away the hours by disrupting the cookstove, smashing the radio, and soaking the rugs with acid, it seems to us that Mr. Lewis would be further justified in swearing out a warrant for Mr. Sloan's arrest, and in suing him thereafter for exemplary damages. Mr. Lewis would not recognize Mr. Sloan's right to occupy his premises and to destroy his property. 'Nor, while our Constitutions endure, would any court.

Probably with some such conclusion in mind, Governor Hoffmann, of New Jersey, has served public notice on the Committee for Industrial Organization that he will tolerate no 'sit-down' strike of the Flint variety. A labor union, he recites, has no more right to take possession of a factory than a band of gangsters has to take possession of a bank. If to this unlawful entry, the strikers add destruction of property, armed resistance to the officials, and defiance of the courts, 'there is no difference between these two groups either in principle or in degree.'

Nor does the Governor shrink from the consequences of his position. He wishes to keep the peace, and he has given prospective lawbreakers fair warning. Should this warning be disregarded, 'the entire resources of the State of New Jersey will be called into action to preserve the rights, liberties and property of its citizens, and to punish attempts to condemn the law and to subvert the authority of the Government.' Constructive rebellion will be promptly and effectively suppressed.

Our hat is off to Governor Hoffmann. No less than he, we have always fought for the rights of organized labor. But we have never fought, and at this late date do not propose to begin to fight for the right of any man, wage-earner or bloated capitalist, to do what is wrong.

If Mr. Lewis is wise, he will at once make the Governor an honorary member of the Committee for Industrial Organization. In a negative way, the Governor has supplied Mr. Lewis with the only program that will help the Committee to win the support of the public. The Governor merits the Committee's support on another count. At a time when it might be easy to condone labor's occasional excesses, he has served notice that like any other citizen the worker is subject to the God-established authority of the State.

To allow unlawful entry and destruction of property to go unpunished is to encourage brigandage. To permit workers to believe that armed resistance to officials and defiance of the courts are lawful means of carrying on a strike is to encourage sedition and revolt. Organized labor must not be permitted to conclude that immoral means may be used to promote a good end. It is easy enough to attack capitalism, but labor's trust funds will not hesitate to attack labor when labor is wrong."

Yet in spite of the above conclusions, we well expressed we hear a man high up in the government at Washington practically endorsing the 'sit-down' strike as "a new technique adopted by labor to enforce its demands."

What Do You Do About Taxes?

It is all well enough to scold and protest against the waste and extravagance in federal and state expenditures, yet a portion of the tax burden is our own direct responsibility. And what do we do about it? Only a very small proportion of the voters at our town meetings are economically minded. That is not a popular attitude. To be sure niggardliness is not economy. It is often true that it is economy to spend money. But that should not deter us from examining municipal expenditures to see if we are really getting our money's worth and if we would not be as well off without the disbursements. Taxes in this country are the highest in the nation's history, according to a report of fifteen research experts working under the direction of the Twentieth Century Fund. The annual tax bill averages $100 for every man, woman and child in the country. If government borrowing were ended and expenditures were not reduced, the average annual tax would be $115 to $120 per person, the report showed. The largest portion of the tax goes to the Federal government, the specialists reported, with forty-four cents on each tax dollar, or $44 a person going to the U. S. treasury. Local governments collect an average of $36 a year from every individual while the remaining $20 per year per person goes to the state governments. Taking Federal, State and local tax together, more than one-fifth of the national income is used to pay taxes, it was pointed out.

What Should Be Done With the Town Farm?

A committee was appointed at the Spencer town meeting last night to investigate the advisability of disposing of the town farm. There is no doubt as to the fact that the farm is not a profitable enterprise. About that phase of the matter there is little to be said. Yet there is the disposition of the inmates to be considered. Where and how will they be taken care of? To be sure there are not many of them these days, and if the social security plans that have been adopted work out, as some hope, there will be less need of each town carrying on such an institution. We assume that the members of the committee that has been appointed would welcome light on the matter from every source. Accordingly this paper will be glad to print letters or communications from the citizens in respect to the matter.

Garden Club Talk on Pruning

The Garden Club wishes to call the attention of all interested people to its regular meeting which will be held next Tuesday, March 9th, at 3:30 p. m. at Hotel Massachusetts with Miss Quinn as hostess.

Each member is expected to bring a friend with her, and anyone not interested in the Garden club will be cordially welcome.

"I'M MINISTER Frank Rogers, the traveling auditor," he says. The first time I'll be taking care of your petty cash. In the meantime, he says, you can get busy 'n' open the safe. 'Wan minute,' I says, 'an' when he turns he sees one wild-a-guy in me fist. 'You may be the auditor and you may not,' I says, 'but I'm the agent of this here railroad, an' you'll not lay hand on anything' 'till I see your credentials. 'I'm no sucker, I says.

The sleek young man with the bullet head removed the cigarette from his mouth long enough to inquire: "Did he produce them?" It's glad I am to have made your acquaintance, Alfie. My station is in the city, an' I don't often get out this way, but I hope you'll meet me again. We'll have yer more lit'le drink. Wake up wan more lit'le drink. Wake up wan more lit'le drink."

Fen Eagles

Fen eagles were famous in the nineteenth century for the quantities of fish they devoured off the Norfolk coast. One of them was down in Suffolk in 1810, measured nine feet across the wings. The high rewards given for their capture played a great part in their extermination. One hundred years ago, says the Montreal Herald, anybody who destroyed an eagle in the Orkneys was entitled to the gift of a hen from every household in the nearest village.

Sleighting at Zakopane

Curved and gaily painted, the native sleighs are the first thing that strike the eyes of winter visitors to Zakopane, Poland. The drivers are Goralis, or mountaineers, in white trousers, elaborately embroidered, and sheepskin waistcoats, with a little hat perched jauntily on their heads, and their sleighs are the favorite kind of winter transportation.

Flower Capital

Ghent, Belgium, where the world's first hothouse was built over 300 years ago, is called by its residents the flower capital of the world. The suburbs have miles of hothouses, in which orchids, begonias, lilies and carnations are grown for all Europe, and in summer acres of other flowers are grown in the country surrounding it.

Astral Lamps Used in 1800's

During the first half of the Nineteenth century astral lamps were in general use in the United States by families in comfortable circumstances and by professional men who needed more light than candles provided by lamps with round solid wicks or by candles. Lamps with Argand burners not only gave more light, but they distributed a softer light than his face. "I'll be lavin' ye now," he said. "I must go to meet Frank."

Rose with him. He stooped and whispered in George's ear, then followed Donlin to the street. "I didn't want George alone," said Donlin, "but he's a kleptomaniac. Well, here's my corner. Friend of mine keeps this joint. Come in and have one more lit'le drink. Wake up wan more lit'le drink. Wake up wan more lit'le drink."

Florida Wife Travels 2000 Miles to Sick Mate

A young woman alighted from a Worcester bus here last Friday night, carrying a bag of oranges under one arm and a battered suitcase under the other. She entered a local store and inquired for a "Mr. Bland." No one knew of a person by that name, but they offered to aid her in her search. She said she sought her husband, who had come here several weeks ago from Philadelphia and was working here. She had his postoffice box number but beyond that she knew little else, except that he was cold, tired, hungry and worried. She had come from Fort Lauderdale, Florida and had left there the previous Wednesday. She had come to New York by train and had come here by bus. Persons in the store aided her and directed her to several rooming houses, but at each she did not locate her husband. She returned to the store, sad-eyed and weary, and commenced to sob as she told a story of hardship, of struggles against odds and of despair coming soon in the wake of long awaited relief. With her husband and two children she had been located in Fort Lauderdale. Her husband had sought work, found none and had then come to Philadelphia where he was certain he would find employment. He found none there but noted an ad in a paper there for help needed in a local factory. He came here and was hired at the Asbestos Textile plant. He was working only a few days when he was taken ill. The illness was described as pneumonia. And then in faraway Florida his wife received a telegram that he was ill. She read it Wednesday morning and at noon time she was on the train, with the bag of oranges and the suitcase tied together with coarse rope. She had left the two children with neighbors. In New York City for the first time she had a hard time with her ungainly bundles. She commenced to cry softly in the store as she told of her plight. A kind lady present offered her a meal and shelter until she could locate her husband but declined, saying that she would do nothing until she located her sick husband. Others sought to aid her in some way. In desperation she started along Main street, met a resident and asked where other rooming houses were located. He directed her to the home of Mrs. Ella Slayton on Elm St. A touching reunion took place there and Mrs. Margaret Bland was overjoyed to find that her husband Lawrence was not so seriously ill. The world seemed rosy once again and later in the evening she returned to the store, purchased a box of ice cream for her husband and in a voice much lighter and with great cheer she told of the reunion and thanked those present who had offered aid.

William W. Bartlett Ninety-one

Monday
William W. Bartlett the town's oldest native and one of its remarkable characters, was ninety-one years old on Monday and he didn't let the severe storm interfere with his activities. He didn't stroll about as usual, because his wife is very careful about exposing him to possible illness, but he was up and around and reading and surveying weather conditions. Mr. Bartlett has the unique distinction of living in the house wherein he was born on March 15, 1846, in the house built by his father and which was one of the earlier structures built on Summer street. He was the child of Alfred W. and Mary (Dodge) Bartlett. At the age of nineteen he left here for Washington where he passed two years, the final ones of the Civil War, and then he came to Boston where he engaged in the clothing business. He has resided here in retirement at his Summer street residence since 1888 and despite his age is a familiar figure on the streets of the town every day. He is exceptionally fond of reading and possesses a remarkable memory. His philosophy on birthdays is: "I don't expect to do any celebrating; I never did, and I won't start now. It's only another day except that it is the birth date for me. I have no recipe for old age; I get up when I feel like it and go to bed when I feel like it. I eat what I want—if I can get it, and when I feel all right I am all right. I just live and let it go at that." Mr. Bartlett has been a deacon of the Congregational church for more than twenty years. During his stay in Washington he was close to the scene on the night of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Last month, on the anniversary of Lincoln's birthday, his account of his experiences that night was written for the Associated Press.

Cohan's Show Closes in New York

Local friends and many persons interested in the career of George M. Cohan, who adopted North Brookfield as his own town, were disappointed by the announcement that his latest venture in the theatrical world, "Fulton of Oak Falls," had closed after a short run in New York City and after a run of about three months on the road and Broadway combined. He played to capacity houses in Boston and some critics predicted another Cohan success. The presentation of the comedy marked the return of Cohan and Sam H. Harris as partner producers. The big news of the theatre season had been the reunion of the pair several months ago. It was under the banner of "Cohan and Harris present" that many of Cohan's great hits were made in the show world. This season marked the forty-ninth consecutive season for George M. Cohan in the theatre and next fall he will be starting his fiftieth year on the stage. Whether he will have a work completed for the commemoration of the date is not known as yet. This week Ed Sullivan, prominent Broadway writer, wrote of Cohan in viewing the present day Broadway scene: "On W. 45th street the lights blaze it out for the 'passing word' to see—George M. Cohan. Twelve bulbs to spell out the greatest single name in the American theatre, because no name in the theatre means so much, carries so much weight, and recalls so much history. A name that is a bridge from the old Broadway to the new, for George M., despite his dapper appearance, has been around for a passel of years. He knew the somewhat shabby St. when it had greater splendor, and on the stages where his radio artists held forth, some of his great companions of the light stage and vaudeville hung up their names in the Broadway skies. The swirling tide of innovation has washed out thirty theatres which were famous in Cohan's youth, converting some into radio auditoriums, others into movie temples and others into burlesque houses. But the tide hasn't sufficient strength to dislodge this great veteran. Like the captain of a distressed ship, he may go down, straggled to the wheelhouse, but he won't desert the legitimate stage. George M. Cohan, the lights on the Morosco Theatre marquee spelled it out. If you have the imagination and stare at the bulbs long enough you will see strange figures hovering about them, Ziegfeld, Nora Bayes, the Dooley, this is where those forgotten names of Broadway come to hold rendezvous, night after night. There are not many places where these old Broadwayites can assemble any more, for the St. has changed, and the only constant thing in the shifting scene is George M. Cohan."

The Mother and Daughter band of Troop 1 Girl Scouts was held Wednesday night in the chapel and was in observance of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the troop. A program for the evening was presented under the direction of Capt. Jeanette Howland. "Why the Rubbish," a short play, was presented and was coached by Capt. Howland. Those taking part were: Ruth Clark, Nancy Gosler, Dorothy Lyons, Janet Dearden, Roberta Newhall, Ruth Woodis, Eileen St. Cyr. Betty Ann Royall, a lieutenant of the troop, gave a talk entitled, "Camp Life." Awards were presented by Capt. Howland to the following: gold stars for perfect attendance, Georgia and Barbara Linton, Dorothy Thompson; silver stars for ninety percent attendance, Jean Rooney, Janis Varnum, Ruth Tucker; merit badges—bird finder, Dorothy Thompson; housekeeper, Ruth Tucker; Betty Bartlett; child nurse, Janis Varnum; Betty Bartlett; Georgia and Barbara Linton, Dorothy Thompson; laundress, Jean Rooney; Betty Bartlett, Janis Varnum. ### Armored Defeat West Warren

The second game of the series between the Armored basketball team and the West Warren Civic Club team resulted in a local victory in a game played last Friday night at the Town hall before a large crowd. As a result of the victory both teams were even with one victory each. The final score was 41 to 38 and for the last few minutes of the final period it looked as though West Warren might come through and win and thereby end the series with two victories out of three, but they couldn't seem to score although they had several easy chances. The game was roughly played with both teams playing exceptionally hard throughout. West Warren boasted several fast players, who were reportedly important for the series. Together with the West Warren players, West Warren put up a game fight, but the excellent shooting of the Armoreds was too much for them. The score at the half was very close and at the end of the third period the Armoreds were leading 34 to 26. The lead looked safe enough until the visitors commenced to close in. Jake McCarthy and Jim Wiley, aided by the return of the Grubert brothers to the battle, held the visitors and the lead as they continued to score themselves. McCarthy scored 17 points while Wiley and Henry Grubert with 15 points between them did well. Ambrose, tall West Warren forward, scored 12 points for the visitors. The game was marked by considerable fouling. The Rosebuds

Congregational Church Notes

"The Triumph of the Cross" was the topic of the regular Sunday service conducted by Rev. William C. Prentiss. There was a special children's talk and the soloist of the services was Miss Eleanor Lane, who sang "He Was Despised." The church school met before the services under the leadership of Mrs. James T. Byrnes.

Sunday evening the League of Youth met in the church parlor and the topic was "Christians Believe that God and Man Meet Each Other in Prayer." Elizabeth Bartlett was the leader.

Members of the Sorority met Monday night with Mrs. William C. Prentiss at the Prentiss home. A meeting of the executive board of the Men's club was held Monday evening in the pastor's study. Plans were completed for the next meeting, which is to be held on April 1.

The Live Wires met Monday evening with Mrs. G. Colby Bartlett. On Tuesday evening a joint meeting of the trustees of the church and the finance committee of the church was held in the parlors.

The Women's Union met yesterday afternoon for sewing. At the conclusion a regular business meeting was held. A Lenten supper was served in the chapel last evening by the Women's Union and arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Frank Wiley. ### New Films At Star

"The Maid of Salem," which plays the Star theatre next Sunday and Monday, and features Claudette Colbert, offers excellent entertainment and a highly dramatic story of the bigoted and superstitious of the Puritan fathers. The little village of Salem is ruled by a set of stern and sanctimonious elders, who frown upon anything remotely suggesting joy or frivolity. Anyone who seems happy is looked upon with suspicion, and a girl who wears a lace bonnet to church on a Sunday, as Miss Colbert does, is considered downright indecent. Claudette is a normal young girl, who doesn't consider herself a sinner in spite of the cautions of the elders. She is carrying on a secret romance with a young political exile from Virginia (Fred MacMurray) who is in hiding in his uncle's cabin on the outskirts of Salem. When the village gets into an uproar over witchcraft and several unfortunates have been sent to the hangman, Claudette is branded a witch because she refuses to divulge the identity of her lover. In several stirring scenes Director Frank Lloyd presents a powerful picture of the mob hysteria and cruelty of that period. Claudette Colbert handles her dramatic role with fire and confidence, and Fred MacMurray makes the young Virginian likable and real. This is real entertainment for every member of the family.

For next Wednesday and Thursday, "Wintergreen," starring Margo and Burgess Meredith, will be the feature attraction. If you are looking for something different in picture entertainment, here it is. Another attraction on the Thursday program is Bank Nite. The management has been conducting these Bank Nites every Thursday night for a considerable time and they are proving very popular.

A double feature program will be presented next Friday and Saturday, "Clarence," starring Oscar Karns and Eleanor Whitney, is one picture, and William Boyd in "Borderland" will be the companion feature.

Miss Gertrude Woodbury, a student at Bryant and Stratton College in Boston, passed the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Woodbury.

Masses at St. Joseph's church Sunday will be at 7:30, 8:30 and 10:30. Members of the Junior Holy Name Society will receive their monthly communion at the 8:30 Mass.

Completeness... In a Marie directed funeral there is not only the beauty and simplicity that is desired by most bereaved, but also the efficiency that represents years of service to this community.

Own Your Home

Have you been thinking about buying a home? If you have, my advice is to buy now and save, as all indications point to an advance in prices by next spring.

By many people, says the Washington Star, it is held to be an allegory showing God's providential care over Israel, although He may design a trying purpose for them.

The Way to Prevent Inflation is to Balance the Budget

The New York Times, editorially speaking, says that the way to prevent inflation, which is more than threatening, is to balance the budget. To balance it by a further increase of taxes, as Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board suggested last week, will not meet with popular acclaim. It's a wonder that nobody seriously takes hold of the other horn of the dilemma, and really attempts to reduce spending. If the individual must attempt to balance his own budget he must either spend less or earn more. The general disturbance by strikes in industry will certainly have its effect upon the receipts in income taxes. In speaking of the present tendency of government control of production and prices, which naturally results in higher commodity prices, the Times says:

"Again, if prices are to be held down, the Government must relax or abandon the production controls it has hitherto used in order to force them up. This is the point made so forcibly last week by Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board. The way to control unsound price advances is to increase production. This means that our agricultural policy must cease to encourage artificial scarcities in order to elevate prices, and concentrate rather on expanding foreign markets for our farm products through more reciprocal trade treaties that will at the same time open our own markets to more foreign price competition for certain classes of industrial goods. To increase production means, further, that we must abandon our policy of encouraging constant reductions in working hours, on the fallacious assumption that this 'spreads work' when all that it really spreads is scarcities and higher prices from which labor is the first to suffer. It means that we must cease laying emphasis on higher and higher wage rates when even such rates, by forcing restrictions in production, act not to expand the total real income and purchasing power of labor but to reduce it. It means, in short, that instead of demanding new AAAs and NRAs we should congratulate ourselves on having got rid of the old ones."

"It has been hinted that what the Administration really feels that it now needs is power directly to fix prices and wages. No matter how well intentioned such a demand may be, it should never be granted. Experience shows that such control leads to endless complications, and hence to ever new demands for more powers. It is the habit of Government to attack symptoms rather than underlying maladjustments, and that habit is nowhere so firmly rooted as in dealing with prices, which are essentially symptomatic. . . . In our own wartime experience we learned some of the complications to which price-fixing leads. First, prices are fixed below the level to which supply and demand would send them; the next step must be to ration the supply; after that, steps must be taken to punish hoarding; next, to compel producers to produce. The ever-tightening economic controls in Germany illustrate the end-product of this process. . . . The individual finds, in the end, that he has lost not only his economic liberties but his political and spiritual liberties with them."

Sowed the Wind and Reaped a Whirlwind

Thinking people were alarmed, and justifiably so, during the campaign of last fall over the complexion of many of the political speeches and radio talks. In our humble way we ourselves pointed out that the tenor of many of those speeches was such as to arouse class feeling and class hatred. The severe, and oftentimes flaming utterances directed against capital and employers as a class, the overdone emphasis upon the condition of the "underprivileged" could accomplish little else in the minds of those who were victims of wholesale injustice. In other words those spell binders who did so much to arouse class hatred literally "sowed the wind and reaped the whirlwind." The epidemic of strikes and usurpation of property rights by the "sit-downers," the enforced idleness of so many thousands and the consequent economic loss are the fruit of the inflammatory utterances of those who played upon that string to help themselves into public office. We wonder if the guilty ones now have any feeling of responsibility for what is happening? One does not have to be a psychologist to know that it is not difficult to make contented people dissatisfied and even a well man ill if harping upon the subject is kept up long enough.

Not a "Mandate" But a Personal Triumph

A great many people besides the President are reading into the election returns of last November inferences that are not justified. To assert that the tremendous majority in the electoral college was a "mandate" for the President to do this or that, things which were not issues or even mentioned in the campaign or the party platform, is assuming too much. What happened last November, if one really analyzes the situation properly, was not so much an endorsement of New Deal policies as it was a personal victory for a very popular and persuasive President, opposed by a candidate who did not have great popular or personal appeal. That election was more a personal victory than anything else, though it did carry along with it victories in congressional and senatorial contests for many who jumped onto the Roosevelt bandwagon.

The man in the dock was a familiar figure. At least a dozen times before he had been convicted of picking pockets, and there seemed to be nothing to say.

"Yes, yer Worship," said the prisoner. "I'd like this 'ere case put off for a week. My lawyer's ill."

The magistrate asked whether he had anything to say.

"But you know perfectly well that you were caught by two policemen with your hand actually in the gentleman's pocket. What could your lawyer say in your defense?"

"Yer Worship," said the prisoner earnestly, "that's vot I'm curious to know."—Answers Magazine.

Tavern Signs Decorated With Inanimate Objects

Tavern signs go back to an era when many people could not read. Hence their lettering was aided by images of animals, birds and various inanimate objects. The oldest sign exhibited in London bears a white swan and, although on it rests the market of five centuries, it carries the message that the first bonfire who put it above a door was an adherent of the royal Plantagenets, and whose coat of arms that bird appears.

In the American colonies, says the New York Times, tavern signs were frequently painted or carved by artists of ability, just as in Europe they were created by such masters as Hogarth, Correggio and Paul Potter. Some of the early American portraits, including Gilbert Stuart, did not seem to paint signs, and the innkeepers were among their best-paying patrons.

Sincerity Has No Price

What one pays for stipulated services is always easy to determine. But there are things which cannot be evaluated, often beyond any money involving money. Chief among these is sincerity. And, more than in any other business arrangement, sincerity must be present in mortuary arrangements. It is our unflinching endeavor to be so.

Corps and Right-of-Way Puzzle for Legal Talent

Much legal talent is being exercised in attempting to discover whether a Surrey legend has any foundation in the statutes of the English county. The legend is that a corpse was found in an isolated piece of land to another establishes the right-of-way.

As far as the Swan Tavern in Leatherhead is concerned the right-of-way is said to have been established in the Eighteenth century when a corpse was borne through the Swan Tavern on his famous coaching inn to bury beyond. The recent purchasers of the hotel site want to know if this is legally true.

For, according to the Morning Post of London, the Swan, past which Judge Jeffreys sneaked during his flight from London, at the door of which a Prince of Wales was hurled from her coach and inside which Henry Irving rested between productions, is coming down after more than 300 years. And then, where the Swan and the Swan brewery yard lay, at the crossroads in the center of the town, there will rise a block of shops.

"What then," the inhabitants of Leatherhead ask themselves, "will happen to the corpse-centered right-of-way?"

Some contend that the right-of-way is definite and irrevocable, others that, when the corpse was carried, a penny was paid of a fee to the landlord of the Swan to prevent the creation of a right-of-way. The outbreak of the Civil war, carrying of another corpse through the brewery yard to settle the matter.

Young barnacles are odd looking, very different in youth from the adult barnacle family, the sailor.

And for a long time no one realized that this curious little creature was a young barnacle. It was named a "nauplius." It is only after the nauplius attaches itself to a rock or some board with its long feelers, that it develops into the adult form, its protection. From time to time, the new shell sections are added for its "roof" until it generally has five compartments. Being the shape of several pairs of long arm-like appendages which wave currents of water into the barnacle's mouth—and in the water hundreds of the creatures which are the barnacles' regular menu. Barnacles are common in warm seas, but there are countless numbers of them on sticks and stones in northern waters as well.

IMPERSONATOR

By R. H. WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

FAT, paunchy, Ed Bradford, owner of the Bradford vaudeville circuit, rolled a cigar between his thick lips and squinted at the young man on the opposite side of the desk.

"You're a female impersonator, eh? So what?"

"So," said the young man, "my name is Johnnie Sherwood. And I want a place on the Bradford circuit. I'll make you money, Mr. Bradford."

The fat man shook his head. "No go, son. Business lousy and getting lousier every minute. You gotta have something pretty special to interest me these days."

"I have got something special," said Johnnie.

He swallowed, and seemed to get a grip on himself. "I'm good, Mr. Bradford. My act kills 'em."

"Then why aren't you signed up?"

The ghost of a smile flickered across Bradford's face. He waved airily, though his demeanor was not unkind.

"Sorry, son. Better try the movies."

A sort of desperate look came into Johnnie's eyes. He leaned forward.

"Listen, Mr. Bradford. I've got to have a job. I've simply got to. I haven't worked for months and when you know you've got something good—it kind of makes you mad."

Suddenly he seemed to remember where he was and to whom he was talking. But the memory served only to temporarily suppress his enthusiasm.

"Mr. Bradford, I've heard that you're a sporting man and a square deal man. I'd like to make you a proposition."

"What kind of a proposition?"

"Listen," said Johnnie. "I'm an impersonator, and I think I'm pretty good. You've been in the show business for thirty years, and you think you know the game. I mean, you know the game, don't you?"

"Well, I guess I do," said Bradford. "But I don't know you. You're a hard man to fool. Now suppose I fooled you with my act—"

Bradford broke into a deep-throated laugh.

"You mean I listen, son—"

Johnnie grinned.

"Silly, isn't it? Well, look; I'll stand by you and climb into my make-up. Then I'll return here. If you don't think I'm good enough for the Bradford circuit you can say so. I'll scratch out of here, otherwise I get a contract."

"What do you mean, otherwise?"

Johnnie shrugged and smiled a little.

"Otherwise I'll let you use your own judgment."

Ed Bradford rolled his cigar and his eyes twinkled.

"O. K., kid. I ain't got nothing to say to you. You put on a show for me and I'll give you a dinner, to ease your mind. I'll tell you I'm a woman, male impersonator, and I guess you'll have to admit I'm pretty good at it."

"I guess," said Ed. "I will. And he got to his feet and crossed to his desk. The incredulous, bewildered look was back on his face as he fumbled in a drawer and presently produced a contract form.

"Mother, was that de-dee-stand for?"

Doctor of divinity, my dear. Don't they teach you such things in school?"

"Oh, yes; but it doesn't sound right."

"The witness said he heard the defendant say, 'I'll make you square if I don't.'"

"Still Throbbing"

A cow-puncher ordered a steak at a restaurant. The waiter brought it, and the cow-puncher looked at it and demanded that it be returned to the kitchen and cooked.

"It is cooked," snapped the waiter.

"Cooked—nothing," replied the cow-puncher. "I've seen cows hurt worse than that and get well."

"Take off the wig, kid, and we'll go out and grab some dinner. And out this nonsense. There ain't any use to carry it further."

The blond attached her brows, her lips pressed together in a sickening line. She looked at him angrily.

"Mr. Bradford, you kindly explain what this is all about. I came here to see you on business, and you've done nothing but act like a crazy man. You make me at least offer me a chair, and then tell me the joke so I can laugh, too."

Bradford took a step closer. He squinted, relaxed. No, he wasn't slipping. He knew that he was talking about. Thirty years in the business! No young squirt could fool him like this.

Brookfield

Boomerang

"Boomerang," the popular and widely discussed comedy drama, dealing as it does with the interests of peace, is now being shown at the Brookfield town hall. The drama with a cast which includes several professional players as well as a group of localities will be presented in the Town Hall at eight o'clock next Wednesday and Thursday under the direction of Miss Marjorie H. Lyden for the benefit of the Brookfield Road and Gun Club Inc.

Due to illness in town several changes have been necessary in the local cast, so that the character list will not be available for publication until tomorrow, but as the more important roles are interpreted by professionals a well balanced show is assured.

The rehearsals are being held in the clubroom at the fire station.

A substantial cash award is to be made to the person selling the greatest number of tickets and competition is running high.

The committees including general, publicity, properties, and talent follow: President Harlow Jones, Clifford E. Gaudette, Roy L. Moulton, Everett Adams, Ralph Hill, Percival Ridley, Arthur Faugno, Alfred T. Beaton, Theodore Draxler, B. Varney, James Herbert, and Winfield Howe. ## William Casey Named Commissioner of Agriculture

Succeeds Howard Murphy Removed by Governor Hurley

Mr. Casey is Acting Commissioner Until Confirmation By Executive Council

William Casey of this town was on Wednesday nominated state commissioner of agriculture by Governor Charles Hurley, to succeed Howard Murphy, whom Governor Hurley recently removed from office.

The nomination has yet to be confirmed by the executive council, but Hurley's action indicates that there is no doubt that the confirmation will be forthcoming.

Mr. Casey is now serving as acting commissioner, since the removal of Commissioner Murphy, although nominally he is the state director of dairy and animal husbandry, to which position he was appointed a short time ago.

His many friends in Spencer and in the county are congratulating Mr. Casey upon his appointment to this important post, which yields a salary of $10,000.

Mr. Casey has been a practical farmer throughout his entire life, succeeding to the management of Highland farm in the south part of the town when his father, John Casey, retired from active management. The farm has been engaged in milk production and the raising of Ayrshire cattle, the milk being sold to some of the large distributing companies.

The new commissioner early showed his interest in the dairy industry, and in the raising of Ayrshire cattle, the milk being sold to some of the large distributing companies.

His agricultural activities include the raising of Ayrshire cattle, the milk being sold to some of the large distributing companies.

Three Families Are Driven From Homes

Courneyer House On Temple Street Is Damaged by Fire

Three families were driven from their homes at 38 Temple street last Monday morning when a fire, caused by a defective chimney, threatened to spread over the entire three-tenement building. The damage is estimated at $2000. The building is owned by George Courneyer, who operates a laundry in the rear. Most of the damage was from smoke and water. The fire is said to have started in an attic room above the tenement occupied by Harold Doyle and family. The Doyle family were not at home at the time and consequently the damage to the furniture was much greater than in the other tenements, occupied by William Hardy and Napoleon Soudiff. Furniture in the Hardy and Soudiff tenements was removed to the street by firemen and neighbors. The three families had to find refuge in neighborly homes pending repairs to the building.

The blaze was a stubborn one and firemen worked about two hours before it was extinguished. The alarm was sounded at 9:15 a. m. and the fire was under control by 11:30 a. m.

NORTH BROOKFIELD Congregational Church Notes

"New Power For Today" was the sermon of Rev. William C. Prentiss at the regular Sunday morning church service. The soloist of the morning was Mrs. Margaret Wiley and the topic of the children's talk was "The Sea Wall." James T. Byrnes conducted the Sunday school session which was held before the 10:45 service. In the evening the League of Youth met in the church parlor with Carlos G. Prentiss as the leader and Mrs. Mildred E. Prentiss as the soloist. The subject was "True And False Ideas of Success." Richard Salem was the door attendant. Boy Scouts of Troop 129 met in the church parlor Monday evening with Scoutmaster Harold B. Crooks in charge.

On Monday evening the Local Project met at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Lane. President Mrs. Frederick C. Swartsbourne presided and the feature of the gathering was a recounting of experiences at the Northfield and Lake-side Summer Conferences, given by Miss Ruth Bartlett and Miss Ruth Teall, who attended.

An interesting report on the recent gathering of school superintendents of the country, held in New Orleans, given by Supt. of Schools Rhoden B. Eddy, was the feature of the meeting Monday night of the Men's club, which was held in the church parlor. The title of the talk was "The Report on School Superintendence at the New Orleans Meeting." There were readings by students and music was furnished by the high school orchestra. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Colby H. Johnson, Raymond King, Albion H. Doane, Lewis King and Stanley E. Tucker.

The Town Forum was held Sunday night with William Cary Duncan leading.

Plans have been completed for the rummage sale which will be held tomorrow afternoon (Saturday) in the vacant store in the Doane block. The sale is being sponsored by the Men's club. Frederick C. Swartsbourne is the chairman of the committee for the sale and is being assisted by members of the executive board.

F. Theodore Hopkins, musical director and organist, has expressed his thanks in the church calendar for aid given and for appreciative letters received after the recent Sunday evening concert. He also extended thanks to members of the choir and the soloists for the fine work done in the Easter concert which was the best in his fourteen years of association with the church as musical director.

The board of trustees of the church met Tuesday in the church parlor with George W. Lane, chairman of the board, in charge.

mance which comes to the Casino Theatre on Sunday and Monday.

Mervyn LeRoy, the brilliant young director recently elevated to the rank of producer, knew all about Gravet because he had personally signed the star during a trip to Paris last summer. But he discreetly kept silent.

Gravet is the king in "The King and the Chorus Girl" and the picture deals with his anonymous pursuit of an independent little American chorus girl, played by Joan Blondell. Providing complications and laughs, are Edward Everett Horton, Alan Mowbray and many others. Mervyn LeRoy both directed and produced the picture.

With the exception of Carole Lombard, all of the leading players of "Swing High, Swing Low," romance with music coming to the Casino Theatre on Tuesday Wednesday Thursday, are important radio personalities. They are Fred MacMurray, Dorothy Lamour and Charles Butterworth.

The best known to either fans, perhaps is Miss Lamour, who was frequently heard over the great networks before she entered pictures a few months ago, and who is often heard as guest star with Bing Crosby, Ben Bernie and others.

Funny Charles Butterworth is rapidly winning himself a large radio audience by his work with Fred Astaire. He proves in "Swing High, Swing Low" that he is an exceptional pianist besides being a funny man.

A large attendance marked the concert and dance at the Town hall Friday evening under the sponsorship of the Armortreds and the Rosebuds basketball teams. Kemp Read and his orchestra of Oak Bluffs furnished music. Members of the committee were: Fred J. Grabert, Omer Beaudette, Henry P. Grabert, Robert Var-num, Francis White, John McCarthy and Joseph Klimavich.

Miss Winifred Woodward of Manchester, N. H., spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Woodward.

Edward W. King, who was injured several weeks ago when he was thrown from a gasoline motor car of the Boston and Albany railroad, is convalescing at his home. Mr. King is a foreman on the railroad.

The annual meeting of the parish of the First Congregational church will be held in the chapel on Tuesday evening, April 13. The warrant was posted on Tuesday evening by Arthur H. Warfield Jr., clerk of the parish.

Mrs. Helen S. Burroughs has purchased from Mrs. Anna S. Carter the store building on Main street now occupied by the Hay's Hardware and Auto Supplies. The property is assessed for $2875 and comprises a store building, wood shed and garage with three-eighths of an acre of land.

The ninety foot chimney on the site of the McIntosh factory building on lower Central street has been felled by the Spencer Wrecking Company. The loose brick has been drawn away and all that now remains of the once upon a time active factory is a portion of the foundation.

Members of the Girl Scout Troop with their captain, Mrs. Roger K. Poole and Mrs. Walter Leary, lieutenant, went to Spencer Sunday night, where they attended a vespers service at the Congregational Church in the observance of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Girl Scouts of America.

The body of Andrew Anderson of Hartford Conn., was brought to West Brookfield on Friday afternoon for burial in Pine Grove cemetery. Mr. Anderson died in the Hartford City Hospital. His wife was Augusta Anderson and she died in April 1921. The couple had three sons, James, George H. and Walter E. Anderson, who were also former residents of this town.

Rev. Oliver F. Wiese, pastor of the Congregational church, occupied the pulpit on Sunday morning at the 10:45 o'clock service. Rev. Wiese was to have exchanged pulpits with Rev. Emmons E. White, pastor of the Second Congregational church in Palmer, but at the last moment Rev. Mr. White was unable to keep his appointment, so on Sunday, April 25, they will exchange pulpits.

The trustees of the public library have organized for the year with Frederick W. Farrell as chairman and Miss Anna O'Day as secretary. The book committee will comprise Mrs. Webster L. Kendrick, Mrs. Mary F. Holmes and Harold A. Foster. Miss Helen P. Shackleby was re-elected librarian and Percy S. Cregan was re-appointed custodian of the building. Members of the executive committee, comprising Mr. Farrell, Arthur H. Bates, Sr., and Miss Anna M. O'Day, will have charge of disposing of the weather vane which was taken down a few weeks ago when the cupola was removed.

Last Thursday afternoon the local fire department was called to put out a fire on the land of Miss Mildred J. Beebe on the main road to Ware. The fire burned over ten acres of land of Miss Beebe and Elmer C. Coney.

For a time fire threatened to cross the main road into the woodland to the east of the place of the fire. The road was obscured for 300 feet by the smoke which poured from the fire swept by the northeast wind. The fire company, assisted by Percy S. Cregan, forest fire warden, succeeded in checking the fire on the west side of the highway and were on duty for an hour.

The thirteenth leg of the pitch tournament between the members of the local fire department and business men of the town resulted in the team of Captain Leon L. Adams scoring a total of 4394. The four aces are Bruce 1189, Lynch 1040, Chesson 1019 and Robinson 1016. The players' standing to date:

WEST BROOKFIELD
Local members of the board of health, Charles J. Forrant, chairman; Dr. George W. Denning and Dr. Clifford J. Huyck, have received word from the state that the name of C. Fred Duncan has been approved for re-appointment as inspector of slaughtering for 1937.

Members of the board of health are asking the co-operation of the townpeople who use the new town dump on the Wigwam road. Some of the townpeople are sending loose paper to the dump and consequently it presents an unsightly condition in the district surrounding the dump. Everyone using the dump is requested to put papers in cartons so that papers will not be blown about. The appearance of the new dump is like the one on the main highway between West Brookfield and New Braintree which was abandoned because users failed to comply with the request that they dump their refuse at the dump instead of throwing the contents on private ground and beside the travelled highway.

Miss Genevieve MacCrossan, who for the past seven years has been a trained nurse in the home of William I. Hawkins, died on Thursday afternoon of last week, following a week's illness of pneumonia at the Hawks home. Miss MacCrossan came to North Brookfield some twelve years ago following her graduation from the Lawrence General Hospital. She was formerly of Andover. Miss MacCrossan leaves three sons, Mrs. Mary Young of Lawrence; Mrs. Anna Union of Lawrence; and Sarah Burke of Andover. The body was taken to the funeral home of John P. Lyons, North Brookfield. The funeral was Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock, with a solemn high Mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church in North Brookfield. Burial was in St. Augustine cemetery in Andover. Friends of Miss MacCrossan of this town attended the services. "Last Friday" was the ninety-third birthday anniversary of Hatching E. Mundell, who for the past sixty years has been a resident of the Ragged Hill district. Mr. Mundell is the second oldest male resident of the town and in his younger days was in the employ of the Warren Hamilton who owned lumber yards. Mr. Mundell can recall the days when he was active in hauling trees by oxen. He is a native of Warren and made the daily paper without the aid of glasses. His wife, Elvira Pel- lows of Hardwick, died twenty-six years ago. Mr. Mundell claims to be the grandson of a full-blooded Indian. He has seven children living. William of Brookfield; Warren of Bondsville; Charles, Walter and Arthur Mundell of West Brookfield; Annie of Brookfield and Mary of West Brookfield. Mr. Mundell claims that one of the best aids to good health and longevity is walking. He is seen about the town occasionally and walks to town, some five miles away and pays a visit to his granddaughter, Mrs. Herbert Frew.

After the CIO What?

In a letter to one of the national magazines a contributor provokes an arresting thought when he asks a very pointed question, to wit: "After the CIO what?" In other words it is very apparent that Mr. Lewis is looking for maximum power, and further—that he has great ambition. Suppose that his organization reaches the summit of power and numbers that he postulates. What then? What is his political and social philosophy and that of his assistants? It is easy enough to see that for the moment the objective is control and domination of all bargaining as to hours and wages. But that accomplished, what is to follow? It is apparent enough today that his organization is not able to control the actions of many of its members, who "sit down" and strike when they are told not to. It is easy enough to see that if the final objective of the CIO is reached we will have in hand a super political power and the question then arises as to what the policies and philosophy of that organization might be in regard to the multifarious other matters of government. We have seen in the CIO itself, in many of the strikes that have taken place at its instigation, that they represented but a minority of the workers. Militant minorities, in other words, have a faculty at times of managing the majority. And that leads up to the thought that people must not be unkind in these times, when so many exciting matters are diverting attention, of certain subtle influences that seem always alert and at work, and are busiest in times like these. Racketeers have fastened themselves upon the labor movement like the parasites that they are, destroying respect for and defeating the purposes of honestly organized labor, and the strange thing is that such small groups are able by intimidation or other means to outwit and direct the great honest majority. But more insidious and dangerous still is the influence of foreign-directed Communism and its adherents here, who avowedly are interested in converting the organized labor movement to Soviet philosophy. It is the influence of such groups as these, if the CIO obtains the power that it seeks, which contains the greatest threat to peace, prosperity and orderly government, and entitles the citizen to ask of the CIO "Whither goest thou?" It is charged that Mr. Lewis has an ambition to be President. And that provokes another thought. If Mr. Roosevelt has his way and Congress grants authority to increase the number of judges on the Supreme bench at will, and Mr. Lewis should achieve his ambition to succeed Mr. Roosevelt, in case the latter decides to quit at the end of his second term, whom would you guess might be Mr. Lewis's selections for the Court?

A Lobby and Propaganda for Mr. Taxpayer

All of the interests seem to have well organized lobbies and bureaus for propaganda except Mr. Consumer and Mr. Taxpayer. The great utility companies have their agents in touch with political and legislative affairs; the administration has its agents and liaison offices bringing pressure to bear upon the members of Congress and committees for the purpose of forwarding pet legislation; the labor organizations have very powerful committees and lobbyists working constantly toward the same end; and so on. The result of the efforts of these and similar groups usually is the furtherance of legislation which eventually will add to the cost of government and the cost of living. Only the poor fellows who in the end pay the major portion of the bill, Mr. Consumer and Mr. Taxpayer, are not well organized to protect their particular interests, and the best they can do is to write or call upon their Congressman protesting against injustices, save perhaps what is being done by the various taxpayers' associations. These are making real progress in Massachusetts, though the surface, so to speak, has hardly been scratched yet, and the funds for a comprehensive battle along the whole front are not too plentiful. There is no question about it but that these associations are trying to do something for honesty, efficiency and economy in government. There is no end to the propositions before Congress at the present time framed with the avowed purpose of price fixing, but which actually mean price raising. In the attempts to "regulate" the chain stores, for example, which attempts may have had some things in a general way to recommend them, the result is more likely to mean increased prices of commodities, because the very rules which would hamper the chains would also affect the buying conveniences of the independents, and Mr. Consumer will pay the bill. The principle is not new, as so much of the legislation aimed in recent years to correct certain abuses has been so broadly drawn as to promise greater mischief than the evils it was intended to correct. Here again the "special interests," and that does not mean the moneyed interests entirely by any means, the professional lobbyists and agents, manage to slip in a "joker," or two or a rider, often not germane to the project, which will give them another toe-hold for their own advantage, and the disadvantage once more of the fellow who pays the bills.

The Minimum Wage Law Upheld

The question of whether the Supreme Court did or did not reverse itself in the recent five to four decision upon the Washington minimum wage law is beside the real point. It is probable that there were elements in the construction of the New York law which was invalidated and in the oft quoted Adkins case which threw the Washington statute out of complete parallel and that the decisions in the three cases were not based upon identical facts. The really important fact is that the Court found a means for enabling law that would authorize the establishment of minimum wages for certain groups of employees. That it may result in the elimination of "sweat-shop" wages and the notoriously low wages in some mercantile establishments, which have led to the claim that girls in order to get enough money for a decent living were led to find other sources of revenue that were likely to induce their moral downfall, is devoutly to be hoped. The only fly in the ointment may be that in future decisions, on other matters, the opinion of a majority of the judges of the clause of the Constitution upon which this decision was interpreted may, as a result, be cited as precedent for too broad interpretation of other subjects, for these legal decisions sometimes have a bad way of bobbing up under the citations of smart lawyers to plague those who were wholly in sympathy with the things like the minimum wage law, for example.

Everybody Must Read the Leader

As one looked upon the audience at the Memorial Town hall Monday night, where every seat was taken, both on the floor and in the gallery, with some sitting in the aisles and others standing, one would be convinced that nearly everybody must read the "Spencer Leader." The audience, assembled to witness the cooking school demonstration which was composed almost exclusively of the late Deacon Oliver Brewer of the Congregational church, died Wednesday in Keene, N. H., according to word received here. She was the wife of Urban Pierce. The funeral was held today in Keene.

Murphy Protests Appointment of Casey to Agricultural Post

Counsel for Howard H. Murphy, the ousted State Commissioner of Agriculture, sent a letter Wednesday to Attorney General Paul A. Dever, asking permission to try title to the office of State Commissioner of Agriculture which was awarded to William Casey of Spencer Wednesday by the Governor's Council.

Grappier Disqualified in Bout Here

Bad Man Stanislawski of Nashua, N. H., was disqualified for use of the straight hold in a wrestling bout at the Social hall last Monday night when George Lauther of Fitchburg, Stanislawski was warned several times by Referee Beauvais before the match was finally given to Lauther. Wildcat Dragon of Easthampton and Bert Barabault wrestled to a draw in the semifinal. There were two preliminary bouts.

On April 20 another wrestling show will be held in the Social hall when Foster Bemis, a local mat man, will wrestle Frank Haas of Holyoke.

The Week in Spencer

New Mortgage Law

Savings banks will be permitted under the new law signed by Governor Hurley yesterday to write new types of mortgages demanded today by the home buyers. Probably the most important feature of the new law is that which enables savings banks to write long term mortgages with certain amortization provisions, savings officials state.

For the past several years a savings bank was limited to a three year mortgage. Although the banks have gladly renewed mortgages for clients who regularly met their obligations, there is a considerable public demand for mortgages written for longer periods, according to Rutherford E. Smith, President of the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts. There have also been many demands for mortgages greater than 60% of the value of the property. The new law meets this situation by allowing the banks to lend in certain cases up to 70% of the true value.

The new law is the result of long and careful study of the mortgage situation by several committees of the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts and by members of the General Court. Mr. Smith declared. "We believe," he said, "that the more liberal provisions of the new law are demanded by the public, and are also consistent with the restrictions now sufficient to protect the savings of the depositors of the bank. The law is entirely permissive and it is probable that many of the old three year type of mortgage will continue to be written."

Under the new law, two new types of mortgages may be written by savings banks. First, a mortgage for 60 per cent of the value of the property for a term not exceeding twenty years may be written with a provision for the amortization of the mortgage at the rate of not less than two per cent a year paid in quarterly installments. Second, a mortgage for 70 per cent of the value of the property also limited to twenty years with a provision for amortization at the rate of three per cent a year. The amount that may be loaned on this type of mortgage shall not exceed $25,000 per loan.

"Savings banks," stated Mr. Smith, "have millions of dollars available for mortgage lending. Under the new law these banks can, within wide limits, write a mortgage which fits the individual's needs. It may be a long or short term; its amortization provisions are as low as safety permits. Each of the 193 mutual savings banks in the state will, of course, lay down its own policies under the new law, and these policies will vary in accordance with local conditions."

Will of Hannah Dermody Filed

Dermody, a brother, are left $10 each. There are gifts of $5 each to a number of nephews and nieces, and the residue of the estate is bequeathed to the nieces, Margaret H. Sloane, Mary A. Sloane, Julia C. Sloane, Winifred Sloane and Nora G. wife of John Bowler. There is no indication of the value of the estate. Attorney Howard C. Bouton is named executor of the will.

French Star Makes Debut in Park Film

Fernand Gravet makes his American film debut in "The King and the Chorus Girl," which comes to the Park theatre next Friday and Saturday. If you are in the mood for an evening of strictly comedy entertainment, you can't go wrong on this one. From a story by Groucho Marx and Norman Krasna, Mervyn LeRoy has fashioned a satirical farce that tops the season for complete and utter dizziness. A timely tale, it has to do with an ex-king who is drinking himself to death from sheer boredom... until he spies an American girl in the "Folies Bergere." Imported from France for the lead, Fernand Gravet makes his American debut a highly successful one. He is handsome, an excellent actor, and one of the finest light comedians you'll see on the screen. Incidentally, he bears a striking resemblance to the Duke of Windsor. Joan Blondell looks and acts the chorus girl part to perfection, and shares comedy honors with Edward Everett Horton and Mary Nash, who portray the ex-monarch's two remaining subjects. Luis Alberni is swell in a brief scene, Alton Dowling lends humor to the role of head waiter, and Kenner Baker sings an engaging number called "For You." This is top-notch farce, and the name of M. Gravet can be added to your list of Hollywood's brighter stars. For Monday and Tuesday, Fernand Simon in "Seventh Heaven," also "Murder Goes to College," with Roscoe Karns.

For next Tuesday only, John Wayne in "The Sea Spoilers," and Charles Starrett in "Westbound Mail."

Wednesday and Thursday, Lily Pons, Jack Oakie and Gene Raymond in "That Girl From Paris," and Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane in "Smart Blonde."

Casino—Ware

Last Forum to be Held Sunday Night

"Waikiki Wedding," a comedy of love and music in the South Seas, brings Bing Crosby, Bob Burns and Martha Raye to the Casino (Ware) theatre next Wednesday at 8 o'clock. The play is a comedy of the type that made "Rhythm on the Range" one of the outstanding comedies of last year.

This time Bing is a press agent for a pineapple cannery in Hawaii—and in the furtherance of his campaign to keep Waikiki, said as the famous spot of the universe it becomes necessary for him to fall in love with Miss Ross, who is about to walk out on a well laid publicity scheme of his concoction.

When Crosby discovers that he really is in love with the blonde beauty and that he must choose between losing her or see his scheme go boom, the climax is reached. In the meantime, Burns, Bing's assistant, and Miss Raye, Miss Ross' secretary, have been making head-hey while the tropic sun shines, leading to further complications.

One of the big moments in the performance of the famous "drum dance," once practiced by native Polynesians before making a human sacrifice. The dance is performed by Miki Rei, noted Tahitian dancer who took Broadway by storm in one of the recent Ziegfeld Follies productions.

William Fenton will represent Brookfield baseball nine in the Central Massachusetts baseball league, which opens its season on Sunday, May 9th. Martin D. Leach is the local team manager. There is little material for a fast nine in town but this has always been an enthusiastic town for baseball and the townfolk rejoice in the promise of seeing a game. The town will not be restricted to the underdog and may have out-of-town talent on the local nine. Last season Brookfield was particularly fortunate in going one of the finest teams here since the days when Mathew M. Daley managed a team and the diamond rang from the cheering through watching nines of a calibre from which the big leagues are made. The town is unable to have last year's nine as it was composed almost entirely of state troopers stationed here, men who had seen action in strong city and college teams. All of these men have left town at present. However Brookfield has the promise of a fast nine, one that will be on an equal footing for ability with the other towns in the league including North Brookfield, Southbridge, Ware, Auburn, and Cherry Valley, and Spencer. The nine team in the league will be announced today, the choice being between Webster, Monson and Oxford.

During the past week Brookfield lost two veteran state troopers, and in the transfer of Trooper John Avedian, who left here Saturday and Trooper James E. Cronin, who left here Wednesday, not alone does the district lose two thoroughly familiar with the entire district, but the two men whose almost personal interest in their station gave Brookfield a station whose attractiveness has improved the appearance of the entire district. Trooper Cronin, a native of Somerville, came here some six years ago and has been affiliated with the traffic division. He is married and his wife and two children reside on Kimball street. Trooper Avedian is a native of Worcester.

One Way to Increase Unemployment

It is exasperating to witness the boomerang effect that efforts to equalize revenue, to take from the well to do for the purpose of increasing the receipts from federal taxes, or to distribute among the less well to do, frequently produce. We have in mind the attempts to tax out of existence the surpluses of those organizations which have been able to accumulate them. There are not many things more calculated to retard recovery and continue unemployment than this scheme. For example, if any of this surplus is used for extensions—in buildings, real estate or equipment, the tax lies against it just the same. The result may well be the distribution of the surplus to stockholders, the reduction of needed building and extension programs and rapid obsolescence of plant. Of course the distribution of surplus is what the government wants, because it then becomes available for taxation once more. Then what is the result? People of means find themselves with money that they did not want and did not need for ordinary purposes and which is a problem for them to reinvest at promise of any decent return; and the banks are already glutted now with cash for which they cannot find attractive investment. Another result: money is cheap and this has its effect upon the savings of the less well to do which are deposited in savings banks, etc. There is no doubt about it but business is disheartened. With the tax problem so acute and labor so uneasy and threatening by sit down strikes and what not, one meets every day numerous business men who make the same statement: "If I could sell out or get out of business today and save anything like the amount that I have invested, I would do it in a minute, and let the government or somebody else do the worrying."

How Much Does the Strike Cost the Employee?

The truism is oft being repeated these days: "Nobody makes anything out of a strike." It is beginning to dawn upon a number of people who have been on strike and have won a decision that they are actually worse off than before. Moreover, because of the fact that labor in many cases is beginning to sense this situation, the rumor is current that the CIO is losing momentum. Whether that is based on guesswork, or on hope or upon facts it would be difficult with the information at hand at the present time to determine. But from the ranks of labor itself, from those who are unwilling strikers particularly, come some very salient facts by which elementary arithmetic helps to prove the futility of many strikes. A concrete example: An employee has been working forty-eight hours per week at fifty cents per hour; total wages for the week $24. He goes on strike for a ten percent advance and a forty hour week, and wins both objectives. The result of forty hours per week at the ten percent advance, fifty-five cents per hour, yields him a loss in wages, or a weekly wage of $22. If from that he must pay a loss in five percent, assessment to the union, that leaves him a net weekly wage of $20.90, against the $24 he received before the strike. True he is working eight hours less, but those eight hours of leisure yield him no revenue for his family. On the contrary they probably mean larger spending for necessities. A little arithmetic now and then might be studied by the best of men—with profit.

Charge That Members of Supreme Court are Not in Tune

This is not the first time it seems that it has been charged the members of the Supreme Court were not in tune with the times. Apparently, there is nothing new about such arguments. More than a hundred years ago they were advanced—and answered so effectively that the answer still stands. Here is what Daniel Webster said then: "It is hardly too strong to say that the Constitution was made to guard people against the dangers of good intentions, real or pretended. . . . There are men in all ages who mean to exercise power usefully—but who mean to exercise it. They mean to govern well, but they mean to govern. They promise to be kind masters but they mean to be masters." In more recent times Justice Brandeis, the Court's most famed contemporary liberal, put it this way: "Experience should teach us to be most on guard to protect liberty when purposes of government are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded persons. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well meaning, but without understanding." Even one hundred and fifty years ago when the Constitution was adopted and provision made for the Supreme Court as the umpire upon all laws, the drafters provided the Constitutional Amendment as the means for eternally letting the people determine how much of their liberties they wanted to surrender to a powerful centralized government.

Clean-up Time

The sordid spectacle that the melting of Winter's mantle reveals in many localities, however much it may be relieved by the uplifting influence of Spring breezes, ought to stimulate property owners and municipal officials into helping Spring dress up the landscape by making a general clean-up of the waste material that shows in such disorder in many back yards, and some front yards as well. A little bit of cooperation upon the part of each individual and property owner will add beauty to every prospect.

Spanking has for centuries been considered a salutary method for enforcing discipline or punishing the naughty. It seems as though it might be a first class remedy to use upon sit-down strikers.

Local Pin Topplers Defeat Marlboro Stars

A group of local bowlers, said to be the cream of maple busters of the town, traveled to Marlboro Wednesday night and defeated the Marlboro All-Stars by one hundred and five pins. The contest is considered quite a victory for the locals, as Marlboro is reputed to have some of the state's best bowlers. On the local team were Dr. J. R. Fowler, Nick Lacroix, Andrew Vigant, Armand Desroche and Armand Buisson. The local team piled up a total of 1597 and the Marlboro boys, 1492. Buisson was high man for the locals with a total of 330. On May 6th the Marlboro team will give the local boys a return game here at the Regal Alleys on Wall street.

The Week in Spencer

Booth Tarkington Story Featured in Park Theatre Film

"Penrod and Sam," one of Booth Tarkington's famous stories, is being featured at the Park theatre next Sunday and Monday. The author's famous boys come to the screen in the picture of the unusually good build.

For next Tuesday Jean Muir and Donald Woods will be seen in "Once a Doctor." The film is based on the dramatic situation: Will Donald Woods, a famous surgeon who has been discharged from his profession, performs an operation only he can do, to save the life of his bitter enemy.

Jeans, the culted boy, Jackie Morrow as Rodney (Sissy) Bits, Frank Craven and Spring Byington as Penrod's parents and Charles Hutton as Rodney's dotting papa. The other picture on the unusually good build is "Woman Wise," starring Rochelle Hudson.

MY DEAR Lona—

The sight of this crazy scribble will probably startle you. Even little things were forever sources of infinite surprise and delight to me. Surely it will mean something—something more than the mere commonplace, my darling!

I realize that it is indeed I that have at last come back to you. And yet, dear, it is no easier task for me to swallow the bitter pill of my pride and come to you in such humble fashion. If there were another manner of approach, less foreign to my nature, more flattering to my pride, I assure you I would have found it. Heaven only knows, Lona, the million black nights I have spent in futile search!

Simply, Lona—I love you. My dear, with even a contentment that I have come to you. How easily I can see you waiting for me at the far left side of the lobby.

Nickie. Slowly she folded the letter and handed it to her husband. He watched his face as he read. He was a big young man with pleasant features, but in an instant, immutable petty aversions, deceptions, unreliabilities. Even this letter—what more was it than a dramatic exhibition of ego?

Her husband looked up, myriad queries rampant in his troubled forehead.

She took the letter from her husband's lax fingers, and, smiling, tore the thin white sheets into countless small pieces.

Michigan-Indiana Boundary. The boundary dispute between Indiana and Michigan occurred in 1834. Michigan desired the line between the states moved some ten miles south of its present location, which was fixed by congress in 1805. The change would have excluded Indiana from access to Lake Michigan except through another state, and deprived it of a ten-mile strip of territory. Michigan's claim, accordingly, was resisted. Congress finally settled the question (1835) by confirming the present boundary, but extended Michigan's territory into the Lake Superior region.

The Roman Curia. The Roman Curia is composed of tribunals and various offices. The tribunals are (1) the sacred penitentiary which deals only with cases of conscience; (2) the sacred Roman Rota which deals with contentions and cases civil as well as criminal, requiring judicial procedure with trial and proof; (3) the Supreme Tribunal of Apostolic Signature which acts as a court of appeal.

Hooking the Cattle. The devoted soul watched the agile—old cowboy dexterously swinging his lasso in the grounds of the circus.

"What a long rope," she said, at last.

"Well, lady," the cowboy replied, "when I'm out West on the ranch I use it for catching cows."

"Catching cows? How very interesting. Tell me, what bait do you use?"

"Just the thing that remark of yours started me figuring out. With a telephone, I could be on call the minute any thing came turn up."

"That's exactly what happens," said the cowboy, "after putting back the telephone, I had three calls. The first time, I checked the job. My telephone has been a 'gilt edge' investment."

Tax Rate is Thirty-five Dollars

An increase of $1 over the tax rate of 1936 was noted with the announcement this week by Thomas F. Cuddy, member of the board of assessors, that the 1937 tax rate would be $35. A higher figure was generally expected and it would have been higher except for the fact that $4500 was transferred from the excess and deficiency fund at a special town meeting two weeks ago and was placed in the general fund to aid in reducing the 1937 tax rate. Savings in the "snow removal" department aided in keeping the figure low. Loss in valuation and increases in county and state taxes were held responsible for the increase of $1.00.

The women's club held a meeting Monday afternoon at the Congregational church with the president, Mrs. Margaret Gray, presiding. Mrs. Marion Treason of Southbridge was the guest speaker of the afternoon and her subject was "Motion Pictures." Mrs. B. J. Merriam of Framingham, secretary of the State Federation, was also a guest speaker. Mrs. Merriam renewed acquaintances with many former friends here, as her husband was a former superintendent of schools here. A meeting of the executive committee was also held.

Historical Picture One of Star Theatre's Features

"Lloyds of London" starring Freddie Bartholomew, Tyrone Power and Madeline Carroll, which is the feature at the Star Theatre, North Brookfield, for next Sunday and Monday, is the unveiling of a new historical and a new screen personality (Tyrone Power). It presents a romance that is never dominated by the background. Historical characters that were influential in the development of the great insurance institution known as the Lloyds of London (the unique insurance company of the world) supply the material for the production. Tyrone Power (Jonathan Blake as an adult) makes an excellent stride towards stardom in the stellar role and romantic lead opposite Madeline Carroll, who is seen as the unhappy Lady Elizabeth Stacy, wife of Lord Everett Stacy (George Sanders).

Freddie Bartholomew is admirable as Blake the boy, and Douglas Scott, as the boy Nelson, wins applause in his own right. Sir Guy Standing as the astute John Guinness, C. Aubrey Smith as old "Q" who combines delight and amusing moments. E. E. Olive as a comical judge, and Virginia Field, who makes the secondary female lead stand out in her characterization of Lloyd's waitress, are assets to the cast. It is a distinguished film, lavishly produced and depicted against the colorful background of London between the stirring years of 1770 and 1808.

Jean Arthur and George Brent will be seen in their newest film, "More Than a Secretary" next Wednesday and Thursday. And as usual Bank Nite will be run on Thursday night.

For next Friday and Saturday a double feature program will be offered by this popular playhouse. "Bulldog Drummond Escapes," starring Ray Milland and Heather Angel is one feature, while J. Edward Bromberg in "Fair Warning" will be the companion feature.

Miss Bertha Revane was a weekend guest in Quincy. Miss Ann McCarthy passed the weekend end in New York City. Miss Edith Doane of Boston passed the weekend end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Doane.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy of Worcester were week end guests at the home of Mrs. Agnes Moleky. Mrs. Thomas J. O'Boyle and daughter Peggy returned this week after a stay of several weeks in Williamsport, Pa.

Miss Estella Cuddy of the New Britain Conn., teaching staff passed the week end at the Cuddy home on Willow street.

James Dunphy of Hartford, Connecticut, was a guest during the weekend at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Dunphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Goodrich of Portland, Conn., were holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Swornhouse.

Spencer Would Have Been Short on Benefactions If Present Schemes Were Once in Vogue

There was a memorable town meeting in Spencer about a half century ago, a most happy and glorious occasion; one that made history for the town. From three public-spirited and generous citizens on that day came offers to present the town with the David Prouty high school building, the Richard Sugden public library building and the Luther Hill public park. The men who made those generous gifts to the town were of that type who in recent years have been almost speared at and held up to public opprobrium as "rugged individualists." They were of that fine type of citizens who made their own way by industry and frugality—but not the frugality of penuriousness; who expected that it was up to themselves to make their own way without leaning on the government for aid. But we ask, if there were laws in the day of these benefactions such as the New Deal proposes, which demand the dissipation of surpluses earned, either by taxation or confiscation, whence would have come the funds that made these gifts possible and thousands of others like them by which educational institutions, charitable enterprises, hospitals and the like have been aided for the general welfare? The answer is that in time we would probably have joined the "gimme boys" after the present fashion, and gone looking for a federal grant through the WPA or similar agency, grants of very doubtful value. To put it very concretely: it is very doubtful if the town of Spencer saved even for the moment any very substantial amount of money in the construction of the addition to the Prouty high school, even though it received a nominal federal grant of forty-five percent of the cost, because, as is well known now, the costs under private contract are usually substantially lower and much more favorable in other respects than under federal aid. On top of that, of course, we eventually pay the entire bill, plus costs of interest and federal administration, in some form of federal taxes. Eventually, if not now, we pay, because the government does not make money—at least not now. It gets it from us. Taxes of one sort or other are practically its only source of revenue.

Like the Handle of a Jug

Concentrating directly against the Wagner Labor Relations Act itself, when it was before Congress, and later contesting its constitutionality before the courts, the technique of the opposition, in light of the present situation, seems to have been rather faulty. Instead of attempting to modify the rather stringent provisions in some respects of the Act the fight was made against the complete measure itself. Perhaps nothing in the way of amendment could have been accomplished, in view of the pressure brought to bear by labor and the administration. But even its proponents now admit that the law has some grave defects and creates some very unfair situations. For example, it is now held that while employees may petition for an election to determine what organization may be appointed to represent it in collective bargaining, the employer has no such right under the law as it stands at present. It also seems that while there are teeth in the law, so far as requiring the employer to live up to agreements and contracts are concerned, there is no civil remedy by which the employer can make the employee fulfill agreements and contracts entered into. Thus now comes the demand, which has often been voiced in similar legislation before, that the unions be required to incorporate or be made subject to judgment in some way for violation of contract or for damage done by its members. Naturally the unions object to incorporation, as they always have, on the ground that they would be continually subject to harassing because of unauthorized acts upon the part of members. Nevertheless the matter will be prosecuted probably before the present Congress, though it is a moot question if the proposals get out of committee with Congress as it is now constituted.

Is Your Property Adequately Insured?

Three fire alarms in one day in Spencer are sufficient to cause us to pause and reflect as to whether or not our property is adequately covered by fire insurance. It is probably true that only a small proportion of local dwellings and other buildings are insured up to eighty percent of their value. Therefore in case of a partial loss the property owner is usually constrained to proportion to the extent that his insurance bears to eighty percent of the estimated loss. A great many dwellings were built in Spencer at the time of the town's greatest growth in the early eighties, at an approximate cost of $1500 to $3000. To replace them at the prevailing cost of construction of the present day—to say nothing of the additions and improvements that have been made since they were originally built—would probably mean a cost of three or four times the original investment. In the interim perhaps little attention has been given to bring the fire insurance coverage up to date. Even in buildings erected as late as 1936 there is cause for concern, as it is claimed that within the past year building costs, to say nothing of personal property, have increased from twelve percent in the East to thirty-three percent in the West. It therefore behooves property owners who want to be on the safe side to call in competent appraisers to revalue their property, find where they are at and insure correspondingly.

High School Baseball Season Underway

The lid was pried off the high school baseball season this week when Coach Charles D. McCarthy's team played Brookfield high in that town Monday. The local team was beaten by one run in a slugging match that ended in a score of 12 to 11. Henry Rondeau pitched the entire game for the high school while Michael Kokansky was the receiver. The game was considered as a practice affair by both teams and gave both coaches a lineup on their material and prospects for the present season. A game was scheduled for the Common on Tuesday but the condition of the playing field was not very good and the game was called off. Coach McCarthy is rebuilding an entirely new team this year as practically no veteran material was available. A new battery had to be formed as no veteran pitchers or catchers remained from last year's squad. Workouts have been held at Bell field on Bell street, while the Common has been out of condition and with the opening of the high school league season on May 11 the local boys are aiming for that date to start off a winning season. Members of the squad now engaged in practice include: Henry Rondeau, Michael Kokansky, Jay Griffith, Henry Salem, Matthew Sullivan, James Leonard, Edward Sandman, Clark Smith, Stanley Tucker, Phillip Klimavich, John Corbell, George Crawford, Francis Rooney, Lawrence Young, Aldo Nardi, Harvey Curry and Joseph Crevier. A game is scheduled for this afternoon against David Prouty high of Spencer.

Failing to show improvement at any time from an illness which necessitated her removal to a hospital a few weeks ago, Miss Monica E. Short, a former town clerk, died early last Sunday afternoon at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester. Miss Short had been at her work in the Adams Block law office where she had been employed until a few days before her removal to the hospital. She had served first as assistant town clerk to her brother, the late Thomas C. Short, and assumed the duties of town clerk after his death in 1935 and held the office for the 1936-1937 term. ### $30,000 in Suits Settled

A settlement in favor of the plaintiff in the two suits of $15,000 each, started by Elizabeth L. Black of Central Falls, Rhode Island, against the Quabaug Rubber Company here and the Central Massachusetts Electric Company of Palmer, was announced Monday morning in the Superior Court in Worcester as the case was about to resume. The suits were the results of a fatal accident at the Rubber Company plant four years ago when a workman for a chimney repairing company touched a high tension wire carrying 22,000 volts, situated close to the factory chimney which was being repaired. On June 12, 1933 Henry Aberle of Central Falls, Rhode Island, a member of the crew, was descending the chimney and as he neared the ground he came in contact with the charged wire and was electrocuted. The trial of the case began last week at the Worcester Court and officials of the Rubber Company and of the electric company attended to testify in the case. Elizabeth L. Black, administratrix of the estate of the deceased steeplejack, instituted the suit on the grounds that the two defendant companies were negligent in the placing and guarding of the wires. Counsel for the estate contended that no signs announcing the dangerous wire were discernible and could not be seen because of a high growth of brush and weeds. Jurymen came here last Thursday to view the scene of the accident. Settlement in favor of the estate was announced Monday morning through an agreement of counsel but the amount of settlement was not made public.

Tennis Courts on Common Expected to Be Fitted for Use

One of the problems present in this town for many years is that of accommodating all the tennis players who desire to participate in the sport but are unable to do so because of limited accommodations. A movement is expected to start among local fans and players to have the space set aside on the Common, when the field was renovated, outfitted for the playing of tennis so that all will not have to rely on and overcrowd the single court on Maple street. When the improvement work was being done on the Common in 1935 a tennis section was laid out and sidings were erected for two courts. While the courts were financed with Federal funds no provision was made for the placing of nets, markers and posts. Again this year players and fans are anxious that the "new" courts be fitted out for playing and provide space for all who wish to play the game. Small makeshift courts are located at a few homes in the town and one fine court has been developed at a Willow street home.

North Brookfield's Future Discussed at Final Forum

The final town forum of the season was held Sunday night at the Congregational church with John J. O'Hare as the leader. The interesting topic discussed was: "North Brookfield's Future and Its Prosperity in the Years to Come." The forum was one of the most interesting of the group which have been held during recent weeks. Mr. O'Hare outlined the present situation of the town and the good points it has to offer and declared that its future was dependent on securing additional industries here. Points in the program advanced for the betterment of town prosperity were: (1) Place present factory idleness into activity, through non-competition and attractive tax and rent concession basis. (2) Induce home building and attract residents by charging only land tax for a few years on such properties. (3) Increase the town's transportation facilities for non-motoring residents. (4) When results are obtained from the foregoing, improve the town's school facilities and increase its police, fire, and sewerage systems. (5) Immediately organize a group of the town's representative citizens to plan along such lines—either a Civic Improvement group, or a local Real Estate Association, which might serve also, as the interests of both groups would be concerned. The ensuing discussion centered on the need for a more active civic spirit, a more aggressive and enterprising attitude, and on the agreement that the town could attract a class which would sponsor real estate construction on a wealthy scale. The energy and interested cooperation of the older generations was cited as an example set for present-day improvement plans. The discussion ended with the conclusion that a certain amount of speculation in town expenditures is not reckless, since money spent on sound improvements that would attract new residents will in the end be profitable. Strict conservatism at the cost of civic betterment is seldom advisable. The town forums are expected to be resumed early in the Fall.

Grace Moore Feature At Star Sunday and Monday

Grace Moore in her newest screen hit, "When You're In Love," will be featured at the Star Theatre next Sunday and Monday. It is a pleasure to report that Miss Moore makes a definite return to public favor in this one. This picture is tuneful and gay, and in addition, has good script, a clever story and top-notch direction by Robert Riskin. Riskin wrote such hit screen plays as "It Happened One Night" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." This is his debut at the megaphone. Here, Miss Moore exhibits a real knack for high comedy. Of her song numbers, Schubert's "Serenade" is the most beautifully staged. Two Jerome Kern numbers, "Our Song," a lovely ballad, and "The Whistling Boy," a cute tune song with a group of kids, are pleasant to hear. The biggest surprise is her rendition of "Minnie, the Moocher." She really goes to town on this number. In the male lead, Gary Grant turns in the best performance of his career. He gives a swell portrayal which will win him a flock of new fans. This is real entertainment and a picture that the entire family will enjoy.

Next Wednesday and Thursday the feature attraction will be Jane Withers in "Gentle Julia." And of course you know that every Thursday night is Bank Nite.

Friday and Saturday there will be a double feature program with H. G. Wells' "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," as one, and "Crack Up," with an all star cast, as the companion feature.

The junior class of the high school has completed arrangements for the annual junior prom which will be held in town hall Friday night, May 14. A concert will be given from 8:00 until 9:00 o'clock and dancing will be in order until midnight. Eddie Ames and his orchestra of Southbridge will furnish the music. Robert Sandman is general chairman of the committee and is being assisted by the following: music, Dorothy Cummings, Jean Fuller, Betty Ann Royal; decorating, Helen Salem, Marjorie Stevens, Thelma Vorce; tickets and publicity, Douglas Hayes, Jay Griffith and Phillip Klimavich.

Armortred Open Season Sunday

The Armortred, the North Brookfield representatives for the 1937 season in the Central Massachusetts Baseball League, will open the season Sunday afternoon against the Spencer team at that town, at the Athletic Field. The local team has been practicing nightly on the Common under the watchful eye of Manager Andy Young. A team has been whipped into shape and the game against the Spencer boys is expected to attract a flock of local roots, anxious to see the local talent and hope for a victory over the ancient rivals. Manager Young stated that all local boys are going to be given tryouts and that all available material will be used. He advised any one seeking a berth on the team should report at the present time and during next week, as he feels that all capable of putting up good contests for positions have not yet reported. The pitching duty will revolve around Andrew Hubacek and Joe Kizile, the veteran is banking on them to form the mainstay of the pitching staff which will hold up the local end against fast teams representing other league communities. Armand Flannery, former Armortred pitcher, will do the receiving. Leo Delude, the veteran first baseman, is expected to return to the game and will hold down that position. The rest of the infield candidates include Walter Perrin, a performer with the 1936 Armortred, Stanley Hubacek, Harry Truell, Norman Stackpole and John Slora. Perrin is slated to play third base and Butch Rodzik will also do some catching. The outfield boasts plenty of speed with Francis White and Henry Gruber, William McGurk and William Wilbur being the four leading candidates for positions in the outer guard. The squad has been practicing diligently and have been drilled steadily for the big opening game with Spencer. Their first local appearance will be on the common on Wednesday night when they oppose the Auburn team.

At the Casino—Ware

A young doctor's dilemma, whether to accept a fee from a patient, for lives by his oath, or lose the woman he loves, is the story of "Internes Can't Take Money," the drama with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea which opens with Sun and Monday at the Casino Theatre, Ware. McCrea, an interne, is offered money by a grateful patient. With it McCrea would be able to marry Miss Stanwyck whom he loves, and she would be able to find her child by a previous marriage which had been taken from her. Miss Stanwyck is unable to reconcile McCrea's apparent love for her and the fact that he refuses to help her, and her child. Their paths remaining separated for many years, Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, crack songwriting team, are once more composing melodies for the two persons who first discovered them and started them on the way to success—Walter Winchell and Ben Benini. Nine songs have been completed for the Twentieth Century-Fox musical comedy extravaganza, "Wake Up and Live," which co-stars Alice Faye with the columnist and band leader, opening next Tuesday at the Casino Theatre, and among them is a special melody dedicated to the pair by their admiring tunesmiths.

The Legion Show

Austin-Tunstall Post A. L. expressed appreciation for cooperation and patronage which made a success of their amateur show in the Town hall a week ago last night. The Legion members have refrained from social activities for many months, but have lent aid to other groups, furnishing a club house for the Boy Scouts which preceded the newly organized group, so felt justified in asking aid of townsfolk and neighboring villages in making their bid for funds—while E. Theodore Hopkins directed the program and his pleasing personality as always was a help in making audience and entertainers at ease. The group of children from grades one and two taught by Mrs. Isabelle Fletcher and Miss Mary O'Donnell and trained by Music Supervisor Mr. Hopkins amazed the audience with their excellent exhibition. This group known as the Toy Symphony Orchestra and led by Thomas Mahoney of grade one, threatened to prevent other numbers from being heard; so insistent were the listeners for more encore. They were easy winners of first prize in the juvenile group, and the little leader, known best as "Tommy," was justified in strutting a bit as he accepted the prize.

First prize for adults went to Perry du, Ware roller skaters and the second award was to Leon Gadaine, soloist, of this town.

To North Brookfield went the second prize in the juvenile group. Contestants on the way to success—Warrens, Auburn, Oxford, Spencer, the Brookfields, Worcester, Gilbertville, Palmer, Charlton and Three Rivers.

Royal Van Wagner was the artist of the evening. He is a Warren resident.

WEST BROOKFIELD

Alto-Stevens

A wedding of interest took place last Saturday afternoon in West Brookfield, when Miss Elizabeth Ruth Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Allen, became the bride of Andrew Stevens, son of Highway Commissioner Ralph H. Stevens and Mrs. Stevens of the Coy hill district.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents. Relatives and friends of the couple assembled in the living room which was attractively decorated with spring flowers, yellow and white carnations, snapdragons and other spring flowers.

Hate or Loyalty?

Not many people in this world, perhaps, could successfully claim to be entirely guileless of envy. It has always been more or less of a disturbing element in human affairs between those who have and those who have not. But in the past few years particularly, owing to the extravagant utterances of the communistic-minded, and some not so minded but who regardless of consequences try to build up political or material influence by arraying class against class; by continually harping on the same string: the unequal distribution of wealth, etcetera, we have seen developed something worse than envy—namely hate. And with the development of hate, out of the window has gone the old-time loyalty and interest upon the part of workers toward and in the concerns by which they are employed. Cooperation and cordiality is supplanted by contest and quarreling. It would be senseless for anyone to deny that there have not been some employers whose policy did anything else than begot disloyalty and lack of interest. Yet it is true that the proportion of fair-minded men does not vary materially between one group and another; that it bears about the same ratio between employer and employee. The other kind, however, by their own dumb methods have helped to put the workers in a frame of mind where they quite easily accept as gospel and fair those statements made by the gibberish, shallow-minded, or one-track-minded who have an ulterior purpose in mind. There are many such exhorters who claim to be real Christians and who would be ready to annihilate any who branded them as being communistic-minded. Well, after all, what is communism? We will ignore for the moment its theory as to property and various other notions and dwell only upon one phase of its philosophy. To begin with, it denies the existence of the Christian God, and that God preached the gospel of Love; the communists and many of those who claim they are not communists, but who for the past few years have been attempting to arouse one class against another, dwelling with unconscionable unfairness upon the matter of the under-privileged and the economic injustices and using other such inflammable terms without making reasonable exception for the class—preach what is essentially the doctrine of hate; ergo what is anti-love and pro-hate is the essence anti-Christian; therefore of the essence communistic—whether or not it subscribes to all the theories of the equal division of property and other unsound ideas of the followers of Marx.

What the White Collar Man Is Missing

In conversation a few days ago with a professional man we mentioned the fact that a great many in the skilled and semi-skilled trades were now getting into the classification which required the payment of an income tax and that an income of $2500 per year was not uncommon. "Why," said he, "I know many men in my profession who do not have a net revenue anywhere approaching that, after having passed four years in a college course and three or more years in a professional school or training. On top of that they must pay their office expenses from their revenue." And he was stating a bald fact. Yet to the college trained man a place in the ranks of skilled workers seems to have little attraction, despite the fact that an adequate competence is more speedily achieved than in the professions. A title or capital letters after one's name may seem attractive, but not too attractive against a good revenue. In addition, in the skilled trades, it is a fact that college-trained or technically-trained men, who have brains and ambition, are much sought after by industry and there is no necessity for such stay too long at the bench or machine. Ability of that sort is generally recognized by employers who are nearly always looking for executives with shop experience.

Take a Walk

Automobile touring has its allurements, but for genuine recreation, for a diversion which rests the weary mind and imbues one with the joy of living, nothing surpasses a tramp through the woods and fields these Spring days. The signs on every side of Nature springing to life after a season of suspense cannot help but be invigorating to any except those with an ingrowing grouch and who seeing will not see. Though the motor car may carry one to new and unusual scenes, the view is so fleeting that it cannot by any means approach the satisfaction derived from a leisurely jaunt where one may stop, look and listen to the allurements of the countryside.

Prouty Takes Three Practice Games

The David Prouty high school baseball team started off the 1937 season with a winning streak by taking three exhibition games in succession. Their three victories were with North Brookfield Saturday, Southbridge Monday and Charlton high Tuesday afternoon. While all three contests were slugging bees, with plenty of errors being made on both sides, the locals showed up well, especially the pitching material. Bosse, the school's veteran southpaw, sent several of the visiting players to the bench via the strikeout route. La Pierre and Bercome, two new mound men, were given their chance by Coach McDonough and showed every evidence that they may make a name for themselves before the league season closes.

In a game Tuesday afternoon at the Athletic Field the locals defeated Charlton High by a score of 14 to 12.

Jack Thibault, Prouty's first baseman, hit the first home run of the season with a long drive to right center that rolled to the fence. Thibault and La Pierre also got a triple. Rallies in the first, second and fourth innings which netted the locals thirteen runs, gave them lead enough to withstand a slugging campaign put on by the visitors in sixth, seventh and eighth frames.

The score by innings:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
Charlton 0 0 4 2 0 2 2 2 0 12 14 6
Spencer 3 4 0 6 0 0 0 1 1 14 12 2

Batteries: Spencer—Lapierre, Bercome, Brose and Mullett; Charlton—Robidoux and Laconte.

It is further contemplated by this committee to conduct a contest among the eighth-grade pupils at St. Mary's school in a competitive examination on French history, the boy and girl winners to be given a free trip to the Congress in Quebec.

When Roy L. Moulton, prominent member of Brookfield Rod and Gun Club Inc., returned from a fishing trip last week and told of almost catching the largest fish he had ever seen he received a lot of razzing and had a hard time convincing some of his friends that he lost it when a pal got excited and placed a net around the tail instead of the fish and it made a getaway. Roy stood for the razzing, but Friday he returned home with a fishing trip to Lake Quacomagui and needed no alibi for a fish that got away. He not only had landed his fish but had captured a chinook salmon said to be one of the largest (if not the largest) fish ever taken from the waters of Quacomagui or Quabog. The salmon measured a little over two feet and tipped the scale at five and three-quarters pounds. Roy said he feared he was never going to taste the fish however. Everytime he decided to prepare it to cook a pal phoned in to request that he defer eating until a few friends looked at the fish. He could not give a taste to all his friends but generously shared it as best he could. The fish was pronounced perfect both in looks, size and taste. Thirty years ago the lakes were stocked but nobody ever caught any chinook salmon until very recently. Last Summer the most catches were reported. Next Spring should bring plenty of fun for anglers as the Club recently stocked the lake with three thousand baby chinook salmon.

Destruction of Constitutional Government

Without Substituting Parliamentary Government

It would seem that the proposal to "pack" the Supreme Court has been discussed from nearly all angles, but in a recent issue of The Commonwealth Peter Grahie's suggests a few thoughts which we have not seen emphasized before and which are worthy of consideration. He says, among other things:

"My mind stands aghast at the thought of 'packing' the Supreme Court of the United States. The alternative for such a procedure is obviously a constitutional amendment. I assume that such an amendment can be passed within a reasonable time. The question which arrests my attention is: Can a constitutional amendment be drafted which will afford the relief desired by its proponents without shaking our constitutional form of government to its very foundation? Let me define my terms so that there may be no doubt about my meaning. When I speak of an amendment which will afford the relief desired by its proponents I am taking it for granted that the champions of a constitutional amendment are in good faith, that they desire to curb the power of the Supreme Court and that they are striving to find ways and means which will prevent that body from defeating legislation clearly expressive of the will of the people. When I speak of shaking our constitutional form of government to its very foundation I mean to say that it is ingrained in the very fiber of our national life that the Constitution takes precedence over the Congress, that legislation which runs counter to the Constitution is invalid, and that an attempt to curb the power of the Supreme Court works toward giving the Congress priority over the Constitution. From these very definitions the deduction flows that while it is perfectly constitutional to change the Constitution, just as it was constitutional to modify it by writing prohibition into it and to modify it anew by deleting prohibition from it, if we amend the Constitution by an enactment which gives Congress precedence over the Constitution we have completely altered the very essence of our institutions. We are dealing with a vital organ, not with a mere limb. If this deduction be questioned may I ask that my challenger attempt to draw an amendment that will curb the power of the Supreme Court and not, at the same time, deform our institutions? The supremacy of our judiciary and the subordination of our legislature are inherent in our national life. The proposed constitutional amendment would be so destructive of the structure of our body politic that all the reverential love which I bear to our institutions, all my conceptions of what constitutional, as opposed to parliamentary or dictatorial government should be, cause me to dread the enactment of any amendment which would curb the power of the Supreme Court. In this presenting the issue I am taking it for granted that it is not proposed to offer an amendment which would validate the legislation which the Supreme Court has rejected. I am accepting as a fact that it is not intended to submit an amendment which would apply to measures which have not yet been passed by the Congress. My entire argument is predicated upon the theory that those who are thinking in terms of a constitutional amendment envisage one that will get away from specific propositions and boldly attack the authority of the Court to invalidate congressional legislation. A remedy of such a nature will be revolutionary. It will mean scrapping the entire fabric of the Constitution. It will involve amputating a healthy leg in order to cure an ingrowing toe-nail. It will be worse than that. It will result in destroying constitutional government without substituting for it a parliamentary government because the executive will not be amenable to Congress and his responsibility to the legislative arm of the state is the sine qua non of parliamentary government."

Why Disrespect For Law?

Has anybody the correct answer to the question why there is so little respect for law? In pioneer days, and on the frontier, where the facilities for reasonable legal procedure were not to be had, it was not altogether strange if people sometimes took the law into their own hands and defended their rights and property by force. Naturally such conditions led to what we understand as lawlessness—absence of the law or its administration. But as the frontiers receded and the pioneer towns took on more and more the aspects of civilization it was natural to expect, and it did follow generally, that respect and regard for proper administration of statute law grew. But we have come a long way since the frontier days, and why is it that there seems to be such a recession to lawlessness and contempt for law? On top of it, down strikes, the doings of racketeers and the small respect that the gangster holds for human life, pulling the trigger as quickly and with less provocation than the "bad men" of the West are reputed to have done, we have reports of those already confined in prisons "yamming" and defying the principal cause of their incarceration. But there are enough silly sentimentalists in the world, who by their interference with things at the prisons, convince prisoners that they are victims of circumstances; that society is unfair and imposing undue punishment upon them. In fact it is probably true that most of them would blame somebody else than themselves for their predicament; hence it is not difficult to build up that feeling when encouragement comes from outside sources. In fact some prison authorities have some weird tales to tell of the something more than sympathy that women attempt to show toward those even convicted of dastardly capital crimes. Prison reform is all right if it reforms, but if something that is called reform, but in fact is morbid or even sordid sentimentality, interferes with orderly and reasonable punishment, then those who display that sort of thing are doing their share to increase disrespect for law.

A Successful Life

To those who labor so industriously to pile up popularity for themselves in either the world of finance or politics and try to achieve what the world commonly understands as success, by self-assertion and ways that are devious, we commend the life of Joseph D. Hadley, of whose death our news columns speak this week. To acquire the universal word of praise and high words of regard that we hear on every side expressed of him, who went about his job humbly, efficiently, simply but efficiently, whether it were that of his avocation, his church or his duties as a citizen, or to society and family, is to achieve what we think is successful.

Plan To Hold Wrestling Bout At Athletic Field

Foster Remis and Gideon Beaudin, promoters of wrestling at the social hall in the Town Hall for the past five months, plan to hold matches at the Athletic Field this summer. The first bout is to be held there on Monday night, May 24. The ring will be placed near the grandstand and will be lighted by several flood lights. Outdoor bouts have proved very popular during the summer months throughout the country and the promoters believe the local show will draw from several of the surrounding towns as well as the local fans.

Two girl wrestlers, Sis Layden of Holyoke and Connie Waters from Greenfield, were the special attraction at the last meet. Waters was the victor in twenty-three minutes. In the main bout, George Lanthier of Fitchburg defeated Max, The Panther, Greenfield, in two out of three falls. In the preliminaries Curley of Springfield won a decision from Nick Lotus of Hartford when he was disqualified for using illegal holds, and Chick Edwards of Waterbury, Conn., floored young Sullivan of East Hartford in sixteen minutes.

Connie Bird was the announcer, Chick Kelly, referee and Foster Remis, timer. "Chet" Wilson, proprietor of a local restaurant, was challenged by Connie Bird prominent local ball player to a match after it was announced that Wilson would meet all comers. While the challenge was not accepted by Wilson it is expected that the boys may get together during the summer series of bouts.

Local Group Summering At Lake Lashaway

In a little cottage hidden among the trees on the west shore of Lake Lashaway, East Brookfield, eight locals have taken up their summer residence. As the boys are all lovers of the higher type of music the site of the lodge is but a short distance from a popular Summer "jazz factory." Heading the group is Samuel Rosenthal, widely known throughout Worcester County for his proficiency in the art of terpsichorean, and the proprietor of a popular Spencer eating place. Sam plans to give the boys some free instructions in the art, so that when they return in the fall they will be better fitted to cope with the off-beat tempo of the swing music and new fangled ideas that may call for the twisting and twisting of feet before the music stops.

Also in the party is Wrestler Foster Bemis, who is it understood, will instruct the boys in the gentle art of grappling and prepare them as special attraction at the social hall next winter. In the group are Albert King, James Millet, Noe Dufault, Bert Matheson, Albert Remillard, George Harris, Samuel Rosenthal and Foster Bemis.

Prouty Defeats Leicester In First League Game

David Prouty, baseball team defeated Leicester high Tuesday afternoon at the Athletic Field in the first Western Worcester County high school league game to be played here this season. It was a slugger bee throughout, with both teams hitting freely. Robert Bosse, the local southpaw, walked ten and fanned ten in six innings. He was relieved by Frank Mullet, the regular catcher and a reserve pitcher who closed the contest by one hit, two strikeouts and allowing six runs. A. Laplante, the visiting twister, gave seven free bases and struck out four. H. Laplante, Leicester catcher, with a triple, and Clifford Doolittle, left fielder, with a double took the hitting honors.

While the Spencer boys scored in every inning but one and Leicester in every inning but four, the deciding stanzas came for the locals in the fifth and the visitors in fourth when both teams tallied six runs each. The contest closed with the score Spencer 16, Leicester 15.

The first batter for the locals in the fifth was Lapierre, who singled. Autcoin and Mullet both followed with a free trip to first. Robert Bosse singled and the bases were cleaned. Bosse stole second and arrived at third when Billie Small popped a short one to the Leicester second baseman. Bosse and Small scored on a single by Captain Doolittle. Doolittle traveled around to third on a couple of passed balls and scored on an error by Daniels, second baseman for Leicester. Jack Thibault fled out to Berthiaume in the sixth. He retired on a double play in which Leclair and Wilson were the batters involved. Leclair had got on first when Daniels fumbled his grounder. Wilson hit a hot one to the Leicester short who recovered the ball and threw to second getting Leclair. The double was completed when Wilson was thrown out at first.

In Leicester's rally in the fourth, A. Laplante, the first man to bat, fanned. Saublosky walked and traveled around to third on two passed balls. Lenington walked and stole second. Saublosky and Lenington scored on a squeeze play by Daniels. Berthiaume got on first on an attempted double play of his grounder. Johnson walked filling the bases. The bases were cleared when Lapierre fumbled a grounder by H. Laplante. H. Laplante scored on a single by R. Reeves. The side was retired on a double play. Steve and Laplante were the runners involved.

Variety Bill At Park

Ricardo Cortez and Gail Patrick will be seen in "Her Husband Lies," next Sunday and Monday at the Park theatre. Here is a film you can sink your teeth into and take home with you. It's good drama, handled expertly by the players. Ricardo Cortez, a gambler, plays a character similar to the famous Arnold Rothstein and does a good job. Be sure and see it. The companion feature is "Girl From Scotland Yard," with Karen Morley.

"Midnight Taxi," starring Brian Donlevy and Frances Drake, will be presented next Tuesday. It is an exciting film of cops, counterfeiters and murder. Although Donlevy is a G-man and Frances Drake a member of a gang, the pair find a way to work out a happy ending. The second feature on this program is rapid-fire Western romance, "Hills of Old Wyoming," starring Bill Boyd.

Another double feature program will be offered next Wednesday and Thursday. Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor in their newest film, "Personal Property." In this one Reginald Owen, Taylor's brother, has designs for marriage with Jean, an American widow, believing she has a fortune and could help him in his financial embarrasment. Jean suffers from the same illusion and is reconciled to marrying Owen when younger brother Bob returns from a spell in jail. Innocent of the romance in the family, Bob meets Jean, is attracted to her and from there on the story weaves around to end just the way you want it to end. The second feature is James Dunn and Jean Rogers in "Mysterious Crossing."

WITH THE
HEALTH REPORTER
Reducing Safely

LAST week all of you who intend to follow these directions for reducing were instructed to have your physician first and have a thorough physical examination. I hope you have done that. And now let us look a little more closely into this matter of too much food—the cause of overweight in so many cases. The food we take is the fuel for our body. It provides the energy that makes us "go." However, the body has no storage bin in which to keep excess food. If there is an excess, it must either be burned up needlessly and wasted, or it must be transformed into fat and stored in the muscles and elsewhere. This is a simple and natural explanation of the problem of excess weight in most instances. Consequently it is clear that if we wish to reduce, we must cut down on the amount of food. The thing to do is to eat less. We must eat at the same time take more exercise to help consume the fat already stored up. This does not mean to go to great lengths on the system, because there is no enforced period of serious lack of food or starvation. At the same time, the increased exercise, taken regularly, builds up the muscular system and increases the resistance to disease. More about this next week. In the meantime, don't be starting off on any starvation diet of your own. For the time being, continue eating about as you have been accustomed. Above all, do not stint yourself on milk, leafy vegetables such as lettuce, spinach, cabbage or water cress and fruits, particularly the citrus fruits. This thing more: Be sure you are eating and keep on hand each of these articles on weight reduction. From time to time, you will need to refer to them.

In 1882, late one August afternoon, Alkali Pete rode some what apprehensively into Tombstone, Arizona, talking to his bony horse. "Wal, Tim, here we be, in the wildest durn town in Arizona. Hope we'll have better luck than we did in Colorado. We've gotta get us one of them charms this time." He said stiffly of the nag before a gypsy fortune-teller's tent. He said to the dirty, shrewd gypsy: "I want a charm, one of them things that makes you lucky. I ain't never had no luck." The evil color of the crafty old gypsy's eyes deepened. He saw her standing in front of the jail in Denver, Colorado, looking at a poster the jailer had just tacked to a bulletin board with his hand. "Next day the sheriff and Harry Lane leaned over the bar of the high saloon, talking. Harry Lane was asking, "What proof have you that he killed Gypsy Jane?" "This," said the sheriff, "is the envelope from his shirt pocket which he left behind, open, it tells us his five fingers were so that Alkali Pete could look inside and then the black drained from Alkali Pete's face. When Hippo Is Dangerous
The hippopotamus is a natural timid, though subject to fits of pique or rage. When wounded or enraged, it is a most dangerous animal. It is regarded by some men as perhaps the most dangerous beast to be encountered. Use of Welsh Language The Welsh language is the first of the Celtic languages. It is spoken by nearly half of the population of Wales, and is used in the churches and church schools. Fifteen per cent of the population of Wales speak Welsh only. When Welsh Gave Up "Anybody," says one woman, "who used the new steam roller once before declaring that it was a housekeeper and not an engine."—Kansas City Star. A Notice Displayed in a New York rooming house, where the knives and forks are taken away from the guests, reads: "The gypsy showed surprise. 'Was bank robbed last night?' 'I'll say it was. Thirty-two thousand dollars. And you were seen on the street near the bank.' 'Me and dream last night. How much reward for robbery?' 'I don't know yet. Why?' 'Me know nothing—yet. But suppose man come to me, have fortune tell me new price on his head and me tell you. Me get what?' The sheriff pondered. 'I'll give you half if you reward correct.' 'Some time after the sheriff left Alkali Pete walked into the gypsy's tent and dropped a package on a chair. 'That's yore five thousand dollars and the charm's worth it. Nobody seen us and nobody suspects us.' The old gypsy moaned. 'Me not so sure.' The big man growled, 'What'd ya mean?' 'The sheriff was here.' 'His bushy eyebrows drew together in a threatening manner. 'What'd ya tell him about the package?' 'The gypsy told him of a chair, saying, 'Me tell him man who robbed bank wanted in Denver.' 'Some of the color drained from the red face as he asked, 'How much'd ya want?' She stated boldly, 'Eleven more thousand dollars.' A voice at the front of the tent saved the gypsy's life. That night Alkali Pete carried a heavy sack to the gypsy and dropped it at her feet, saying, 'That ya be. Now, ya have half of it, ya'd better be satisfied. If ya're not it'll be just too bad. Ya understand?' The old hag was holding out to the sheriff. 'A writing, please?' 'Disgusted he took an old envelope out of his pocket and wrote on it. 'How's this?' He handed the envelope to the gypsy, who divided it with her 80-50 reward I obtain for the capture, dead or alive, of the man who killed Gypsy Jane. 'Terrible,' he said to him. 'She had been so sure he'd have left Tombstone! He mocked her, now. 'Haw! can't you read?' ### At the Casino—Ware

Marooned by the blizzard in a mountain lodge, with only a stuffed mouse as companion and crackers for food—that's the romantic predicament that faces Don Ameche and Ann Sothern in "Fifty Roads to Town", Twentieth Century-Fox's laugh-spiced romance opening Sunday at the Casino Theatre, Ware.

Supporting these two vital, delightful and thrilling stars Slim Summerville, Jane Darwell, John Qualen, Douglass Fowley, Allan Lane, Ann Dinehart and Stepin Fetchit add humor and excitement to the season's most zestful escape.

A riotous adventure of mistaken identities "Fifty Roads to Town" starts off in high when Don Ameche, receiving a mysterious telephone call that someone is ready to shoot him on sight, hurriedly leaves town in his car. Roaring along the road to Canada at the same time is Ann Sothern, and chasing both of them is a motorcycle cop.

George H. Doane of New York City and Miss Jessie Worstell of Brooklyn left for New York City Sunday, after being guests with Mr. Doane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon A. Doane. George H. Doane is a florist in the hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. Miss Worstell visited relatives here during the visit.

FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1937

How impractical any socialistic or communistic scheme must be that promises a condition of "all for one and one for all," "share and share alike," "everybody on the same level," etc. In any enterprise, no matter how altruistic in ideals, there must be directors; there must be leaders. Leadership is attained either by brains, force or drag, or some times by a combination of all three—though rarely. It is also natural that the leaders will do less manual labor at least than those in the ranks and also natural that they will live on a little higher level. It is equally true that it is human nature for the leaders or directors to perfect an organization that will retain them in leadership. So after all what is to be gained by any socialistic movement which merely exchanges one set of bosses for another and ultimately reduces the general standard of living for nearly everybody? Is it worthwhile exchanging the condemned capitalist system, had as it may be in some respects, for a scheme which stifles ambition and the chance that is given every man and woman in the old system to rise above the level in which he or she may have been born, for a plan which reduces all—except the new group of bosses—to a level of mediocrity?

In an article in the Detroit News last month Henry Ford hints that there is an alliance between the so-called "financial interests" and the labor unions and that the purpose of many strikes is to kill competition. If that is true then such an alliance might well be called an unholy one. The highlights in this article by Mr. Ford include the following: "A monopoly of jobs in this country is as bad as a monopoly of bread. . . . This group (the union organizers) is asking us to sit still while it sells our men the jobs that have always been free. . . . What was the result of these strikes—merely that numbers of men put their neck into an iron collar. I'm only trying to show who owns the collar. . . . Figure it out for yourself. If you go into a union they have got you—what have you got? . . . I've always made a better bargain for my men than an outsider could. We have never had to bargain against our men and we don't expect to begin now. . . . There is no mystery about the connection between corporation control and labor control. They are two ends of the same rope. A little group of those who control both capital and labor will sit down in New York and settle prices, dividends and wages."

If the matter of a referendum on biennial sessions of our legislature comes before the people at the next election, which now seems likely, we will hear a great deal upon the pros and cons of this matter which legislators have been rather inclined to refuse to endorse, until pressure was brought to bear by the taxpayers' associations and others. The principal argument has of course been that it would save a substantial sum of money over annual sessions, but we have heard some very honest and able legislators state that they doubt if this will happen; that the probability will be an increase in salaries to compensate for the loss of a year's job. It may not meet much in actual savings after all, but in adopting biennial sessions we will be falling in line with most other states. Now if they would have biennial sessions of Congress, why that would be something. We might now and then count upon twelve months of relative stability.

That the casualties ran up well into the thousands among the multitude which crowded and jostled each other in order to get a glimpse of the pageantry at the coronation of the King of England is viewed with some astonishment by Americans. Many express themselves as surprised that the Britons (among whom also were a generous sprinkling of curious Yankees) should get so "bet up" over coronation ceremonies. Yet we doubt if Americans differ except in degree from their British cousins in their love for the glamour of pageantry of this sort. To be sure our inaugurations of a President do not attract quite so much excitement, but then these occasions happen rather frequently with us. It is evident enough that the words of a once popular song can be subscribed to by nearly all persons of whatever nativity: "I Love a Parade." Even the Salvation Army realizes this and capitalizes upon this trait of human nature.

Building Code Adopted

An important step in the interest of the property owners of Leicester was taken at the town meeting held Thursday of last week. The voters assembled approved of a set of building codes for the town and all persons planning to build will be required to abide by them. A permit must be granted by the selectmen for any building to be constructed, moved or materially altered. For construction costing less than $500, a fee of 50 cents; over $500, and less than two thousand, a charge of $1; and over two thousand, a charge of $2. The regulations also provide no building shall be built nearer than twenty feet of the state highway, or to the line of the street except where there are buildings within 100 feet on either side which are nearly and in the specifications, when it may be constructed on line with existing buildings with permission of the selectmen. The code also provides no building shall be erected within twenty feet of any building on either side or within ten feet of the side line of the property. It also provides for an appeal to be made to the selectmen and acted on by them with the advisory board as a committee. It was voted to rescind the vote taken in April authorizing the selectmen to borrow $3000 against tax titles, to be used for WPA projects. Appropriations made were public welfare $2000, old age assistance $1000, dependent children $1000, and WPA projects $4000 as recommended by the state finance board.

Other appropriations were $200 for soldiers relief; $1900.56 to pay 1936 bills received after the first of the year, $200 for the fire wardens for the rest of the year. Ernest Tibbitt was the moderator of the meeting. The school committee was given authority to use $2000 of the money received from the insurance of the town property in the high school for the replacement of books and other equipment.

Miss Mondor and young Lahto were rescued from being burned to death by Robert Lyons and Mrs. Harold Haskell, who came upon the car within a few minutes after the accident. The gas had started to burn the car, Chief John O'Keefe and highway department inspectors with the state police report it was a case of too much gas. As tests proved the car was in good condition as to brakes, etc.

Reducing Safely

FOOD faddists do a lot of glib talking about the calories. I wonder how many of them really know what they are talking about. Just what do we mean by the term "Calorie"? It is important that the person going on a reducing diet have an intelligent understanding of that term. The energy contained in foods is measured by calories. A calorie is a unit of heat. When we say a given amount of food represents a certain number of calories, we mean that this food when burned in the body will release that amount of heat to be transformed into muscular energy.

All foods yield energy, but in different amounts. Some foods, such as sweets and fats, yield a large amount of heat. Others, like leafy vegetables, are low in heat yield, though they are rich in important foods in other respects. A large apple may be calculated to yield about 100 calories. A glass of milk will give about the same number of calories. The normal amount of work he does. The normal physical work he does, the more energy he needs to accomplish it. Brain work requires very little energy.

Here is a simple table by which you can calculate approximately the amount of food any normal adult should have each day. I say approximately, for the exact calculation is difficult for the average person and can be done only in a laboratory. The table will be close enough to give you a basis for work at the start of your diet. Once you have started, you can experiment with the amounts until you find the right combination.

Remember—these are the average, normal requirements. Of course, if you are overweight, adjustments will have to be made, as I shall explain in my next article. And now, here is the table—the detailed explanation of which I shall give in my next article:

1. If you take no exercise, you should have 14 to 16 calories per every pound of your body weight daily.
2. If you take light exercise, you should have 16 to 18 calories.
3. If you take moderate exercise, 18 to 20 calories.
4. If you do very hard labor, 20 to 23 calories.
5. If you do very hard labor, 23 to 26 calories.

Be sure you cut out and keep this article, so that you have it in hand when I explain how to use the table next week.

There are Two Sides to Most Questions

We hope that the newspapers did not print all the facts in regard to the preliminaries at the Executive offices in Washington, prior to the preparation of the legislation on minimum wages, shorter hours and other things of less value which were a part of the old NRA from which the Supreme Court saved the country and started it on its way out of the depression. According to newspaper reports Mr. Lewis of the C. I. O. and Mr. Green of the A. F. of L., together with various congressmen who have been the particular spokesmen of those two groups, were called into consultation in regard to legislation that is being proposed to Congress from the Executive offices upon these subjects. Perhaps representatives of industry were also called into consultation, but the newspapers do not make report of any. Yet there are two sides to nearly every important question, and surely industry would be in a position to offer valuable information upon these problems that interest legislators and business as well as the politicians. There is no gain saying the fact either, that whatever legislation is passed that is harmful to business will also be harmful to labor, and likewise any enactments that damage seriously the interests of labor will have deleterious effect upon industry. The interests of the two are not dissimilar. Fair-minded people have little reason to object to an enactment determining a minimum wage that will bear equally upon all in the same line of business and with due regard to territorial differences. The latest proposal of a minimum of $16 for forty hours does not seem unreasonable, though if that minimum is finally determined upon there are bound to be some disappointments to some who hope thereby to be able to maintain a little higher level of living. For this reason: the change must result in a certainty that is as settled as that of the principle of gravity, namely, the cost of living will shoot up somewhat proportionately, so that people in the minimum wage class may not be much if any better off than before. The matter of regulating hours will not be so easy a matter to adjudicate, plagued as it is by the troubles of seasonal and rush orders, and many other matters.

Settlement of One Problem Brings Another

Upon the interstate commerce clause have been based many of the opinions of the higher and highest courts validating new legislation to effect certain ideas, particularly under the New Deal. One time a bugaboo to those who would change radically the status quo, it has now frequently been utilized for the opposite purpose. But in this, as in many another plan of men, there arises a situation which presents another problem, which if invoked might render helpless one of the chief weapons of labor in fighting its battles—the right to strike. No less an authority than Mathew Woll of the American Federation of Labor hints that a strike which interferes with the flow of interstate commerce is unlawful and could be restrained by law. There have been decisions somewhat to this effect. It is clear that employers cannot observe certain practices, if they are engaged in interstate commerce, but when a strike interferes with the free flow of commerce there it runs afoul of the law too. No doubt, however, with the lineup as it now is at Washington labor will find a means to legislate that difficulty out of the way, if indeed it exists very seriously in fact.

Lest We Forget

With commendable fidelity the American Legion is trying to carry on the practices associated with Memorial day as established by the G. A. R. That more people do not take an interest in the observance, and seem interested in some things quite contrary to the spirit of the day, is to be regretted. There cannot be many families who do not have some member associated with the army or navy service of either the Civil or World Wars, and it would seem only decent recognition of that service if some slight interest were shown in those exercises which seek to memorialize that service. The Legion is becoming something more than an organization of war veterans, as can be seen from its activity in governmental matters. It has taken a strong position in regard to the packing of the Supreme Court and nullifying the Constitution by subterfuge, and similar matters. The members of that organization know something of the cost of government, other than the monetary cost and deserve reasonable support in whatever of their endeavors are well directed.

High School Students' Play and Operetta Big Success

The one-act play and operetta, "Paints and Patches," presented by students of David Prouty high school Wednesday night in Memorial Town hall, was one of the finest amateur entertainments presented here for some time. The play, under the direction of Miss Austin and Mr. Warner, was very well done. It was exceptionally well cast with the following: Ruth Green as Alice Waybury, Eleanor Mansur as her daughter, Sheila Waybury; Hildreth Fisher as George Connaught; Ernest Butler, Jr., as Geoffrey Chandler, and Norma Collette as Nellie, the maid.

The operetta, "Paints and Patches," under the direction of Miss Evangeline Goddard, had some appealing musical numbers, elaborate costumes and gave the youthful performers an opportunity to display some unusual entertaining ability. Throughout the entire piece the comedy and lighter parts were handled excellently.

Two specialty dance numbers were introduced. Miss Jape Torrey did a toe dance and Miss Pauline Gaudette did a tap routine.

Members of the cast were James Edridge, Martha Jetta, June Hamilton, Rita Madden, Lucille Latour, Auri Gerish, Adrian Gravelin, Yvette Guerlin, Dorothy Woodbury, Rita Madden, Ina Bemis, Gail Livermore, Robert Swift, Robert Agard, Fred McCallie, Albert Brousseau, Miriam Butler, Doris Collette, Norma Collette, Thelma Conney, Mary Ficciello, Ruth Green, Ina Holdroyd, Marjorie Kenneway, Lucille Menard and Harriet Smith.

Stage managers were Clifford Doolittle and Ernest Butler. Business managers, Donald Roberts, David Green and Philip Johnson.

Mrs. C. Newton Prouty assisted in the direction of the operetta, Mrs. Robert Bemis had charge of make-up and Miss Rachel Dufault had charge of the art properties.

The high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Mance Demers, gave selections and furnished the music for the production.

The program was done by students at the high school and the front cover was drawn by Miss Rita Fletcher.

Cherry Valley Defeats Spencer A. A., 5-1, in League Contest

The Spencer A. A. received their second defeat of the season last Sunday afternoon at Community Field, Leicester, when the Cherry Valley A. C. defeated them 5 to 1 in a regular Central Mass. League game. The game was called by Umpire Dempsey in the first half of the seventh because of rain. Spencer in this half tallied a couple of more runs but the game reverted back to the previous inning.

The Cherry Valley outfit made all of their runs in the first stanza when they clouted Matheson, the local southpaw, for four hits and were presented one walk. With three men on, Farrell, the backstop for Cherry Valley, drove a hard one down the third base line that went for a double and cleared the bases. With one out Jubinville hit into right for a single and sent Farrell to third. Gonyea fled out to Andy Ethier. Farrell scored on a single by Setaro and Jubinville tallied on a single by LaMotte. The hectic inning came to an end when Hickey fled out to Gosulek.

Spencer made their run in the third. Beland, the first man to bat, fled out to Jubinville. Loggren walked. Moreau grounded out to Hennessey. Vandale walked. R. Collette put a long drive into center that went for a single and scored Loggren. The side was retired when Kosulek fled out to Jubinville.

NORTH BROOKFIELD SAVINGS BANK ROBBED BY BANDITS

Miss Cronin believed the younger man to be left-handed as the position which he took when he covered her with the gun was demonstrated by her and police agreed on the theory. Large sums of money were overlooked by the pair in their haste to scoop out the cash drawer and rifle the vault.

One of the auditors, emerging from the building almost on the heels of the bandits stated that he believed, from his hurried look, that the first four numbers on the license plate were 0658. Descriptions of the getaway car varied greatly and it was hard to get an agreement on just what type it was, its color and whether or not the plates might be those of Connecticut, Vermont, or Rhode Island. A pedestrian on Grove street discovered a New Hampshire license plate, which is black and white, and turned it over to Chief of Police Leo L. DeLude in the belief that it might have some connection with the robber car but it was stated that there was none, after a checkup. State troopers visited farmhouses in the district in their checkup of all roads leading out of the town. Wednesday night they checked up on all camps at Brooks Pond and at Lake Lashaway in the belief that the wanted men might be hiding out in a camp.

Officials expressed the opinion yesterday morning that they believed the bandits had planned to seize the payroll consigned to a local factory where the help are paid on that day. It is believed that the pair had arrived at the bank for the purpose of seizing that money. A conversation between the men as reported by Miss Cronin led to that conclusion. "I think there was something else they were after," Miss Cronin said, "because the younger one came out of the office with the money and the other bandit said, 'did you get it?' The other answered 'No, I couldn't find it.'"

The robbery marked the second time the bank has been looted in less than five years. In November 1932 four men participated in an early-morning looting and escaped with about $1300. They were later captured through the alertness of George Kelley, then chief of police, who secured the license number of the bandits' car. All were captured several hours later and those convicted received a short sentence. The money was recovered.

A description was given out by the state police of the two wanted men. The elder of the two was described by them as being about 65, five feet, six inches in height, having gray hair; full face and ruddy complexion and wearing overalls similar to those worn by railroad workers. The other man was said to be about 35, five feet, ten inches tall, 140 pounds, thin face, dark complexioned, dark hair. He was described as wearing an old suit. Both men were believed to be wearing such clothing for disguise. One person, who saw the pair run across the bank lawn, declared that the "old man" was the best runner he ever saw "for 65 years old." They were reported to be laughing as they left the bank and entered their car.

The worthless tip of the coupe with Connecticut plates being seen in the School street ditch added the fleeing pair for more than twenty minutes was consumed in the chase. The two troopers who responded first left the bank on the strength of the tip, which appeared to be a red hot one, and they were driving in the opposite direction of that reported taken by the holdup men, who as near as could be determined, were heading in the general direction of New Braintree, for after a thorough investigation later in the afternoon it was determined that the bandit car did pass the Schroe farm on Valley road. From there they had several more roads to pick from in their flight. Up to last night no trace whatever had been found. Pictures of the former holdup men were shown to Miss Cronin and others but they declared they recognized none.

Armortreds Defeat Brookfield 3 to 1

The Armortreds and the Brookfield baseball teams met on the Common Sunday afternoon, played a very quiet game instead of the exciting one expected, and when rain arrived to end the game in the seventh inning the Armortreds were leading 3 to 1, and thereby won the game. Johnny Grudoff toed the slab again for the Rubber boys and he permitted three hits to the Brookfield team, while Prunier, pitching for Brookfield, allowed seven hits and that difference tells the story of the game. Both teams boasted a heavy sprinkling of out-of-town players, of whom Kearney and Kiminski, playing for the Armortreds, sparked. Gadaire singled in the first inning and Chickering and Powell singled in the third inning for Brookfield's three hits. The Armortreds started to score in the second inning when Kearney beat out a hit to short, reached third on a double by Rittenhouse and scored on a Texas leaguer by Murphy. Flannan reached first on a force out at second, Grudoff struck out and then McCarthy singled to center field and Rittenhouse and Flannan scored from third and second. Perrin struck out, to end the inning. Brookfield scored in the third after two were out. Powell singled to left field and then stole second. He reached third when McCarthy fumbled Chickering's grounder at second base and then scored when the ball rolled into right field. Grudoff struck out eight Brookfield batters. Prunier struck out four Armortreds.

Dial Telephone Plans Announced

Manager James A. Donoghue of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company announced this week that plans have been completed to change the present magneto telephone service in North Brookfield to dial service early in 1938. When the new installation is completed subscribers will no longer have to turn cranks on their bell boxes to signal the operator; they will just lift the receiver and dial the number of the party with whom they wish to be connected.

Mr. Donoghue stated that construction work on the new building to house the dial equipment is well under way. The new building is located on a lot owned by the company at the corner of South Main and Gilbert streets and it is expected that the building will be completed early this summer. It is a one-story brick Colonial style structure measuring 43 feet by 20 feet. North Brookfield's new telephone exchange building will contain the latest type of dial equipment which needs no attendants. Special circuits will be installed between this town and Worcester, so that calls which require the assistance of an operator can be handled from Worcester. In addition to providing service for all customers in this town the telephone company plans to change all of its pay stations in the exchange from the post-payment to the pre-payment type. This change will give North Brookfield the same type of pay stations as are used in the larger cities of the Bell system. The lot where the building is located will be suitably landscaped. When the extensive work incidental to making these changes is completed North Brookfield will have one of the most up-to-date exchanges in a community of its size.

Newspaper Story Featured in Star Theatre Film

"Love Is News," starring Tyrone Power and Loretta Young, comes to the Star Theatre, North Brookfield, next Sunday and Monday. It is a story of a dashing young newspaperman, a hard-boiled city editor, and a publicity-hounded heiress. It is a fast moving force which can be recommended both as a satire on the newspaper business and a good comedy romance. As heiress to a tin can fortune, Loretta Young finds all of her activities recorded by a hysterical press, which seem to care not for floods and famine so long as it can spread her lovely pan across its front pages. As city editor of the Daily Express, Don Ameche affects a derby hat and stick and is given to loud shouting in the true comedy city editor tradition. His constant enemy is Tyrone Power, star newspaperman of the paper, one of those fictional reporters who spends all of his time in the corner saloon, yet never fails to scoop his competitors. When Miss Young turns the tables on Mr. Power and gives him a generous dose of the publicity he's been handing her, the film accelerates to a giddy pace. Young is excellent as the young newsman. There are fine bits by Slim Summerville, Walter Catlett, Dudley Digges, George Sanders and Pauline Moore.

For next Wednesday and Thursday Victor MacLagen will be seen in "Nancy Steele Is Missing." Thursday night the regular Bank Note will be held.

A double feature program will be offered for next Friday and Saturday with Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern in "Smartest Girl in Town," and Ralph Bellamy in "Wild Brian Kent."

At the Casino, Ware

With three famous stars heading its cast—Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson and Humphrey Bogart—a drama of the prize-ring called "Kid Galahad" will have its premiere Sunday at the Casino Theatre, Ware.

Made from the best-selling novel by Francis Wallace, as sports fictionists this Warner Bros. thriller deals not only with those elements of the boxing ring with which everyone is familiar, but with the behind-scenes maneuvering of fighters and managers.

Requiem Old Times

Mr. Nellie Webster of New York has as guests at her cottage on the shore of Lake Quabbin this week two former residents, Everett Mathewson of Avalon, Catalina Island, and Edwin J. White of Nevada City. The two are getting a great "kick" out of looking over the old home town which they are seeing for the first time in forty-five years. They remember the town booming with business, large factories and homes crowded with people, a town filled with life and fun. As they sit on the porch at the cottage and look across the lake they see what is now Newton's Y. M. C. A., but was at the time the good old "Point of Pines," home of picnic, dance hall and roller skating rink. They were warmly greeted as they looked over Oakland Park, and found part of it just a thick, former site of one of the finest race tracks in the state. Their stories of life in those days are so vivid that they furnish interest for all here. Mr. Mathewson, while attending Polytechnic Institute in Worcester, watched boat builders at Lake Quabbin and vowed he was going to become a boat builder himself. He did build a few before leaving here after his graduation back forty-seven years ago. He started on his journey home filled with ambition but cash and traveled on the Canadian Pacific railroad before it was really completed. Luck was against his bid for economy however and every merchant along the route never gave back any change, and until he was well accustomed to a method of beating them down it was an expensive experience. He paid one dollar for a bottle of "pop" (one he recalls it took eight days to go from Winnipeg, then a town of 8,000, to Vancouver. At times the train traveled so slowly the passengers got out and walked. Many of the passengers carried guns and would get out and shoot. He said ducks filled every lake and deer were common. One brilliant train trip was longer than the ration supply and one potato a day was his portion for a time. He finally landed in Seattle with his supply of tools for boat making intact. For a year Lady Luck smiled on him, but along came the famed Seattle fire, leaving him with the clothes he was wearing and a ten dollar gold piece he had as a keepsake. He was "stone broke." No way to get back home and work. With two companions he lived for a week on canned goods salvaged from the fire. His memory of the fire is one of the most gruesome and awesome imaginable he states. The place he knew so well were wiped out in seconds.

Soon after this he met Mr. White and they started out again for California. An old sailor put the idea of a glass bottom boat into his mind and in a year's time he had perfected it. He made these boats (the first glass bottomed boat in history) for years and in all types and sizes, some carrying 300 persons.

For ten years he built more boats than any other company on the California coast. Fifteen years ago his luck came—fire swept Avalon, taking with it his boat business. He went about remarking his business but on a much lighter plan but it still an active boat maker employing about twenty persons. Before the fire he had all the latest boat building equipment and a marine railroad in which ships were caught and drydocked for copper painting, which should be done four times a year. He owned three oil barges that supplied the entire island with oil. At the time of the fire he saw 2,500 barrels of oil explode and shoot upwards like sky rockets and he paying for the fireworks.

Mr. White got his start lighting up the old town and carried his ladder on his back and his oil in a can as he trudged about illuminating Brookfield with thirty street lights.

His first work in California was as a meat cutter in Los Angeles and Catalina Isle. Gold was his aim though and eventually he worked in more than a score of mining camps in California and Nevada. After a few years he became a meat contractor and worked at it for a quarter of a century. For the past fourteen years he and his son have been operating a mill in Nevada City, Calif., where they extract gold from its ore. He resides in Fallon, Nevada, about two hundred miles away.

Both men complain of the limited speed here and remark the roads are not properly constructed or trees planted in way to permit of speedways.

These two men left town together and were separated for forty-two years, never meeting until last year, when Mr. Webster went to the coast to visit her brother. They had a reunion then.

Mr. White's wife is the former Anna Dean of North Brookfield but she did not come East this trip. Her last visit was in 1933.

Mr. Mathewson married a Los Angeles resident.

His former Brookfield home was the house until recently occupied by George C. Mason on the Boston Post road.

Mr. and Mrs. George Finney have taken up their residence at the Lewis house on the corner of Peasey and Main streets, still referred to by old timers as the Gerald estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Quinlan and children Bernard, Elizabeth, Gerald and Eugene, Miss Katherine Gaffney, all of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark and children Patricia and Jean of Portland, Me., Misses Mary and Elizabeth Clark of Worcester were holiday guests of George H. Brookfield T. Y. defeated the league leading Rockdale nine 5 to 4 in a fast and well played game on Community grounds Sunday afternoon. Dan Daley who starred on the team here last year stole home to tie the score in the sixth inning with one run in and two out. In fighting the flames Mr. Morgan followed him on to third, Prunier the hard working moundman then won his own ball game by banging the ball into Legion bank in deep right field to score a homer. The lineup—Brookfield, Powell 2b, Chickering cf, Gadsdale 3b, Daley ss, Leach 1b, Surprise c, Prunier p, Burnham 1b, Vasey rf, Rochdale, Tessier ss, Barron 2b, Bruillard 1b, L. ### The Public Pays

In all attempts at price fixing of commodities—which we may grant are made with the purpose of eliminating unfair competition—it seems quite apparent that it is impossible almost to arrive at the objective without punishing the consuming public. Things have gone a long way since the days of the elder Rockefeller whose practices of killing off competition were so criticized in the early days when the Standard Oil was held up to public obloquy as an all devouring "octopus," and similar unpleasant appellations. The opportunities for repeating the practices of those times have largely disappeared. And yet in passing one can say that the accumulation of the Rockefeller millions and their final disbursement to such a large degree in charitable enterprises was not an unmitigated evil and who would dare to say that Divine Providence did not have a hand in that accumulation. After all it may be much better to allow competition a fairly free rein in attempts to curb it to a narrow degree results—as it must—in the public paying more for its material needs. Moreover, why should the alert, smart but honest businessman be penalized and held back in the race for business and made to trot in double harness with the sluggish, unambitious and unresourceful individual? Any more than the lazy and indifferent should receive the same wages, or advancement, or recognition in the business or political world as he who is industrious, intelligent, forward-looking and faithful. Viewed at large the subject seems to afford as many drawbacks as it does advantages, so far as the public generally is concerned.

How Dictators Work

Late news from Italy shows how the minds of dictators work. To quote an A. P. dispatch of May 8, "Fascist Italy, angered by printed jeers at the prowess of Italian fighters in Spain, virtually broke off press relations with Great Britain today." An official order recalled all Italian correspondents from London, and banned all but three English newspapers from Italy. Thus dictatorship achieves its ends by keeping its people in darkness, and shutting them away from any knowledge, any fact, any opinion which may suggest that the man or the party in power is less than perfect. Under various dictators the right to vote in free and honest elections has been taken from the people. The right of free speech has been taken from them. The right of free assembly has been taken from them. The right of open trial by jury has been taken from them. The right of a free press has been taken from them. Between the United States and such tyrannical stands the Constitution—a living document, reasonably interpreted by uncontrolled, non-political judges. We must be continually on our guard lest, in our eagerness for seeming advantage, we unknowingly sacrifice the liberties for which millions of men fought during centuries of bloody history. And once more let us not forget that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Putting the Dollars to Work

Practically every banking and loaning institution has an unprecedented surplus of idle money for which it cannot find suitable and safe investment. In other words the various activities, governmental and economic, that disturb people are driving dollars into hiding, with little profit to the timid soul who is hanging on to his cash for the want of something more inviting to do with it. The threats of excessive taxation, amounting almost to confiscation in certain instances, must be restricting investments and enterprise upon the part of those who would like to put their dollars to work, but who having earned them by long and arduous labor, thrift and saving, are reluctant to take a chance in the face of so many uncertainties as to what is to happen to the dollars of those who possess a few. Perhaps some day the have-nots and political opportunists will come to a realization of how much they have slowed up business and reemployment by the multitude of threats of taxation of various sorts and the moves to tie up freedom of action in the mercantile and industrial field as to wages, hours and other matters that now are plaguing the United States.

Putting All Holidays at Week-ends

The suggestion heard now and then of placing all our holidays on Mondays, as is Labor day, has a good many things to recommend it. Every businessman knows that holidays that come at any other time have a very bad effect upon orderly business, so many people are concerned principally the day before in getting ready for the holiday and the day after in getting over it. The plan would certainly give people more of a real holiday and an opportunity to plan certain enjoyments that are denied them in the mid-week holidays. It is to be assumed that there might be sentimental reasons against changing the Fourth of July, Memorial day and Thanksgiving holidays to a day certain, but with the exception of Christmas perhaps, such a change ought not to be too difficult. Certainly most manufacturing and mercantile establishments would welcome such a change and working people would undoubtedly be pleased to combine the customary Saturday half holiday with a vacation that would run through Sunday to Tuesday morning.

Lindh-Decker

A pretty home wedding took place this week at the Congregational parsonage when W. Stuart Lindh of Cambridge, a nephew of Rev. and Mrs. Eric I. Lindh, was married to Miss Rachel Elaine-Decker of Cambridge. The attendants were Norman R. Estey and Miss Audrey S. Rousset of Cambridge. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Edith Lindh, accompanied the party from Cambridge. The ceremony was performed by the bridegroom's uncle, Rev. Eric I. Lindh, pastor of the Congregational church here, and the double ring service was used.

The bride wore a gown of powder blue crepe with matching cape and a corsage of orchids. The bridesmaid wore yellow crepe with matching cape. The bridegroom's mother wore a shell pink gown with corsage bouquet.

Mr. Lindh is a graduate of Ithaca College and is director of the Health Camp at Lake Placid. The bride is the daughter of the Rev. Judson Decker of Towamogus, Pa., the couple becoming acquainted at college. After a brief wedding tour the bride and groom will reside at Lake Placid.

Mrs. William Bretton and daughter Doris have returned to their Kinball street home from a few days vacation passed in Rochester and Wolfboro, New Hampshire.

Is the Number of Unemployed Greater Than Average?

The claim and general opinion that there is a great army of unemployed—note the distinction as between "unemployed"—we are beginning to believe is a lot of hokum. At least conditions in this neck of the woods do not support such a conclusion. We repeat what has been said in these columns before, that even during the depression there has not been in this locality a great surplus of competent skilled labor. But even in the unskilled and semi-skilled class today there is seemingly no great surplus of unemployables hereabouts. If one has any doubt as to that statement let him try to find men to do outside work, such as gardening, lawn mowing and domestic chores of that nature. Let the housewife try to find competent cooks or domestics. All this inclines us of course based upon local observation only—to accept the statement of those who have been demanding of people willingly unemployed, or employable, outside the chronic lazy, indifferent and incompetent, or those who are thrown out of work temporarily by the numerous strikes. It is to be expected of course that there will for the moment be a large number of job seekers thrown into the market this month when the colleges turn out the big crop of graduates, but aside from that item there is little which from local observation would convince one that the unemployment problem is substantially greater than it was before the depression.

The Threatened "Saturation Point" That is Seldom Reached

Those who have from time to time prophesied that we would soon reach the "saturation point" in the production of this or that commodity—automobiles, radios, washing machines, oil burners, electrical devices, etc., figure not on the resources of American genius. We grant that in wearables and eatables there may at times appear a glut in the market from production in excess of demand. But the genius we refer to soon makes the sort of merchandise above referred to obsolete. We may consider for an example the radios that within a half decade were selling in instances well up into the hundreds of dollars and which today, because of improved machines and more attractive styles that tempt those who like to have the most modern equipment, are a drug on the market at ten dollars. And the same situation develops in other things, which if they do not go completely out of style, at least wear out, as in the case of automobiles. So on goes industry trying to keep up with the demand of those who want the latest and best and who help to land merchandise in the junk heap and hold off the "saturation point."

"The Trouble With the World Is . . ."

"The trouble with the world is . . ." Many will tell you that THE trouble is, but not many will tell you the same thing—because there are too many troubles, or people think that there are. Perhaps one chief trouble is that so many think that it is about time the world was made over; that old ideas and old values should be discarded for something new and perhaps untied. Yet the old world has served mankind not so badly these many centuries. One trouble, not with the world, but with its people, is that they are turning their backs on the old solid virtues that made this country, particularly, great; of the habit of personal initiative; of digging in and hustling for oneself; of expecting governmental control—by whatever name they may be called, dictatorship, fascism or what have you—are going to make a soft living for everybody without very much work. How silly that notion is, the totalitarian states, or imitations of it that we have across the water, furnish abundant proof.

Outdoor Matches Draw Many

The first outdoor wrestling matches of the season were held at the Spencer Athletic Field Monday night before a crowd of about 250 people.

Bad Man, Stalinski of Nashua, N. H., was tamed in the main bout by the Black Demon of Greenfield, a heavy, well built, colored lad. After losing the first fall in nine minutes and twenty-five seconds, the Demon returned to treat the Bad Man with extreme roughness and pinned him to the canvas in two minutes and forty-seven seconds. While the crowd howled itself hoarse, he threw the pinching and biting Bad Man again and took the third fall in six minutes and ten seconds.

The first match of the evening ended at the end of thirteen minutes and forty-eight seconds when Johnny Backus was disqualified and Frankie Hass declared the winner. Backus did not take the referee's decision quietly and a free-for-all ensued, with the referee in the midst of things and suffering considerable loss of dignity, plus some very ungentle treatment.

When everything had quieted down again, the second bout started. It was won by Steve Sykodi who was fouled by Max the Panther at the end of eleven minutes and three seconds. The semifinal was won by George Lanthier over Wild Cat Dragon in nine minutes and six one-half seconds.

Students Strike

Nearly 200 of the students of the Leicester high school went on a strike on last Friday in a protest against the action of the school committee in requesting the resignations of three of the teachers of the high school. Those requested to resign were Miss Marjorie Frye, English and commercial subjects; William A. Bell, history and assistant athletic director; and Howard Barre, music director. Edward P. McDermott, chairman of the school board, gave as the reason for the request "the good of the department." Had the teachers been appointed this year they would have gone on tenure.

A number of the parents of the children went to the school on hearing of the strike and sent their children in to the school. Much of the organizing is reported to have been helped by former students, and a committee was appointed to ask the school committee to drop the request for resignations. A petition was circulated for signatures and presented to the committee who refused to meet with the students, but issued an ultimatum that the students return to classes on Monday or lose the diplomas to the seniors, and other classes would not be promoted. On Monday all reported for classes and while much talk is heard the situation seems closed as far as the pupils are concerned.

Suffering a sudden heart attack last Saturday, Rev. James B. Donahue, sixty-three, pastor of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament Roman Catholic church in Westfield since 1933, died at his home in Westfield. Rev. Donahue had been in poor health during the past two years but he was present in this town on Memorial day, having visited the family burial lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where he met and talked with friends and acquaintances of years ago.

The priest, who had devoted thirty-six years of his life to the service of the church, was a native of this town. He was born here on August 10, 1873, the child of Thomas and Margaret Donahue. After his ordination in December of 1909 he celebrated his first Mass at St. Charles Seminary in Cantonville, Maryland, at Boston College and also at the Grand Seminary at Montreal. He had served as curate in Worcester, Monmouth, West Stockbridge, Mittunague and in New Jersey parishes. Previous to becoming the pastor at the Westfield church he had been pastor at St. Vincent de Paul church in Lenoxville, France, where he was transferred to Westfield in July, 1933. He had made frequent visits here during his stay in this section and on such occasions met many former acquaintances.

His body was laid to rest early Tuesday afternoon here in St. Joseph's cemetery, where he had visited but a few short days before, following a pontifical requiem high Mass at the Westfield church where he was pastor. The Mass was celebrated by Bishop Thomas M. O'Leary of the Springfield diocese. Rev. James F. McGillicuddy, pastor of St. Joseph's church, who studied for the priesthood with Rev. Donahue, was a deacon of honor at the services. Monsignor and priests in scores from all parishes in the Western Massachusetts diocese were present at the requiem and to pay homage to the priest who had served in many communities. The church was overflowing in the turnout of those paying their final respects. High priest of the requiem Mass was Mgr. John P. Phelan of Worcester, vicar-general of the diocese. Rev. James P. Curran, pastor of St. Mary's church of Westfield and Rev. James F. McGillicuddy of North Brookfield were deacons of honor. Rev. Francis H. McCullough of this parish was also present at the services. The active members were: Leonard J. Corcoran, and William C. Wholen, prominent members of Rev. Donahue's parish. John J. Downey, James E. Feeley and Frank J. Clark, all of New York, and A. J. Kelly of Lee. Six priests of the diocese served as honorary bearers. Delegations from the Archbishop Williams assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus; Bishop Heaver Circle, Daughters of Isabella and the Worcester County, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters were present. The Sisters of St. Joseph and the Sisters of Providence were also represented. Twelve priests under the direction of Rev. John J. Power comprised the choir, with Rene F. O'Toole, curates of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament church, were in charge of arrangements for the service. The cortege arrived here early in the afternoon and burial was in the family lot. Rev. Rita Johnson Succeeds Jean Harlow

The many fans who followed the Louise Galloway Players and plays here are rejoicing and taking a bit of personal pride in the fact that Rita Johnson, the young girl who got her first chance at acting under the guidance of Brookfield's own Louise Galloway, is being plunged into prominence, her ability recognized at last and to have the leading role in "Saratoga" Jean Harlow's unfinished M-G-M screen play. Rita is twenty-four years old and is remembered as the slim little blonde who pleased at each of her performances, worked hard with long hours yet was never too tired to attend daily Mass in St. Mary's church, was friendly with all the townfolk and a club in school but never got an assignment. Finally she got a chance with a society group who were staging plays but never appeared in a school play. She was head of a dramatic club in school but never got an assignment.
