Refreshingly change Print

Of course it's smart to be tailored, but not as a steady diet. Right now a charming, feminine print offers not only a change of clothes, but a change of mind... and perhaps a change of heart. A sprightly pattern, a vivacious color, may be just what it takes to make someone say... "My dear, you look prettier than ever!"

ALL BROOKFIELDS JOIN IN S. A. CAMPAIGN

Scores of men and women throughout the Brookfields have received within the last few days an appeal letter, signed by Lester E. Gavitt, cable manufacturer, in connection with the 1942 appeal of The Salvation Army. $500 is sought in the campaign headed by Mr. Gavitt.

The letter reads, in part: "You are earnestly invited to participate in the annual appeal of The Salvation Army in the Brookfields. Your contribution will be used to feed, clothe and supply a place to sleep for unfortunate men and women. You'll have a share in giving modern medical attention and Christian-like aid to unmarried mothers and their babies. You will give assistance in taking cheer to disconsolate hearts—into homes where shut-ins and aged poor have little of the joys of life."

The letter goes on to explain that donation may be mailed to the campaign treasurer who is Louis A. Herard, manager of the Worcester County Trust Company Branch at North Brookfield. In addition it is asked that if convenient, donations may be handed to Mr. Herard. This plan will even continue after the official collectors start to work in the Brookfields.

In the sponsoring groups for this year are: North-Brookfield: George W. Brown, Rhoden B. Eddy, superintendent of schools; Mrs. Charles F. Fullam, Mrs. W. H. Fullam, president of the Woman's Club; Herbert T. Mason, Rev. William C. Prentiss and Francis C. Rooney. Brookfield: John H. Blumer, Frank B. Clark, V. G. Converse, Patrick H. Gorman, chairman, board of selectmen and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Nolan, school nurse. East Brookfield: Dr. William F. Hayward and Franklin E. Leeds. West Brookfield: Frank E. Bristol, Lewis W. Craig, Councilman, Carl F. Davis, Dr. C. J. Huyck and C. L. Olmstead.

Anyone who has not been contacted and who wishes to make a pledge is requested to contact either Mrs. Story of Thomas Monahan at the town office.

REMOVE NAIL SWALLOWED BY N. BROOKFIELD CHILD

Judith Streeter, nearly three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Streeter of North Brookfield, is in Holden District Hospital where she was brought Monday morning with a one-inch nail in her bronchus. Dr. G. Arnold Rice on the staff of the hospital and a specialist in throat, nose and ear, removed the nail by bronchoscopy. Judith swallowed the nail four days ago while her father was doing some roofing. X-rays showed the nail lodged in the bronchus and she was brought to Holden. She is doing very well and will soon be up and around again.

Bibles and Testaments In Great Demand

Special To The Tri-Town Weeklies: Requests for Testaments by servicemen to chaplains and clergymen at USO centers has increased nearly 50 per cent in the past few months. The American Bible Society reported that its daily issuance is now 9,000 or 4,000 more than in the early Spring. The clergy is requested to distribute these books on request. Both chaplains and local ministers continue to send in so many orders and reorders that, according to the Bible Society, the presses are working overtime and books are being shipped the day they are bound. An increase of nearly three-quarters of a million volumes of Scripture in one year is reported by the Society, accredited largely to the demands of the servicemen.

Bits O' Beauty

Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it. Prov. 22-6

OUR TEACHER

With skill and tact she led our minds
Through paths where truth and love
Bloomed in the garden of God's grace
In light of heaven above.

The lessons which our tender minds
Caught from her life and word,
Grew with us daily till we came
To man and womanhood.

And through the years that onward roll,
Eternal as the tides,
We'll keep those lessons in our hearts
Where mem'ry still abides.

Our teachers are the trustees of our most priceless treasure . . . The education of the youth of this nation is perhaps the most vital single factor in our national interest . . . That this grave responsibility is fully realized by our educators is evidenced on every hand . . . Our little ones after five or six years of infant tuition by their parents enter our schools and begin to come very definitely under the influence of their school teachers . . . In many homes where both father and mother work there is little or no time left for parental education other than such moral correction and influence which the home may provide . . . On Sundays religious training supplements that of the school, but even on this would be of little avail if the moral standards and training of our schools did not assume a large measure of responsibility for this task . . . Many a good man can trace his success in life to the influence of one or two good men or women who were his teachers in the formative years of his life . . . When I was a boy it was compulsory by state law that a portion of the Holy Scriptures be read each day in all the classes . . . Many of the Proverbs such as the one at the head of this column were memorized when the writer was in the seventh grade . . . After forty-five years the writer can still visualize the teacher, a Miss Boyington, sitting at her desk picking out the gems of morality from these ancient writings, and impressing them on our receptive minds . . . From our personal observation of the products of our Tri-town schools we believe that we have much to be proud of in the work of our educators . . . If there is any evil in the young minds it can be traced to questionable movies and trashy literature and not to any influence received in our schools . . . The co-operation shown by some of our theatre managements with our "Better Films Committee" is to be commended and should be considered as part of our combined care for the welfare of our young people in the formative years of their lives.

And now, as we near graduation day, let us be truly appreciative of those good men and women who make up our group of educators . . . Let us openly and to their face tell them that we appreciate their work . . . Let us realize that they assume an awful responsibility when they take over the training of our young people. Let us appreciate the great burden they take from us, as day by day they mould the characters and enlighten the intellects of those we love . . . Let us tell our children to appreciate the work of their teachers and show them the honor that is due their high office . . . The foundation of every state is the education of its youth . . . Ninety per cent of this great work is done by our schools . . . Let us with grateful hearts thank those who undertake this great task for us.

Record of the Utilities

If an uninformed person listened to the arguments and demands of the public ownership groups, he would conclude that the future of the war effort depends on spending more billions of tax dollars for socialized electric power projects—and that the private utility industry is of small importance, and should be destroyed.

The truth of the matter is just the opposite. Private utilities generate and distribute about 90 per cent of all the commercially produced electricity in this country. In some of the most important industrial areas, private utilities generate and distribute 100 per cent of the power.

The 1941 increase in power demand alone equalled the total output of the entire industry 25 years ago. The private utilities absorbed that increase without undue strain on their facilities. The tremendous new defense loads which came in 1941 were met with the industry's total generating capacity working only 50 per cent of the time. And, while this was going on, the utility industry was carrying on ambitious expansion and improvement programs to meet the greater demands of the future.

This is a remarkable achievement because constant political attack, spreading over many years, kept the utilities from expanding normally.

There will be no serious power shortage in this country unless further political persecution makes it impossible for the industry to carry its plans through to fruition. If government will give the power industry the same degree of cooperation it gives to other enterprises on which the war effort depends, the needed electricity will continue to be produced and transmitted, no matter what the demands, without added cost to the taxpayers resulting from uncalled for waste of public funds.

GARDENING in the SKIES

By Frank D. Wiley

Right now orchardists are putting up a stiff fight to control the codling moth, lesser apple worm, curculio aphid, bud moth, red bug and fungus diseases which attack the fruit later in the season. In our immediate localities the curculio, no doubt, is one of the most serious. This pest is of the beetle variety, having a snout capable of biting into the side of young fruit, making large punctures.

About the time that the calyx closes and a small fruit is forming, these insects emerge from their hiding places, fly to the trees, land around until a hot spell when feeding starts. The temperature has much to do with their activity.

To control their damage to the fruit, a thorough spray of arsenate of lead must be on the trees before they appear. Curculio fold themselves into a peculiar position and often feed and deposit eggs at the same time making a crescent shaped scar with a pit close by in the fruit. When the weather is cool they feed just enough to keep themselves alive and sometimes not eating enough poison to kill them, so orchardists hope to get fresh poison on the young fruit just before a hot spell when the beetles are active and do plenty of feeding. If they take three to five bites out of a small fruit which is covered with poison, it will do the job. On the other hand, in hot weather one curculio has been known to gnaw over a hundred apples in a day where no poison has been applied.

You have seen fruit from a neglected tree that starts falling off when only half grown. They are unshapely, covered with scars that have rusted over in trying to heal; bite one of these and you usually find a worm in the flesh of the fruit. If it is left on the ground the larvae crawl out and tunnel into the soil. Here it goes into the pupa stage and comes out a beetle the following Spring, although a second brood sometimes appears about picking time and do some damage by stinging the grown fruit.

The beetles winter in the ground, in trash or under piles of leaves, etc. Aside from spraying there are two methods which help control, by keeping the drops picked up and destroyed before the worms leave the fruit and by raking up all leaves and rubbish around the premises.

Prize Catch

Capt. Ray Walker threw away an old line last year. That was before the rubber shortage. The other day he fished it out of the Potomac river at Washington, D. C. A prize catch for any fisherman these days!

What to Do

I am going to be married soon and a problem has arisen which I hope you will be able to solve. My grandparents have raised me since birth, and although my father is living, he has never contributed to my support. I want to know if my grandparents or my father should announce my marriage? Answer—I suggest that your grandparents announce your marriage. They are the ones who have loved you and kept you all through the years. Your father has, from what you say, deserted you and has never shown any interest in you. Your announcements could read: Mr. and Mrs. James Jones Announce the Marriage of Their Granddaughter Elizabeth Smith (to et cetera)

Your grandfather could walk up the aisle with you, and he, too, would be the one who gives you away during the ceremony. You owe your grandparents a great deal, and I am sure they would appreciate your asking them to send out the announcements in their name.

CASINO THEATRE

There is double satisfaction in the picture, "Tortilla Flat" for those who love John Steinbeck's work and for those who missed it. The film brings his memorable characters to life, recreating the picturesque California colony of painters near Monterey.

Readers of the book will rejoice in the visual recreation. Those who never saw the novel will be thrilled by the beauty and action of the story. Both will be pleasantly entertained.

Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr and John Garfield co-star in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer adaptation. At the Casino Theatre, Victor Fleming, director of "Gone With the Wind," and many other distinguished pictures, directed this.

The supporting cast is superb, faithfully reflecting the lovely characters of the novel. They include the inimitable Frank Morgan, with a splendidly comic turn as son, John Qualen, Donald Meek, Connie Gilchrist, Allen Jenkins and Henry O'Neill.

THE EMPTY PAGE

I'll leave an empty page upon
The book of life for me
To write the noblest deeds I've done
Here in eternity.

I'll keep it clean with hope that when
Those deeds are written there,
'Twill be as pure as twilight snow
When evening shadows bear.

I'll keep it clean with hope that when
Those deeds are written there,
'Twill be as pure as twilight snow
When evening shadows bear.

When death comes with the stars,
And let death's angel write with me
On dawning's golden bars.

Graduation

Little tots graduate from the Kindergarten into the primary school . . . The students of the primary grades into the High School . . . High school students to college . . . College students into the professions or into further worlds of higher learning . . . At the recent commencement exercises at Clark it was my privilege to be present and see Vice Admiral Harry E. Yarnell receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws . . . His venerable head bowed as the doctor's robe was placed over his broad shoulders while those present were electrified by the exchange of fraternal glances between Dr. Atwood, the man of letters, and this able, retired master of Uncle Sam's navy . . . The fellowship of accomplishment is in every sense as inspiring as the fellowship of endeavor . . . Each leaves new worlds to conquer . . . New days to face with wisdom and resolution . . . New opportunities for service in the workshop of everyday life automatically creates new friendships . . . In this broader sense we are all graduating or can be graduating continually if our lives are truly devoted to the commonweal . . . Each graduation is but a step higher in the quality and scope of our endeavor . . . The last open page of our lives will be left clean to record our last effort as our best effort . . . Not content, not disinterested, we resolve to eternally try to reach a little nearer the idealism of infinite goodness and truth in a world of endless cheerful endeavor . . . Not labor, for labor becomes pleasure and joy in the alchemy of love.

A Worthy Tribute

As the press is making its indelible imprint of these words in this issue of the Tri-town Weeklies, four score or more of the friends and business associates of Ralph W. Igoe are paying a farewell tribute to one of our most beloved fellow townsmen . . . The occasion is to mark Ralph's entry into the armed forces of Uncle Sam in one of the most threatening hours of this nation's history . . . He leaves a most promising law practice, a happy home, a devoted wife and a host of friends because he feels it is his duty to serve, to the uttermost, our country whose institutions and way of life he loves . . . The spontaneous gathering of his friends is but the natural reaction to his happy faculty of making true and true friends by being just that type of individual who loves the things that are honest and true and by living them becomes attractive . . . Many of us who know Ralph well remember how that not so long ago he graciously withdrew from a political contest, that most folks felt he could easily have won, simply because his opponent was his senior and a good man, whose running without competition, at that time seemed to best serve the party interest . . . This was not the first time our wit was to be the last time that Ralph Igoe would willingly resign his own personal advantage for the commonweal . . . Men like Ralph W. Igoe deserve our highest esteem, respect and well wishes and they have them.

Over the Garden Wall

Every year when the tremendous glowing blooms of the oriental poppies appear, they seem not to realize it needs an exploring fingertip to touch the crinkled satin of the petals to make certain someone isn't playing a joke on us.

The hail-storm of last week sort of took the "victors" out of some of the poppies. It was a reassurance to some of us who were slow in getting started that sometimes it doesn't pay to be too early and ambitious. Delphiniums that were too battered had probably better be cut down right away and they will then soon doubt bloom a little later for us.

The forget-me-nots down in the pasture brook are a blue stream down as far as the eye can follow the meandering water. It is a thrill to think that probably they will always live there, year after year, world without end, to gladden the hearts of whomever may come after us here.

Don't you like this little poem of Ethel Romig Fuller's about "The Littlest Things"
A basket of pansies
Persian kittens.
A baby's hands
In woolly mittens.

A budding
Cecile Brunner rose;
Freckles over
A small boy's nose.

One wild white
Anemone;
The colored lights
On a Christmas tree.

Scattered shards
Of robin eggs;
A baby's hands
On stiffs of legs.

These are only
The littlest things,
Yet how they tug
At one's heart-strings."
? Nice, eh?

Minus Class Trip Plus Inspiration

Warren, Mass. June 1, 1942 Kind Sir: I heard a boy bawl violently because his class trip had been cancelled. Are teachers persons who can make many ideas grow where only one grew before? To stop a world should be nobody's business. The earth moves round the sun from West to East in a year, and turns on its axis in 24 hours; moving at the rate of 68,000 miles an hour on its orbit, and rolling around at the tolerable rapid rate of 1,040 miles per hour. Every teacher should realize from experience that when a male or a boy is galloping a horse who from viciousness or other causes suddenly stops, the person keeps on at the same rate over the animal's head; so the boy, supposing that his world was suddenly stopped on its axis, is thrown off into the air at a speed of 17.3 miles a minute. But school-phy, to one sufficiently collected to enjoy it, is, doubtless, exceedingly amusing; but I don't think it's much fun when it happens to a boy or a girl in school.

SPENCER SOCIAL Mr. Charles B. Torrey of Pleasant Street celebrated his 83rd birthday last Saturday, June 6, 1942. Friends and relatives contributed to make it a pleasant day for this fine citizen of Spencer.

GARDENING in the SKIES

By Frank D. Wiley In these days when we are requested to save material, time, labor, and do less riding around for pleasure, we perhaps have a lot more time to spend at home in the garden and around the lawn. Our confires, especially the Junipers, Cedars, Arbor Vitae, and Resinifers are very susceptible to a little lazy creature, which sucks the life from the twigs and branches, called the red spider. They hate wet weather and hide in the dense foliage of our evergreens. From time to time I have emphasized certain ways in which we can destroy or at least cut down vast numbers of small insects without the expense of costly materials. Starting now and following it every few days, and the spider can be driven away from the trees and shrubs to starve by forcing a heavy spray of water through the nozzle of your garden hose, driving it into the dense foliage.

The galls of the Spruce Gallaphid are now forming on the Norway Spruce, Blue Spruce. These pests can be greatly reduced by picking and destroying these sacks during the next few weeks.

Bits O' Beauty

For whoever will save his life shall lose it: and whoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. Matt. 16-25.

THE ALTAR OF LIFE

A log lay on an open fire inert as death itself, Above, a candle shed its light upon a mantle shelf; A clock was ticking rhythmic time, a sage, in reverie, Was musing with a mystic thought about infinity.

The musing sage had travelled far upon the wings of thought For boundless space and endless time though sought are never caught.

So coming back to mundane things he heard the burning wood, A sputtering, hiss upon that hearth in tones he understood;

He heard the wood say to the fire, "I die that you may live." Then fire replied, "When we have died We've nothing left to give."

Now when the sage had pondered this, he said, "If matter dies That light may live in those who give, we're dying all our lives."

Moral: The light and warmth of life is sacrifice. W. B. T.

Thousands, yes millions of men are leaving home, friends and loved ones to sacrifice their all in defence of a principle. . . . Other thousands are going off in the heyday of youth for a grand and carefree adventure. . . . Other thousands are staying home and giving liberally and freely of their very all in service to their country on the home front. . . . Thousands of others are staying home and demanding outlandish wages in the munitions factories in the heyday of their opportunity to best their employer. . . . This latter class seem to be coming to their senses a little and the orgy of strikes and demands is definitely on the decline, which speaks well for this section of the home front. . . . In England and most of the European countries the home folks have suffered equally or more than the men in the front line of battle. . . . All seem willing to endure as they follow the urge to make sacrifices for their national idealism. . . . Can it be that a selfish world will destroy itself with a principle of self-sacrifice? . . . If this is a word revolution as outlined by our vice-president in a recent speech will the new world order be based on force, dull obedience to the victorious united nations with an international police force? . . . Or will men be able to finally see the futility of all armed conflict and "Beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks, and learn war no more." . . . Do I hear you saying, "This is war, and not the time to talk about the peace"? . . . If so my answer is that our president, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Wallace and many other statesmen are, as concerned about the peace as they are about the war. . . . If in time of peace nations prepare for war, then inversely in time of war we should be preparing for the peace. . . . If individuals and whole nations will give their very all and life itself to win a war, why not, by the same token, give our very all to win and keep a peace? . . . If international rivalries and trade barriers are direct causes of war why cannot international co-operation and open cordial trade relations establish peace? . . . Is there any basic difference between moneyed might declaring a trade war and armed might declaring a bloody war? . . . If in the last war we won the armed fight and afterward lost the peace by entering on new trade wars, is it not time now for us to openly confess our past failings and create a national urge to better understand our international relations and responsibilities? . . . And here is where, our Christianity comes in. . . . Read again the wise words of the best man who ever lived, at the head of this editorial, and then pause and consider the fact that the happiest moments in your life have been those when some self-sacrifice on your part has made someone else happy; and then apply this divine principle in international relations. . . . The result is electrifying. . . . Especially is this true when we realize that Christianity is the most international thing in all the world. . . . It demands the worship, as our first love, of the one Godhead. . . . And the love of our neighbor as ourselves. . . . What a simple rallying point for all nations of the world? . . . Why not start now, shouting from the housetops for the coming of the King of Kings and the Prince of Peace?

GRANDMOTHER'S GARDEN

In grandmother's garden a sage bed grew As fragrant as honey all covered with dew, The birds and the bees in their flight stopped to view Then to taste of the sweets as onward they flew.

The Hollyhocks stood like sentinels tall While the Johnny Jumpers and pineys half hid by the wall, Seemed to nod and to beckon the sun with delight As they turned their dear faces around to the light.

And Grandmother's face I can almost recall As she stood by the rose bush, basket scissors, and all, Her gown of pure homespun, her cap of black lace And the look of contentment on her sweet face.

Milk Is in the Army Now

At the Presidio in San Francisco, "The food the soldiers receive today is, to a large degree, responsible for the greatly improved health conditions among our fighting forces," states Milton E. Blitt, President of the National Dairy Council. For the first time, since the revolutionary war, fresh milk is a part of the regular army diet. Butter and cheese, neither of which were available in revolutionary war times, are also prescribed as a part of the regular diet for our soldiers. Ice cream is made available at least once or twice a week whenever possible.

Opportunity

Citizens having binoculars or radio telephone equipment which might be of use to the Navy in the all-out war effort are urged to contribute such material for the duration of the war. These important items are badly needed in Uncle Sam's expanding fleet of warcraft.

Two main sizes of binoculars are needed, 6x30 and 7x56, of Zeiss or Bausch and Lomb manufacture. An identification tag, bearing the name and address of the contributor, should be fastened to each instrument. The binoculars should be securely packed in a box or carton and shipped to the Naval Observatory, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

All such instruments still on hand at the end of the war will be returned to the owners. Upon receipt of binoculars in Washington a check for $1.00 will be mailed the contributor. It is interesting to note that during the last World War a total of 31,000 instruments were accepted for naval use, and, as far as is known, but one pair of binoculars was missing when the war terminated.

It is believed that there are many radio amateurs and others who may have in their possession radio telephone equipment ideal for use in the Navy. Owners of any such equipment, willing to make this patriotic gesture, may forward their contribution to Commandant, Navy Yard, Boston, Mass.

Over the Garden Wall

I've long known the blue Spider Lily but recently discovered the white one on an abandoned farm. A bouquet has lasted for nearly two weeks, and is still interesting. Every morning the blossoms open, snow white with a few gold stamens surrounded by a fine puff of what looks like pale blue fur. Every noon the blossoms closing, not to reappear until the next day, something like gasoline station valves.

About this time of year garden-minded women find that the daily and oft-repeated hints on the daily stocking-washing program leave in some-thing to be desired. That tip about gently rubbing only the feet of the stockings must be for city folk only; the knees are what need attention this time of year. Unless, of course, you've gone modern and preferred to ankle socks, when you can just take the scrub brush to your knees direct.

A report from England says that Vitamin C is so scarce that they have resorted to rose-hips in jams and preserves to get that much-needed element. I'm sure that we are fortunate to have oranges; they're much more fun.

Speaking of roses, Charlie Dunton has a whole rose display climbing up the back of his house, a wealth of beauty.

S. O. S. From Uncle Sam

The Army and Navy are calling for rubber—rubber, and rubber, more rubber.

It takes 1246 pounds of rubber just to make the bullet proof tanks in a flying fortress. Nearly a ton is required by every plane that takes the air. Every tank has to have its tires of rubber, too. Rubber is used in many other forms of mechanized war equipment. The U. S. Army marches on rubber. Every single month Uncle Sam has to buy 1,800,000 pairs of rubber-soled shoes for his soldiers.

This year our armed forces will require 306,350 tons of rubber. Ship builders want 100,000 tons. American trucks moving men and supplies demand 150,000 tons. Our allies are asking for 200,000 tons more.

At the start of the year there were less than 800,000 tons of crude rubber in this country. The war machine has been devouring this in some-thing like a flash.

Japan and the Axis control 92% of the world's rubber areas. Synthetic rubber and Latin-American natural rubber both are of the future. Our need is of the immediate present is in our own closets, cellars, garrets, and backyards.

Our Country asks us for our scrap rubber, for every single bit of waste material around the house, yard, garage, factory, workshop and office. This week is Scrap Rubber Week. We are asked to take it to the nearest filling station, where it will be brought for a penny a pound. Uncle Sam is sending out an S. O. S. to the American people.

A splendid response has already been made by residents of the Tri-Town area and when the final tally is made the committee in charge expects a satisfactory showing.

Early Morning Blaze Destroys Wloch Place

CHARLTON—Last Thursday 14 registered cattle and a pig, perished in an early morning blaze which destroyed the large house and barn, west of Charlton Depot, owned by Stanley B. Wloch, formerly of South Spencer, from Miss Marion Spofford of Worcester.

Fire, it is believed broke out in the barn, but quickly spread to the house. Mr. Wloch was aroused by the barking of his dog, about 4:30 a. m.

Charlton firemen responded, but lack of water prevented them from saving the buildings. Furniture from the house was removed.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The fields and forests were gay with the songs of birds and the freshness of the foliage inspired one with new life and ambition. The broad expanse of Quabog, whose waters are continually

OUR TOWN
Our town awaits to welcome you
With outstretched hand and heart that's true.

Our town has hills where cattle graze
And forests lift their heads in praise.

Our town has lakes, and brooks, and streams
The likes you've pictured in your dreams.

Our town has skies of blue and grey
Because God likes them just that way.

Our town has meadows where the lark
Wings up with song from dawn 'til dark.

Our town has farms and gardens fair
With fruits and flowers growing there.

Our town has trees whose branches spread
Cool canopies above your head.

Our town has lawns whose carpets green
Are fine as any you have seen.

Our town has streets that lead to where Homes welcome you when you call there.

Our town has homes where "dad" and "ma"
Are sometimes known as "na" and "pa".

Our town has folks, most of 'em good,
With just a few misanderstood.

Our town has churches on the hill
Whose spires are pointing heav'nward still.

Our town has hospitality
So come, enjoy its pleasantry.

WE WELCOME OUR SUMMER GUESTS

Nature has abundantly showered its blessings on the Tri-town area. . . With an average altitude of about five hundred feet above sea level in the valleys, and with towering hills on every hand, no matter where we go in this New England paradise we find invigorating air to fill us with vim, picturesque landscapes to delight our eyes, shady lanes for a pleasant stroll or easy canter on horseback, broad lakes for bathing, boating or fishing and what is more a fine lot of townfolk and businessmen who know how to make us feel at home when we meet them. . . This year our summer visitors will find that nearly every trace of the 1939 hurricane has disappeared. . . They will also find that most of our roads into our lake areas have been greatly improved, with well over ninety percent of them dust proof and tarred. . . They will find our beaches clean with sandy stretches beneath sparkling, crystal clear waters. . . They will find our lakes and brooks well stocked with game fish. . . If they stroll in the woods and fields they will find pheasants, partridge, plover and countless other feathered friends who will be alert but not too timid of their approach. . . In our towns they will find our merchants fully prepared with stocks of summer needs to take care of their every need. . . Our local theatres will provide entertainment for those who wish to come into town for added pleasure, and even the rain on the roof will be welcome music when a clearing shower dispels the heat and refreshes all nature about us. . . So once more we welcome our summer visitors, and gladly share with them the summer joys of our happy countryside.

REDDY KILOWATT COMES TO TOWN

The two great electric light companies which serve the Tri-town area have started a novel and interesting advertising campaign with the introduction of "Reddy Kilowatt" to our readers this week. . . For many years they have served quite modestly, twenty-four hours per day, seven days per week, fifty-two weeks per year, year in and year out. . . Their service has been so consistent and uninterrupted that we take it for granted that when we press a button a light will glow, a radio will perform, a motor will start, a toaster will toast, a range cook, an iron iron, a washer wash, a vacuum cleaner clean and a score of other jobs be accomplished in a manner that would make our forebears think that black magic had come to town had they beheld the wonders of our electrical age. . . Throughout the years that these companies have been serving us there have been many unsolicited reductions in the cost of the service rendered. . . These reductions have been made whenever they could be accomplished in a manner consistent with sound business and financial principles. . . And now along comes a smiling little fellow named "Reddy Kilowatt" to remind us that this servant of servants will cheerfully carry on in times of war as in times of peace with the same consistency that he has shown since the day he was born.

People you may Know
The Old Maestro Ben Bernie is the head man of Columbia pet work's new Ben Bernie music program, heard Mondays through Fridays. With Bernie are all the lads, lovely songstress Gale Robbins, Jack Fulton and Russ Brown, vocalists, and the "King's Jesters."

MONA LOGG holds the New England record for conversational endurance. She's modest about it, though. Says her husband can beat her when he talks fishing or golf—just give him a chance. Between them they really do a job on the telephone.

We telephone people deserve some of the credit, doubtless—the way we've sold people on telephoning, all these years. But now success proves a boomerang. . . the War program needs so much telephone service that champion talkers are a problem. You see, switchboards can handle only so many conversations at a time—and materials for building switchboards are on the priorities list!

If anyone had told us, a year ago, that we'd ever reach the point of suggesting that people cut down—No, we can't say it, even now! (Or have we?)

North Newsy Notes

The blackout Friday night just before ten o'clock was 100% successful according to all reports. Tons of scrap rubber are being collected by both groups of Boy Scouts to be turned over to the use of Uncle Sam.

Joseph Langevin, Spring street, has returned home by plane from North Africa, where he has been employed by the American Airways Corporation. Shortage of gasoline, he reports, is the cause for many of the men leaving their jobs.

Mr. Langevin also reports that sickness and death claimed some of his fellow workers in the past few months. Ted Hopkins, Jr. expects to enter the Navy soon.

The Rationing Board are figuring out what to do about a ton of sugar that they allotted by mistake Charles Hibour, manager of Oscar's Beverages, Inc. applied for an extra allotment of sugar to carry on his soda bottling business.

Now the State Board has ruled that the local board was in error and no supplemental sugar certificate should be issued to a commercial user before July 1. Meanwhile Mr. Hibour has used the certificate and the sugar was being used at the bottling works.

CASINO—WARE

Movie-goers who see Paramount's adventure thriller, "This Gun for Hire," at the Casino Theatre, Ware, will be handed a jolt that will last them quite a long time. Yes, "This Gun for Hire," packs many thrills!

Starring lissome Veronica Lake and handsome Robert Preston, "This Gun for Hire" features Laird Cregar and Alan Ladd, who deserves stardom on the basis of his dynamic characterization of a cold-blooded killer.

It is with explosive force that the new film arrival tells the novel story of an unfeeling killer who wins a sort of redemption at the end by wiping out the "brains" of a spy ring, even while he is sought by the police for a series of murders.

Veronica Lake, as the night club singer sweetheart of the detective, who is forced to accompany the killer on his flight from the police and towards revenge, turns in her best performance. She proves herself a real actress, not merely a glamour girl.

Robert Preston, who recently gave two exciting performances in "The Night of January 16th" and "Pacific Blackout," likewise is admirable as the pursuing detective. Laird Cregar, as the mountainous agent for a foreign government, is splendid. Tully Marshall, as the spy ring "brains" is properly hateful, and that's a tribute to this fine actor.

UNPAID TAXES TO BE ADVERTISED

Warren Garden

Contest Stimulates Conservation

WARREN—The Warren Civic Progress Association is distributing its contest bulletins for the second successive year. Prizes amounting to $60.00 are being offered for two classes of gardening.

During the 1941 summer season, a contest emphasizing home improvement was given considerable publicity, and the beneficial effects which resulted brought many requests for another to be sponsored this year.

Since the vegetable garden phase seemed worthy of emphasis in view of the War Conservation Program, three cash prizes have been offered; the first $15.00, second $10.00, and third $5.00. Credits toward the final score are based on best growth and crop yield, neatness, arrangement, and variety of vegetables.

The flower garden contest also offers the same prizes and gives credit for general garden improvement during the summer. The scoring is based on the best lawn and garden arrangement with respect to neatness, color and variety of plants.

Attention is called to the fact that a contestant may enter either contest or both contests, and that he need not be a member of the Association.

The judges for the contest this year are: Mrs. Waldo C. Lincoln and Mrs. D. Thompson Hastings of Ware, Mass., and Mr. S. E. Charbonneau of Warren.

Entry blanks are a part of each bulletin, and must be delivered to Mr. W. L. Gladding, Secretary of the Association, not later than Monday, June 29.

A list of entrants will be posted in the Warren Post Office on July 2nd, and the gardens will be judged about July 10th and August 20th.

The Association feels confident that increased interest will be shown in its contests this year and believes they are one of the most stimulating factors toward furthering its aim of civic improvement.

North Newsy Notes

Raymond W. Southworth is a first honor engineering student at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute. He is spending several weeks with his mother before he returns for his senior year.

Mr. Southworth, a graduate of North Brookfield High School, class of '37, was awarded the "Peel" prize of one hundred dollars because of his work on a problem entitled, "Production of High Hydrogen Water Gas from Dakota Lignite." The prize is awarded each year to the junior developing the best engineering idea. He must present it before an audience.

William H. Green is chairman of the U. S. O. drive which commences July 6. The North's quota is $1114.

Mr. and Mrs. Ovide Dumas have returned from Swampscott where Mr. Dumas attended the 61st annual convention of the Massachusetts Druggists Association.

A Comment Those of us who read the "Communication" on the front page of last week's Brookfield's Union from Benjamin Travars of North Brookfield, now in our country's service cannot help but realize the fact that our young men who do not hear from home must get very homesome.

Nearly everyone in the North must remember Benny and let us not hear it said by any service man again that he never hears from anyone in his home town. We should make a special effort through our U. S. O. or Community Club to know, if possible, where our boys are, and if we know of any outside our own, who have no parents or relatives, we should be doubly sure that they know we are behind them with all we have. F. D. W.

New Pastor Given Reception

WEST BROOKFIELD—Members of the Methodist Church gave a reception recently to their new Pastor, the Rev. Dr. N. Bond Fleming of Charlton City, and Mrs. Fleming in the church on West Main street. In the receiving line were Mrs. Edna A. Nelson, superintendent of the Sunday school; Mrs. Hattie Chapin, president of the Women's Society of Christian Service; Miss Lois Campbell, president of the Young People's Society; Walter H. Potter, president of the Men's Club; and Lewis E. Craig, 87 years of age, who has been a most ardent worker in the church for more than 25 years.

Guests were introduced by Misses Gettrude and Edith Conway and Walter E. Hazen served as an usher. The presentation was made by Edwin Murdoch and Sauria Richardson. The committee was in charge of Mrs. E. S. Murdock. Mrs. Fred Smith will be hostess assisted by Miss Bessie Barrett, to the Parish Auxiliary of the First Congregational Church at the Quabog Farms in the form of a picnic on Tuesday, July 7. All the members are urged to be present and a good time is expected following a picnic luncheon at noon.

Over the Garden

Wall

It's altogether too late to get into the garden this morning, so may I review for you a delightful little book called "God and My Garden" and written by Margaret Sangster and loaned to me by an understanding friend?

It seems that Mrs. Sangster, I should assume, had had the care of an invalid for some time, with every waking hour and doubtless some of the sleeping ones, filled with small cares and the filling of many wants. Then, all at once, there was no longer any of the small but demanding duties, only a great emptiness. Then it was she tried planting a small garden, in window-boxes, eighteen stories high, in her pent-house home. She says "My garden came to me at a time when my heart and my hands were empty, and when my soul was bothered with many questions that I could not answer. My garden stayed with me through the whole of a lonely summer, making it less lonely; it filled my days with a succession of small lovely surprises. It gave my hands new occupation and it touched my heart with a new tenderness."

Every little while she learned new lessons from that garden. The first was when a heavy thunderstorm beat and tore at her tender plants; they bent but they broke not. After the storm they straightened up and went on. The second was when she tried to have the vines grow away from their sun. It couldn't be done; even a vine knows there's only one right direction in which to grow-toward the source of strength and life.

Then there were the plants in a dark shadow from a chimney. As they seemed about to die entirely, she transplanted them into the sun and straightway they grew strong and gay, and maybe some of us, not doing so well in one place, can be a shining success in another.

When plants grew too thick, she had to be a ruthless "God," thinning wantonly not the ones that were less deserving of a chance to live, but destroying them "for the good of the garden." Perhaps, in the final analysis, some of us get "thinned out" the same way.

There are lessons enough for another week, too, so this will be "continued in our next."

Spencer Priest Dies In Korea

SPENCER—Word of the death in an international hospital at Kobe, Japan, June 10, of the Rev. Leo J. Pelouquin, a Maryknoll missionary and native of Spencer, has reached Boston via the State Department.

Father Pelouquin was stationed in Korea, and with his fellow missionaries was interned at the outbreak of the war. Death was said to have been due to a heart ailment.

He joined the Maryknoll Society in 1916. He left for his mission post last Sept. 8. His family reside on Court street, Brookfield.

He had been a visitor here with his cousin, Mrs. Philias Bouley of Salem street. Surviving are two brothers, Charles and Horace of Brookfield, and a sister, Sister Jean du Cenacle of the Assumption convent, Southbridge.

Spencer Civic Club Outing Big Success

Nearly one hundred members of the Civic Club and their friends enjoyed one of the club's finest outings at Howe pond Wednesday afternoon. A splendid clam bake was enjoyed with weather conditions perfect for the occasion.

Prizes as follows were awarded by President Dr. F. E. Grenier: Horse shoe pitching, Dr. H. Chevalier, first prize, Theo. Hodgner, second, Gerald Berthiaume, third; soft ball distance throwing, Dr. C. H. Chevalier first, Theo. Hodgner, second, Adrian Lacaire third; dart experts, Robert Kelly first, Myron Bemis second, Henry Emond third. Ball casting, Dr. F. E. Grenier first, Dr. C. Henry Chevalier second, Adrian Lacaire third.

The president presented a necktie to Mr. Moise Lamoureux Sr. on behalf of the club as a memento of the occasion. Mr. Lamoureux is the dean of Spencer's business men. Mr. Beaulac, Spencer's tax collector, also received a gift honor for his birthday.

Other unreported sightings of the occasion were Bob Young with a reserved seat at the clam bake. Henry Emond acting as unauthorised custodian of valuables. The mystery man still unidentified, is now known as the phantom. Where did the dry goods man get the black eye? Who was the man who did not know what his name was at 8.30 Thursday morning? Where is Bob Young's wrist watch and how come Dr. Chevalier got so many prizes?

Leicester Anniversary

Fourth of July

The town of Leicester is celebrating the Fourth of July in Leicester has a program of events. A parade will be held on the Fourth instead of a bonfire, these being banned, there will be a fireworks parade. This is intended for the kids, who are expected to dress up and march around town, furnishing their own music, their own fun, and if some public spirited person does not donate a prize, they will have to furnish the prize for the best and finest costume. The next parade will be on the morning of the fourth under the leadership of Elwood Macklin. At 10.30 in the morning with the Leicester High School Band and the Girls Drum Corps furnishing the music, the Fire Department from Cherry Valley, Rockdale and the Center with the Auxiliary firemen, will line up and march. Units of the air raid wardens, with their badges, arm bands and whistles are expected to show up. Then I believe that the auxiliary policemen will come along with their badges, billies, flashlights, arm-bands, whistles, first aid kits and handcuffs, and perhaps a patrol wagon. After parading around and through the Center of the town all will gather at the Town Common where there will be an Exhibition drill by the Girls Drum Corps. A doll carriage parade under the direction of Mrs. Willow Steadman, and there will be prizes for the best decorated doll carriages. The contests for the youngsters such as bicycle races, potato race, bag race, rolling pin throwing contest for women and all that sort of thing with prizes for these events. A nice big pig will be turned loose and being well greased and the one that catches it gets big. This pig cost $12.00 and is being fed up to be worth $15.00 by the Fourth, so you ought to get in on this, Mr. Editor. A tug of war with six men teams open to any group that wants to enter will be pulled off. And at night in the Town Hall, a Dance with Buddy Royce and his Ambassadors, an eleven piece orchestra will end a day that everybody is sure to remember. The fireworks will be set off at 8.30. That squirt their hose at each other on the common, there will be a midway with attractions, and I heard that the Red Cross group under the direction of Mrs. Fred Richardson will demonstrate first aid but not on me if I see them coming.

Bits O' Beauty

If ye know the truth the truth shall make you free—Jesus.
Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made you free.—Paul.

THE DEAD SEA
At dawn I stood in Galilee beside its waters where
The bread of life was cast about for everyone to share.

From Hermon's lofty heights which reach to catch the cloud's white dreams,
The living waters of the sea were fed by Jordan's streams.

The living sea, whose night-born dew were glistening in the
Conspired to clothe fair Galilee with carpets of delight.

And when the sea, rejoicing, extended down the vale
The vernal banks of Jordan smiled to hear its pleasant tale.

But to the south of Jerico the Dead sea lay inert,
And all of Jordan's sparkling life soon mixed with death and dirt.

That greedy sea, like death, takes all; and laves a barren waste, Yet from that sea the sun still lifts pure mists, all clear and chaste.

Moral: Virtue will inevitably rise above environment.
W. B. T.

Independence Day

Tomorrow is Independence Day . . . What has that to do with our "Bits-O-Beauty"? . . . Much every way . . . The declaration of independence and the founding of this nation under a constitution which recognized the supreme authority of Almighty God was a great step forward in the work of preparing the world for the coming of the Kingdom of God . . . From the days of the reformation, the open Bible in the hands of men had been a leavening influence in the hearts of men . . . The pilgrimage to Plymouth in 1620 was one milestone in this leavening process . . . The declaration of independence was another . . . In the nearly one-hundred seventy years since that memorable event this nation has attained a growth and learning unprecedented in history . . . The growth and progress of this nation can be traced to the influence of the open Bible and the liberty and freedom provided by the national constitution . . . Since the first world war there has been a definite trend back to paganism . . . The dedication of the state has placed God in a secondary position in the affections of men and in such states as Germany and Russia religion has been supplanted by the doctrine that might is right . . . We would indeed be "dumb dogs that cannot bark," if we failed to observe right here that there has been a definite decline in the moral standards of this nation in the past two decades . . . If the fair waters of our spiritual "Jordan" which have watered our "Galilee" for nearly two hundred years are now flowing into the waters of another "Dead Sea" in the present world war what and where will our final hope be? . . . Will our hopes rest in pagan doctrine that might is right or shall we let the "Sun of Righteousness" arise with healing in his wings and lift us from the quagmire of another "Dead Sea" to the heights of "Hermon" which overlooks and blesses fair Galilee where the "Sermon On The Mount" still re-echoes in the hearts of men who wait to welcome the coming of the King who is the Prince of Peace.

Independence Day in 1942 presents many heart searching for good men and women everywhere . . . It was the high moral impulses of the men who conceived our Constitution which also prevented the declaration of independence . . . Their work indicates that they were God fearing men . . . The torch of the liberty they proposed was fired from the truths contained in the "Ten Commandments" and the "Sermon on the Mount" and not on the pagan idea that might is right.

Vacations—1942 Style Rationing Clamps Down

Faced with wartime gas and tire rationing, vacation-minded Americans this year are fashioning a new vacation pattern. Gasoline is popular at the turn of the century will be the order of the day for millions of Americans. Here are some of the nation's 1942 vacation styles.

Left: College girls become haymakers. The morning glory grows very early. Morning glories are dressed in blue and pink and white, like a young, newly watered colony. Their babies fresh from the nursery, their creeds in various shades of blue and white, and their colors in a variety of shades of blue and white. The animals may not linger to enquire as long but they leave a vivid memory and after all, what is more permanent in any garden, than a bright memory.

Autumn may come like a grim reaper and while the morning glory will bloom again, the memory of the garden will be a permanent one. The animals may not linger to enquire as long but they leave a vivid memory and after all, what is more permanent in any garden, than a bright memory.

NEWS IN THE WORLD OF RELIGION

Reports from Berlin, Germany, are that on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the outbreak of the First World War, Pope Pius XII as a bishop, Count Konrad von Preysing, Catholic bishop of Berlin, spoke vigorously from his pulpit against the Nazi state and its policies, and that the congregation cheered his utterances. "It is based on God," said the Bishop. "It acknowledges individual freedom of conscience and all the rights of religious freedom. It recognizes the right to give a religious education to children. The rights held from God cannot be replaced by rights derived from the state. It is a fatal mistake to believe that the state is the highest type of divinity."

The Phelps-Stokes Fund, founded for the development of the Negro in America and in Africa, and the recent Church Conference on African Affairs, held in Westerville, Ohio, have both concluded that the post-war welfare of the African continent demands an extension of the "mandate system" by which several large areas are now administered by European governments. To present mandate processes they would add an "international inspection" by some international body such as the League of Nations. "I hope," says Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, president of the Fund, "that the United States will cooperate actively in any revived or new association of nations which may be established, and that it may be willing to share with European and other powers some degree of responsibility for the development of Africa in the interest of the African people. Nothing will help more to accomplish this than to have the Christian church interested in Africa."

Our Flag - The Stars and Stripes

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands. One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." This is the pledge we say in school, at our club meetings, at gatherings of all kinds where loyal in the hearts of our citizens, we fervently declare their love of the emblem of Freedom and Liberty. This pledge, written in 1888 by Francis B. Pickens, in our own state of Massachusetts, was first conceived to stimulate the patriotic sentiment of American youth, and it has since become a part of the life of every school boy and girl. The general impression that the Stars and Stripes were a creation of one man, that of the suggestion of General Washington is the most romantic one, but facts seem to indicate that it was a gradual process. The very first flag designed already in use. According to the words of the Hutchinson, who also designed the great seal of the United States, as well as several coats of arms. That Betty Ross made the first Stars and Stripes with thirteen alternate red and white stripes and a blue field with thirteen white stars on a blue field is not disputed. These first stars were arranged in a circle, then later in the shape of a large star, but more stars were admitted into the nation, and the Continental Congress authorized that more stars be put into the flag, the placing of the stars finally took the design we are now accustomed to seeing; six rows of eight stars each. Whatever the position of the stars, whatever the number of red or white stripes, each part of the American heart all the stories of struggle and hardship of wars, of revolution, of everything that made our Nation the greatest on earth. It is the sign of freedom of speech, of worship, of the right to live, to vote, to raise families, and live a natural human life. Let us treat it with the respect it deserves, especially now, that it is again raised over battlefields in the great and liberties that is America.

State To Assist In Keeping Workers Healthy

The first of 20,000 manuals on how to keep workers in this state healthy were sent out Wednesday by the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety to the 1350 members of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts. The manual is directed towards workers in shipbuilding yards; machine tool builders; ordnance manufacturers; gun makers and ammunition manufacturers; makers of optical instruments; precision tools, electrical goods, textile products, and shoe manufacturers; makers of wheels, rubber products, steel companies, wire goods, castings, and furniture manufacturers. The purpose of the booklet is to keep our workers physically and mentally fit in order to maintain production at an all out level. Prepared by a sub-committee on industrial health headed by Manfred S. Wooditch, director of the Massachusetts Division of Occupational Hygiene, foremost authorities on hygiene, home economics, and institution. The manual contains 400,000 man-days, the equivalent to shutting down 1100 essential factories for one year. It was last annually to industry workers in order that 400,000 man-days be lost to the following recommendations: (1) Maintenance of medical and nursing services in all war industries. (2) Formation of safety groups among the workers to prevent accidents. (3) Restful weekends and vacation periods to maintain high mood and eliminate fatigue and waste effort. (4) Forty-eight hour week, 8-hour day, one day of rest and spaced rest periods. (5) Between-meal feedings, supervised menus, and educational

Bits O' Beauty

"She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands." Prov. 31-13

THE KNITTER

A tribute to Mary Cruckshanks

With nimble fingers, tireless as the tide
Whose rippled patterns break upon the sand
Where lacy weavings of the ocean wide
Now clothe the reaches of the golden strand,
She sits for hours with needles clicking ruses
As, endlessly, the urge to serve and bless
Impels a mingling of her toil and tunes,
Soft sung with musings, born of faithfulness.

She knits, she puris, casted off, casts on, and then
The merry racing ripples run
Around and round the garment till again
They come to where at first they had begun.
And then, like life, the knitting hath an end—
So truly good if it will fit a friend.

W. B. T.

This week the writer had occasion to visit the new Red Cross headquarters in Worcester. . . Here we found a fine old mansion converted into a workshop. . . We found great bins filled with garments of all sorts. . . Some sewed, some knitted, but all were the work of willing workers who have come to know by actual experience that, "A labor of love is one of the brightest facets on the jewel of life". . . Incidentally, we learned that our own Mary Cruckshanks had completed her eightieth birthday and was energetically starting the eighty-first of the last score in her determination to make it an even hundred before she would have any idea of taking time out to rest. . . A good example is indeed the best teacher, and Miss Cruckshanks untiring effort in every good cause has for many years been a splendid influence for good in the lives of our younger folk. . . Our homely sonnet is for women everywhere who are letting the love-light of service brighten the dark places of the earth.

On Salvaging

For many decades we have the most prodical of all people of all the ages. . . Today the pendulum is rapidly swinging in the other direction. . . The teeming rubber tree orchards of Malaya ozen boundtfully. . . A thousand ships brought the black-tanned bountiful bounty to our shores. . . We rode as kings, all, over the smooth highways of our own delightful land. . . Then something happened. . . The Japs came in with a high hand, coupled with intrigue, and disposed our friends who had supplied our rubber. . . Other enemies have been sinking our ships which brought in the precious substance to our shores. . . Vast added quantities are needed to make resilient the sinews of war. . . The inevitable result is that now we must not only conserve but salvage every bit of the thing we used so prodigally. . . And what applies to rubber will apply to many other commodities. . . The pendulum must continue to swing to the side of frugality for many months to come. . . We will all do well to cheerfully co-operate in every effort to conserve and salvage our resources in these trying times. . . By so doing we not only may, but will learn a great national lesson that will stand us in good stead for several generations to come.

Subsidies

Price Administrator Leon Henderson insists that subsidies are necessary to assist certain industries in observing price ceilings. In other words, if prices are to remain at fixed levels, the government will have to help such industries make up for increases in operating cost which are completely beyond the industries' control.

A very notable example of that is found in oil. Due to the loss and transfer of tankers, it is necessary to ship oil overland. The cost of that is a great deal higher than shipment by water. But, if the OPA permitted the oil industry to increase its retail cost enough to compensate for this, an inflationary cycle would be started. To quote John A. Brown, president of Socony-Vacuum, "A higher price for fuel oil, for example, would raise the cost of operation of public utilities, and the utilities might then have proper grounds for asking for higher rates to the consumer. The war has provided an object lesson in the fact that everything in this world is connected in some way or other with everything else. . . It is our opinion that the Government should currently provide for cash reimbursement of such special programs as the railway tank car movement, undertaken at Government request."

Subsidy is an unpleasant and unpopular word and, in normal times, it should be. But the kind of subsidies Mr. Henderson is fighting for are of a very unusual kind. They are purely temporary, a dividend be abandoned as soon as normal business methods can be resumed. They are part of the emergency—part of a war economy which cannot be judged in terms of a peace economy. . . The justice to industry, both producing and retailing, and to the consumer as well, the subsidy plan seems the only way out.

Learning to Fly 'Sky Paps'

U. S. Barrage Balloon Training Center at Camp Tyson, Tenn., provides the training necessary for the handling, raising and repairing of the huge balloons which are flown as an aerial screen against enemy bombers. These balloons are flown in critical areas to prevent enemy aircraft from bombing at low altitudes and can be raised to great heights in a few minutes.

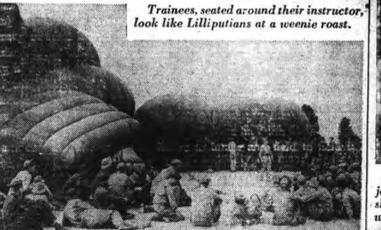

"Alarm! Balloons aloft!" At this command, squads of balloon men rush to their posts, as pictured here.

Here is shown the motor-driven winch which winds and unwinds the steel cable controlling the flight of the balloon.

Robert Kehr teaches the cordage class how to make a "monkey fist"—a knot used in the rigging of a balloon.

Beauty on Production Line Helps 'Keep 'Em Flying'

Women are playing a vital role in the war effort, principally in the great aircraft factories. Some of these attractive women might easily be carving out a career for themselves in the movies, but they are content to stay on the production line. The pretty worker at the Curtiss-Wright propeller plant shown above stands at the apex of a V formed by two lines of propellers.

These girls wear various types of protective headgear while they produce the tools to whittle down the Axis. The girl at the right provides the touch of the eternal feminine with a flower in her hair. (Photos approved by war department.)

Marge has her luncheon on the job in a big aircraft plant, where she is one of hundreds of women who are keeping 'em flying.

And here is an ex-laundry girl doing an important bit to help wash up the Axis. She is proud to be helping Uncle Sam.

A REQUEST FOR Fewer AND Briefer TELEPHONE CALLS

Some of the most important materials of war — the copper, steel, aluminum and rubber that are used in warplanes, shells, tanks and guns — are essential telephone materials, too. They have been strictly rationed. The fighting services need them.

So all of us must conserve telephone service. Every economy that makes the best use of the telephone service that is available will help. Making telephone conversations, particularly social ones, brief as possible and making few non-essential ones will release hours of telephone service to the armed forces, war industries, civilian defense and other vital services of the community.

May we ask your cooperation, please — for the duration?

WHAT ARE WE FIGHTING FOR

The Four Freedoms FREEDOM OF SPEECH

No. 1

The right of the human being to speak and to express himself is as undeniable as a law of nature. Without it there is no hope for happiness, no promise of progress, no unity for national strength.

Only so long as we can speak out openly and without fear, as in public meetings so typical of free America, is it possible to consider important issues or arrive at practicable conclusions affecting public interest. It's the only way a decision agreeable to the majority or a compromise satisfactory to the minority can be determined. This is American, democratic self-government.

Because of the working of this process America was prepared to make the decision suddenly forced upon us by the treachery of an enemy. Immediately

GARDENING in the SKIES

The rodding and cabling of large shade trees is an art as well as a necessity. A perfect tree, of course, which stands erect with the branches leading off the main in a staggered position and the secondaries off these similarly arranged, needs no treatment of this kind. When selecting stock from the nursery, one should look for straight, well balanced trees with normal shaped branches. This is compulsory if you want a well developed structure in the future.

There are too many full grown specimens which were allowed to lead with several branches leading off the trunk directly opposite each other. Or, maybe trees with side branches as large or even larger than the main ones, or trees which have been allowed to grow a double head. These and many other need rods and cables to hold them from spreading apart and for the safety of those that use the ground underneath them.

A cabling job, well done, where needed is one of the best investments one can make in a tree. It is of value to its owner, and is a good insurance against ice storms and high winds. The writer has in mind two large elms and a maple in West Brookfield, another Elm in Brookfield, a very large Elm at the Whitecomb place, Lake Lashaway, and three in North Brookfield, all of which he cabled in 1938 before the hurricane. Every one survived the storm and are standing today. Here is absolute proof that careful cabling, when needed, will save our trees from breaking down.

Cabling is usually done about two thirds up the height of the tree, where the cables take the weight and twist of the branches with the least strain. They should be placed so that the hooks to which the cables are attached near the center of the tree, are higher than those on the outer end of the cables, giving a downward pitch from the center to the outside. This gives the cables much less leverage upon the cables.

Care must be taken to use the proper size hooks or eye bolts and also the right size cable. When inserting hooks use a bit or auger one sixteenth of an inch smaller than the diameter of the hooks and screw them in full length.

When the job is completed, the cables should be tight enough to take some weight off the branches, enough to settle the cables into place and still have a little tension to keep them firm and tight.

Iron rods are used in cases where cables are not sufficient to hold the limbs from spreading apart at the foot, usually where they have been weakened at the trunk.

Minute Make-Ups

If you have very prominent cheekbones, blend on a darker-than-shade foundation over the cheekbones. A lighter shade should be used on the hollows of the cheeks and on the temples. If you have a sagging chin, blend on a darker shade of foundation cream along the chin line. Use a lighter shade, matching the skin, for the other part of the face. If your neck is short and heavy and your face small, use a darker tone of foundation on the neck than on the face. This gives the illusion of a more slender neck.

Bits O' Beauty

Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well. I Peter, 2-13-14.

TO A CANARY

A little snatched of yellow fire,
An unatoned spirit gay,
A fount of song that will not tire,
Although you sing all day.

Your little wings have never flown,
Your claws are long and frail,
You clasp a twig, wind's never blown,
Nor felt the surging gale.

You are a prisoner, so content,
Your joy no bonds can hold,
And as sweet song is love's assent,
It makes your spirit bold.

You mingle song with chitter-chatter,
And give your joy to all,
Your little heart must pitter-patter,
To fill our music hall.

I've heard you match your greatest skill
With music master's art,
And seen your tiny breast and bill,
Exult to do your part.

Your vibrant, quivering little frame
Is dancing with your song,
A proof that life's glad glowing flame
Is urging you along.

Such sweet content and constant cheer
From one so frail as you
Must gladden Mother Nature's ear
And give me courage too.

Cheerfulness Under Restraint

The canary, born in captivity, provides a splendid example of cheerfulness under restraint. We are all going to need much of the canary's spirit before this war is over. Business men are each day finding new restraints of one sort or another adding to their problems. Individuals too are beginning to realize that war is serious business and that our liberties of which we have had so many will have to be curtailed. We own automobiles, but their use is restricted. We like sugar but its use is restricted. We like tea but its sale is already restricted. Young married women like new refrigerators and other modern household necessities but these are not available. Much taxable property will be idle for the duration and while adjustments will no doubt be made by the assessors the use of the property is restricted. Our canary cage is rapidly encircling us. Are we going to continue to sing or are we going to be found at the bottom of the cage with drooping wings and panting heart after a vain attempt to break through the confines of our enclosure? Let us remember that the cage that keeps the bird in, keeps the cat out. If our government in its defensive efforts to guard our liberties must put us in cages for a while let us keep our eye on the cat and our tongues to a song and be truly thankful for what we now have, for it is much more than we will have, shortly. Many of us have grown fatty hearts from the very abundance about us. The present discipline will harm no man or woman whose vision is clear and whose heart is true. There is still greater restraint of liberty for all the free men who are drafted into the army, we stay-at-homes will do well to think of them before we begin to complain. They have been taken from all things most dear to them and are undertaking a work very distasteful to many of them. Their cage is a unit of action that could be obtained in no other way. Their cage too, is designed to keep the cat out, and it is the spirit they maintain that will determine in a large measure which dies first, the cat or the bird. Restraints are absolutely indispensable in times like these. A wise and understanding people will cheerfully bear them and sing behind their protective bastions.

Part Of The Cage

A short time ago the President made an appointment which is of direct and immediate interest to every newspaper, every publication, every radio station and every reader in the country. The appointment went to Elmer Davis. His vastly important job is that of head of the newly-created Office of War Information.

As Time put it, Mr. Davis' task is "to tell the U. S. as much about the war as possible, as fast as possible, with as few contradictions as possible." Control of the news is a very simple matter in the Axis countries, where newspapers and all other mediums of news and opinion are simply tools of the clique in power, and are forced to solemnly distribute the most outrageous lies if that happens to suit the current purposes of the dictators. (The press has gone so far down hill in Germany, for instance, that thousands of intelligent Germans automatically regard anything and everything printed in the papers as false.) Control of the news is a very different thing in a democratic country with a tradition of a completely unfettered press. Information of military importance must be kept from circulation—and at the same time the right of expression of free opinion must be rigorously safeguarded. Honest criticism must be maintained, even while sedition is stamped out. That job calls for a man with wide experience and knowledge, a superior intelligence, and a full measure of downright old-fashioned common sense.

In press circles, the appointment of Mr. Davis was greeted with cheers. He had a distinguished newspaper career on the New York Times. After that he freelanced and distinguished himself as a writer of fiction and magazine articles. He was an instant success as a radio news announcer, where his plain, homely, yet authoritative way of talking brought him a very large national audience. Opinion is that he is as good a man as the President could have picked—and that, under his direction, the government information service will take on real vitality and meaning.

Rubber Challenge Accepted

Private industry is attacking the rubber problem with full vigor today. And, according to authorities, production in 1943 may be greater than we expected even a short time ago.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey alone is building 34 plants with a total capacity of 578,000 tons, and they will be in operation in less than a year. Other oil companies are pursuing similar programs. On top of that, great progress is being made in the development of other kinds of synthetic rubbers, such as those which are produced from coal and coke.

American industry regards the rubber problem as a challenge. It is determined to produce a rubber substitute which, in time, will be as good and perhaps better than the natural product. It is determined to produce such a substitute in sufficient quantity to meet essential civilian no less than military needs. It is likely that some day we may regard the loss of our sources of natural rubber as a blessing in disguise. American invention, American ingenuity and American capital are starting to build a great new synthetic rubber industry which will play a vital role in peace as well as in war.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM THE BOYS IN THE SERVICE

Mrs. Sadie Moulton, School street, North Brookfield reports that her son, Frederick, is stationed in New Caledonia. In a recent letter to his mother Freddie sent a poem which he wrote for her and reads as follows:

My Soldier Mother
There is a Soldier—not a man,
Who performs a duty—close in hand,
Who kissed a son "Good-bye" one day,
Then knelt alone, in silence to pray.

As tears were streaming down this Soldier's cheek,
She prayed, "My son, I cannot speak,
But my love goes forth with you forever
May God protect you, come what ever."

And while her son was in some unknown part,
Another shock did shatter her heart,
Her husband she did lay to rest,
Then continued on to do her best.

To this great Soldier each night I pray,
To give me added strength each day
And may I win come "they" this way.

Now this Soldier—not a man,
Is the loveliest person in the land,
She bore two heart wounds like no other,
This Soldier of God is my dear Mother.

Well, Mom, will write soon,
Lots of love,
Freddie.

He entertained his mother and sister at the U. S. O. centers, of which there are four at the Camp. The Cavanaugh's report that too much praise cannot be given to the U. S. O. as they could appreciate the good it is doing for the Boys to keep up their morale and offering opportunities they otherwise could not have.

Mrs. Althea Prizio, East Brookfield, reports that her son Raymond is stationed at Camp Quantico, Virginia. He is well and has been able to come home occasionally. He is serving in the Marines.

GARDENING in the SKIES

There are two very common pests at this season of the year that give the back yard orchardist and the commercial grower a lot of trouble. The plum curculio and the apple maggot fly, which causes the railroad worms. The apple curculio is not the insect that gives us so much difficulty in the month of June, but the plum curculio lives and thrives on the apple, and keeps the orchardist ever on the alert to destroy him before he ruins the fruit crop. Both these pests are controlled by arsenate of lead, a stomach poison.

Apples affected by curculio bites and stings are already misshapen and deformed, and are beginning to drop off the trees. If you cut their fallen fruit, you will find inside a tiny worm or perhaps several, depending on the infestation. If these apples are allowed to remain on the ground for a while, the worms will leave the fruit and bore into the ground. These grubs go into the pupa stage, and come out of their quarters as beetles, often feeding around in the trees when the fruit is near, ripe, making small scars on the apple. One can see how important it is to keep drop apples picked up often from now until harvest time and destroy them before the worms leave the fruit. Grab apples are especially susceptible to the curculio and should be raked up and destroyed as fast as they fall.

The apple maggot fly, called the railroad fly, is a lazy little creature about two thirds the size of an ordinary house fly. It has a cunning habit of ducking out of sight when you approach the tree. They get their food and drink by tapping the foliage and can be controlled by poison, if timed correctly. These flies deposit their eggs under the skin of the apple and in a short time the egg hatches into a worm, which crawls through the fruit in all directions with no special place to go until it becomes full grown, about the time that the apple has developed into good sized fruit. Then like the curculio, the larvae wait for the apples to fall to the ground then crawl out and tunnel into the soil and remain there until the next July to appear again as flies.

The maggot fly prefers early varieties of fruit such as Astrachan, Transparent, Duchess, Wealthy and McIntosh. A heavy infestation will make fruit ripen on the trees much too early, which of course causes a heavy drop. Again these drops must be taken care of regularly and often, to get the worms before they go into their winter quarters.

Theoretically, the curculio and the maggot fly could be controlled by this method alone if all infected fruit in the neighborhood could be picked up and destroyed before the larvae leave the fruit.

Comparing these two pests their life history and habits are somewhat similar. The curculio appears in the trees about June first, or in an advanced season a little earlier. The maggot fly about July 1st. The curculio has a keener sense of smell than the maggot fly and is attracted to the odor of fruit that is beginning to show signs of ripening.

L-50 is the number of a new War Production Order that means conservation of telephone materials. It means that copper, aluminum, rubber, steel and other materials necessary to telephone service, are being sent abroad. They won't be welcome because they'll arrive, as warships, planes, shells, tanks and bombs.

PICTURE PUZZLE
WHAT ART IS THIS?
You Little Fox!

WHAT DOES L-50 MEAN TO TELEPHONE USERS? This order will probably affect you in several ways... They may be inconvenient or irritating, but we won't ask you to do anything unnecessary or that won't help make life miserable for the unpleasant group pictured above.

HOW YOUR TELEPHONE SERVICE MAY BE AFFECTED
We ask everyone to make social conversations as brief as possible, to help conserve service and perhaps to prevent stricter limitations.

We may have to ask private line users to share party lines with neighbors for the duration.

We may not even be able to install a telephone for you, particularly if you're near camps or naval bases or war industries. But this may happen anywhere.

So, if any of these things happen to you, remember you're helping give L-50 to Hitler, Hirohito and Benito.

TVA 'Demountable Homes'

And now, under the grim necessity of war, comes the demountable, movable home that can be moved from post to pillar, and which is built on an assembly line as the craftsmen of Detroit used to build automobiles. Uncle Sam got his idea from the Tennessee Valley Authority who first used the demountable home.

On the assembly line at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The houses being built here are made in uniform-sized, portable sections, and can be put together in about four hours.

Here is the first "alice" of a demountable house being put in place on its permanent foundation. The lady of the house will be able to cook dinner in her new kitchen within a few hours.

The lady of the demountable house finds that, except for soap and towels, the bathroom is all ready for the master to take a tub when he comes home.

Workers are preparing to load a section of a demountable house on a trailer truck (right) at the end of the assembly line.

Everything but pork chops! A few hours after the first section of the "demountable" was put in place, mildly enters the kitchen and finds it completely equipped and ready for business.

Completeness of the demountable house shown here.

Bits O' Beauty

A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.
Prov. 25-11

THE EDITOR

A tribute to M. H. Williams

No towering mountain ever stayed the breeze
That willed to cool the valley's evening;
No rock bound coast has barred the mist of seas
That wing from reaches of the ocean wide;
No arbuter can stay the march of truth;
That off defies the tyrant's blood-stained might,
Nor propaganda for the urge to ruin
For those who suffer in the cause of right.

For truth, triumphant as the morning light,
Which shines anew in mist distilling dew,
Will lift the burden of oppression's night
By spreading unadulterated news;
And editors who seek the news for fraud
Still find that truth creates its own reward.

W. B. T.

As One Editor To Another

This week we take time out to pat our profession on the back... A free press is not one whit better than its editors and publishers... Yellow journalism may prosper for a time and propaganda may fool some of the people some of the time but never all the people all the time... The record of a free press in America over a period of more than a century and a half clearly reveals the fact that those publications have prospered most who have been wholesome and truthful in content... The use of profane expletives in the columns of good newspapers has been banned for many decades, not by law, but by the code of honor among good men... For a time the same applied to radio broadcasting, but today there seems to be a tendency in some quarters to let down the bars and spice the copy with a superfluity of naughtiness... It is refreshing to find so many men in the editing profession who are still old fashioned enough to blue pencil such stuff, and modern enough to know that eternal verities are not subject to the public whim... Those of us who listen attentively to M. H. Williams in his early evening broadcast "Beyond The News" over station WTAG must be impressed with the fact that here is a news commentator who knows whereof he speaks and seeks only to enlighten his hearers with such facts as are in the public interest... The selection of the matter and the manner of its arrangement coupled with a diction as convincing as it is clear serves to adorn the profession with an example of honesty and good taste that many of us country editors will do well to follow... Such attainment is not for the young theorists who train professionally for their work... It is the product of maturity... It is unassuming and unassuming... It's beauty, like that of a great oak, lies not in artificial trimming but in natural growth... And like the great oak that stands out in the landscape among the lesser trees, such men of attainment take their place just as naturally... We have watched M. H. Williams grow for more than two decades and rejoice to see him in the present fullness of his strength.

Is Your Home Safe?

Is your home relatively safe from fire? Or is it alive with hazards? Think twice before answering those questions. For most homes contain definite and critical fire dangers which their owners never think about. A survey made in Milwaukee testifies to that. A large number of home-owners were asked if their homes were safe and the great bulk of them said Yes. Then the homes were inspected by experts, and in the great majority, serious, obvious and easily-eliminated hazards were unearthed. Basements, attics, and closets are prolific with fire hazards. Old clothing, furniture, piles of discarded newspapers and magazines and similar rubbish are responsible for fire damage running into the tens of millions each year. Go through every storage place, clean it out and call the junkman or your favorite charity. Garages and workshops constitute still another great potential danger. Paint, varnish, solvents, cleaning fluids and other inflammable liquids should be stored in tightly-closed containers—and kept well away from furnaces and heaters. A neat, clean garage is always safer than a dirty, littered garage. Look around yours today. Many a serious fire has been started from shorts caused by frayed lamp cords—or by electric equipment which has been damaged and improperly repaired by amateurs. Check your exposed wiring—and when anything goes wrong with your gadgets, take them to a qualified repairman. It won't cost you much—and it may save a home and a life. If all Americans would go through their homes from roof to cellar looking for fire hazards, we'd substantially reduce this country's disastrous fire loss.

The Construction Regiments "SEABEES"

The design shown below represents the insignia of the Construction Regiments of the Navy. A brief outline of this organization is given as follows with an introductory note. "Who are the Seabees?" by Commander E. J. Spaulding (CEC), USNR, officer in charge of enlistments for the regiment.

Who Are The Seabees?

The "Seabees" are the men enlisted in the Construction Regiments of the Navy who will build the advance and mobile bases outside the continental limits of the United States. There are 18 regiments being recruited and received at the training stations throughout the country where they will remain for training and indoctrination before being assigned to distant bases. A training station is now being erected at Norfolk to eventually accommodate 10,000 men.

These regiments are made up of naval enlisted men (reservists) who are skilled mechanics, carpenters, divers, steelworkers, blacksmiths, etc. Ratings for these enlistments range from Seaman, 3c to Chief Petty Officer.

The Seabees will be thoroughly trained in military tactics and when assigned to duty they will be well able to engage in combat should the occasion arise.

As the present emergency developed it became apparent that the services of contractors and their civilian employees could not be utilized adequately for construction work outside the continental limits of the United States in potential combat zones. After the declaration of war and the capture of Guam, Wake and Cavite it was decided that the only satisfactory solution of this problem would be to accomplish such work by the use of military personnel under military command.

This plan was originally put into effect in October 1941, when one company of 99 men was organized. Two months later five additional companies were formed, designated primarily for utilization as administrative units by Officer-in-Charge of Construction where work was being done by contractors; with civilian labor. These organizations quickly proved their usefulness. It became desirable not only to increase the size of this organization but also to enlarge the scope of their activities by enlisting men with a wide range of mechanical skill and training, who, as a closely knit body under command of officers of the Civil Engineer Corps, could effectively carry out all phases of construction work in potential combat zones and who, being given military training, would be prepared to oppose effective resistance to enemy interference with their assigned task.

The mission of these construction units is clearly outlined by Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, who, in commenting on this program, stated that "this is a real opportunity for those two-fisted, red-blooded Americans who are not fighting behind a gun to serve shoulder to shoulder with the combatant forces of the Naval Service." The Pacific campaign is one of "Amphibious Warfare" basically naval but one in which mobile bases must play a vital part. The Construction Companies are organized along military lines, forming regiments of three battalions, each battalion comprising four Construction Companies of 226 men each and one Headquarters Company of 165 men, composed mainly of specialists such as clerks, bakers, cooks, pharmacists, etc.

News In The World Of Religion

Edited by Bond Fleming
Partly because of the increasing hours and days of work that prevent many people in war industries from attending church, and partly because it is felt that religious services are needed to keep up the morale of the workers, a growing number of industrial plants throughout the country are planning special church services for their employees.
The Colt Firearms Manufacturing Company's plant in Hartford, Conn., two Catholic masses are being sung each Sunday morning, and Protestant and Jewish services will be held on the evenings, workers' club rooms being used as chapels. The Agersstrand Corporation of Muskegon, Mich. opens each workday with a brief religious service at which the president or invited guests speak. Other concerns, large and small, are conducting or planning to install similar religious services.

The basic social problem in Africa, and a serious one in America and elsewhere the world over, is that of race and color adjustments, according to Dr. Emory Ross, secretary of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and a former missionary to Africa. "This is a problem as well as in America, as well as in Africa," says Dr. Ross. "It is essentially a world problem. It is the attitude of the white people to the people of color, and our acts to them as well, that makes the problem. It is when we take attitudes of superiority to men of color that the problem arises. If for no other reason than for our defense and to make certain of our winning the world, it is essential that we should revise our attitudes toward people of color."

Seventeen young women, missionaries of the Methodist Church, formerly assigned to educational and evangelistic work in Japan but recalled because of the war, are now working among Japanese immigrants and their American-born children under the American flag. Some of them are the reclamation centers to which the U. S. Army has moved thousands of Japanese from the Pacific coast, some are in churches and schools in California, Washington, Idaho, Arizona, Wyoming, Colorado, and in Hawaii, while still others are working in the placement of Japanese-American students in schools and colleges in the central states. These missionaries hope to return to Japan after the war.

GARDENING in the SKIES

The Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station has been conducting a scouting program for six or seven years now to discover and also to get people more acquainted and interested in the development of the Dutch Elm disease here in our State. The station's "tree work" have reported their findings and have been a great value in assisting the study of this dreaded disease throughout Massachusetts, and in recognition of the great value of trees to our communities the Experiment Station will continue to carry on the study of tree diseases and make a report to the public.

The first case of the Dutch Elm disease was discovered in the town of Alford, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, more than a year ago, and therefore makes it imperative for a more thorough investigation of the causes of the spread of this disease. It seems that there are many dead and weakened Elms in that part of the State and makes the spread of the disease more liable as the little Elm bark beetle works in decayed wood or even in the woodpile free from these beetles, especially if it is partly decayed and should be used up as fuel or burned by some other means as soon as possible. The method or misunderstanding of this important point might hinder the results of the entire program which the State is carrying on for the destruction of this pest.
A report from the State of New York reads as follows: "The Dutch Elm Bark beetle laden with spores of the Dutch Elm disease fungus may carry it to stored elm logs not previously infected. Later, the new generation of beetles in these logs may further spread spores of the disease fungus. Under these conditions, elm logs stored in the open, or under cover may become spore carriers for the future spread of the disease, even though all standing trees affected by the disease may be destroyed."

By the above paragraph we can see how individuals should cooperate with the State officials and others in exterminating the insects which carry the affected spores of this incurable disease. You are urged to collect samples from Elms on which the writing of foliage occurs to see if streaks appear on the cut surface of the twig or under the bark. If you find doubtful specimens they should be sent at once to the Shade Tree Disease Laboratory, Massachusetts, which will send you a report on their findings in about ten days.

The Victory Twilight race is very close. The standing to date is as follows: Yankees, won 5, lost 3; Cadets, 4 and 4; Doughboys, won 4, lost 5; Aces, 4 and 5.

In boating around Lake Wickabog, starting from the east shore and circling the lake, one gets a picture of camp life from the intensive shack to the most modern and convenient home. Pines and Willows, Oak trees and Birches are replacing those downed by the hurricane four years ago. Cottages close by the clear waters, others high on the banks with three acres of wooden steps leading to the verandas of the north side cottages make them almost an observatory to the other occupants around the shores, and a picture for any lover of outdoor life.

Expensive retaining walls stand literally at the water's edge in contrast to the very opposite, where maybe various bushes whip the ripple of the water as it splashes gaily to respond to a westerly breeze or the after waves of a speed boat. Artistic wells and other sources of water supply are evident by the electric wires running from camp to water's edge with a small stoned up well at one end of the boat house.

At the upper end of the lake the New Braintree highway is visible from the boat. A sand bar which projects into the lake here is posted by the Wickabog Boat Club and so marked by a flag W. B. C. which is to warn operators of boats of its danger.

Turning to the left and viewing the west shore one sees scores of fishermen and fishermen casting from the edges as well as boats anchored here and there or another slowly putting along, dragging the bait, each to his own way of fishing. As you pass the dam, take a look or two at the travel on the Ware road, then turn eastward. Larger camps, almost estates among the trimmed up birches add a pleasant taste to this little voyage. Then along a space of some quarter of a mile that is almost uninhabitable seems and a couple of miles and we are back where we started from.

All this less than a forty minute ride. And that is not all. Some half a dozen sail boats drifting lazily along not making even a ripple while twice as many high powered motor boats of all descriptions scooted here and there, and scores of boats like our own, for the ordinary camper serves the purpose as well, and will create lot of pleasure and fun. Some of the boats are a hundred or perhaps more rowboats and canoes could be counted. Bathing diving board and raft.

All this is the observation of the writer's first real glimpse of Wickabog, a trip of some forty minutes and the initial ride of a three-day old grandson sitting quietly beside.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS
It's not a pleasant picture to contemplate, but War calls for "blood and sweat and tears." And the Army Medical Corps, with its efficient nurses and its volunteer Red Cross "Angels of Mercy," needs thousands of surgical beds for field and base hospitals on every front.

These beds cost approximately $22 each. They are the latest thing in modern hospital beds, with elevating springs... In some instances surgical cots are used in temporary field hospitals and there is a folding bed which may be used in ambulances. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps can buy many of these beds for the Army. All sleep better if you know our boys have every hospital comfort. Buy War Bonds every pay day. Invest ten percent of your income.

Circus Coming to Town

NORTH BROOKFIELD—It has been some time since the North has entertained a circus. Francis C. Rooney, chairman of the Board of Selectmen and head of the Auxiliary Police for Defense announces that the Auxiliary will sponsor the show to be held one day only on the Grove Street Grounds, Wednesday, August 5. Two mammoth shows of Hunt's Three Ring Circus, Menageries, Museum, and a world of novelties, trained animals with two great performances, afternoon and evening. The only big show to visit our town this year.

"Why Swelter At The Circus?" Smart Owners Solve Problem

EVERYBODY likes a circus, but nobody likes the weather that generally prevails when the tents are pitched and the calliope proclaims the fact that the acrobats and clowns and animals are in town again.

Mark Twain once declared that more had been said about the weather, and less done about it, than any other subject under the sun. This kept on being the case, too, so far as circus tents were concerned until the proprietors of Eddy Brothers Circus, touring the East in 1937, announced that they had the solution to the problem.

The pretty young acrobat showed here in standing beside a positive innovation in the amusement world, a tent air cooler. This, by a blower system in connection with a supply of ice, sends a steady stream of delightfully cool air into the circus tent. The air, many degrees cooler than the outside temperature, settles in a layer around the spectators, keeps them thoroughly comfortable on the hottest day.

This is a clever adaptation of an air conditioning principle. Full air conditioning, which daily is growing more popular and is being more and more extensively installed in stores, offices, factories and homes, calls for cooling and cleansing the air, taking the moisture out of it and circulating it in the summer, and warming and cleansing it, adding moisture, and circulating it in the winter, the Air Conditioning Manufacturers' Association points out. But the circus goes where the temperatures are even higher than those outside the tent, and is delighted to have the simple comfort feature which guarantees their enjoyment of the performance.

Throw YOUR Scrap Into the Fight SPLASHES From Lashaway

Miss Jo Ann Fowler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Richard Fowler of Spencer, spent the weekend in East Douglas, Mass., as the guest of Miss Elaine Schuster. Miss Schuster returned with Miss Fowler to remain at the Fowler cottage on Lake Lashaway for several days.

Miss Alice Holden, professor at Smith College in Northampton, has been vacationing for several weeks in Millbridge, Maine. She is expected back in East Brookfield on August 1.

Forty-five have enrolled for the swimming classes to be sponsored by the Social Service Committee on Civilian Defense, under the direction of William Harry of Leicester, a Red Cross supervisor. Children ranging in age from 6 to 19 years are taking the course, and will be transported to and from Jeppoon's Beach, Lake Quabonagash, by bus.

Roy Baribault of Temple street, Spencer, one of the town's outstanding fishermen is doing all right for himself at Lake Quabonagash. He has chalked up his 31st catch of the season at the lake with fish that he made himself. This last catch was a bass weighing five and three-quarters pounds. Last year Mr. Baribault caught 131 bass from Lake Quabonagash, the largest weighing six and one half pounds.

Private Chester Yasokski of the Army is on a furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yasokski, East Main street.

Nancy and B. v. Cronin, Kimball street, have returned from Worcester where they have been entertained by Mrs. Mary O'Donnell.

Misses Clara and Ethel Johnson have returned to Boston after being the guests of Miss Ethel Johnson, The Evergreens, River street.

To date, 76 have enrolled in the swimming classes to be sponsored by the Social Service Committee on Civil Defense, with William Harry of Leicester, in charge.

Rationing Board Names Assistants

The North Brookfield Rationing Board has appointed Miss Irene G. Brucher of the H. H. Brown Shoe Co., Worcester as an assistant supervisor to take care of all applications of company employees for supplemental gas coupons. Employees of that company have been requested to take up their gasoline adjustments with her and she will deal direct with the Ration Board. A similar arrangement will be worked out later with the personal director of other defense plants. The board announced it believed this method would save time for the employees and prove more satisfactory for all concerned.
The board has appointed F. Arthur Fullam of the Fullam Motor Co., as a supervisor of emergency gasoline distribution and has authorized him to make emergency sales of gasoline in cases he deems worthy where the applicant is without the necessary coupons. He will make a monthly report to the board of all such emergency sales and the board will issue him sufficient coupons to take care of the gasoline sold. The board decided on this method after a resident without a motor car had to borrow a machine to get his wife to a hospital and the owner of the car had an A book. The board issued an emergency ration of eight gallons. The emergency provision is for sickness deaths or in cases where out-of-town motorists run out of gas.
Charles Yanusts has notified the Board that he has established a bus service to accommodate about 75 workers who travel from this town daily to the Norton Company, Worcester. It will be necessary to make three trips daily to take care of the different shifts at the plant. Already two Norton employees who were issued supplemental books have returned them with a statement that they would ride in the bus. Other employees of that plant have notified the Board that they would soon as they make arrangements for bus transportation.

Brookfield

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Sampson, Cottage street, assisted by Miss Inis Saucy were hosts at a party recently in their home given to Mrs. James A. Bain in the form of a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. Bain, niece of the Sampsons, was formerly Miss Doris Saucy before her marriage to Private James Bain, in Louisville, Ky., on July 14. Miss Inis Saucy is sister of the bride. There were guests from Worcester, Auburn, Cherry Valley, Spencer, North Brookfield and this town.

Another party was given Mrs. Ruth Lloyd of Auburn, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Parker and family at their home on Ware street, in the form of a dinner in honor of her birthday.

Harry D. Allen, Sr., accompanied members of Boy Scout Troop 118, to Treasure Valley, Paxton, where they are in camp with fifteen other troops of the County. Those leaving town with the committeeman were Willard Merrill, Ronald Allen, Arthur and Lincoln Holmes.

Some of the awards to be given away by the committee in charge of the Old Home Day at Brookfield on Saturday have been announced. Among them are included a $50 War Bond, $25 War Bond and one-half ton of coal. Persons interested in these awards should contact George Rowland, Lester Gavitt or Arthur Sharon as soon as possible.

This week your reporter was agreeably surprised as he visited Spencer's many beautiful lakes of which she should be truly proud.

At Browning Pond we found that most of the tree lined shore was part of the Treasure Valley Boy Scout Camp property and at the Paxton end of the lake we found 300 husky young scouts enjoying woodland and aquatic sports to their hearts content. Further west on the lake we found a new type of camp being opened in which the boys pitched their tents and rough it for a week without many of the improvements in the regular camp premises. This type of pioneer camping is calculated to make the scouts resourceful and self sustaining under unexpected circumstances.

At Howe Pond we found several bits of beauty both at the waterfall and above the falls as illustrated in views G and H in this section.

Brooks Pond presented a picture of peace as the quiet water reached to heaven and brought down a placid blue which was beautifully edged with the green forest shores.

At Styles Reservoir we found turbulent deep waters with a shore line dotted everywhere with high class summer homes of city folks who come to our lakes for their refreshing.

A Cranberry Lake we were able to assist by two young men who rowed us out to a vantage point on an island where we could get a full view. While setting up our camera the boys in the sailboat found themselves in a dilemma when a sudden gust of wind capsized their boat. After some minutes of hard work they furled the sail and righted their boat with the result that we were able to obtain the picture as illustrated here.

At Sugden Lake we were able to get a good view from Lamb's Grove and while we found that the water of Thompson's Pond had been drawn off considerably Sugden Lake had been kept to almost normal capacity.

At Lake Whittemore we chose Luther Hill Park as our vantage point and were able to get a splendid view across the lake with Sibley Farms in the background and Pelouquin's Beach on the distant shore.

Last but not least we were tempted to include Lake Sargent in Leicester as this attractive beach is growing in popularity with Tri-Town folks while the beach provides splendid sand and bathing for the children the wharf provides diving facilities for the more daring.

It is not surprising that more and more folks are building summer cottages on the shores of our lakes. Especially when we realize that practically all our lakes are at high altitudes above sea level which assures dry, cool air coupled with aquatic sports at their best.

It is estimated that the population of the Tri-Town area is increased by 5,000 people during the summer months.

Our Lakes

The Sky came down to the lakes of Town
And added beauty to its renown

Like sapphire studs in an emerald shield the lakes of Spencer not only delight the eye and enhance the beauty of the landscape but also provide visiting friends and ourselves with refreshing recreation.

- (A) Lake Sargent looking east with the bathing beach and wharf at Montrose Spar.
- (B) Lake Whittemore looking from Luther Hill park towards Sibley Farms with Pelouquin's beach on the shore line.
- (C) Sugden Lake looking east from Lamb's Grove.
- (D) Cranberry Lake looking toward Bellview Grove the M. Lamoureux development. Score of fine summer cottages hide along the tree lined shore.
- (E) Browning Pond with Treasure Valley Boy Scout Camp water front in the distance. Over three hundred scouts are now at camp here.
- (F) Styles Reservoir looking east from the Causeway. About two hundred fifty summer cottages dot the shores of this broad expanse of sparkling water.

- (H) Howe Pond in the Spencer State Forest with bathing beach and float on the north side of the pond.
- (I) Brook's Pond whose placid waters grace the shores where many summer residents hide their mansions in the deep forest.

Bits O' Beauty

A froward man soweth strife; and a whisperer separateth chief friends. Prov. 16-28

A MAN

Nor race, nor creed, nor color can Determine just what is a man;
For men are men for what they are,
Though they be white or black as tar.
W. B. T.

Seeds of Sedition

The world on which we all live is at this moment a mountain of T. N. T. . . . Every hour of the day the radio waves carry the awful news of war's desolations . . . A thousand bombers over this city, six hundred over that . . . Thousands dead and more thousands maimed and dying . . . What brought this dreadful condition upon mankind? . . . The seeds of sedition . . . An exaggerated egotism of national ambitions created rivalries which bred suspicion and distrust among man and nations . . . Communists, Catholics, Nazis, Jews, Protestants, Turks and Infidels, Japs and Chinese all were more concerned about the success of their own individual group than they were the common good of humanity as a whole. None of us as individuals are entirely free from this sin of sins and we are all individually and severally guilty before God . . . Hence we must all expect to suffer together in the present distress which our folly has brought upon us . . . Now just as international, racial and religious rivalries create international chaos and war, so the seeds of sedition sown in our own land can bring on civil war and internal strife which can and will destroy us unless we guard against the work of the grape-vine tactics of the sowers of the seeds of sedition . . . Last week we were told how a Jewish gentleman came to one of our lakes, and after paying his admission fee, had the money thrown back in his car after it became known that he was a Jew. Added to this insult he was ordered off the grounds . . . No doubt this man and his family could recover damages for the injury in our civil courts, but it happens that the man who was thus injured is more of a gentleman than his persecutor . . . The Jewish gentleman in question is a highly respected businessman (not one of our customers) who fought in the last war under our flag and who is a member of the American Legion . . . When interviewed he expressed only grief that he and his family should have to suffer humiliation right here in dear old New England the birthplace of our national liberty . . . We mention no names here because the object of this editorial is to heal and not aggravate the present condition of stress and strain under which we are all laboring . . . Here in the Tri-town area we have a splendid record of harmony with a very mixed population . . . Race, color or creed means nothing . . . It is the man and what he is that counts . . . Let's all be on our guard against the sowers of the seeds of sedition . . . Never in the history of this nation has there been a greater need for unity of action and purpose.

Private Medicine Proves Itself

Some time ago, the National Physicians' Committee pointed out that American medicine had anticipated the needs the war has brought. And, it added, American medicine "has established a new place for itself—through service."

The direct contributions of American medicine to the war effort should be known to everyone. Thousands of doctors have given much of their working time to examining men called by the Selective Service Boards—and they have not asked or received one single penny of remuneration. A scientific magazine on the vital subject of war medicine has been established, in order to make available to the entire medical profession the experiences and discoveries of nations which have been long at war. The Medical Procurement and Assignment Service, which was established by order of the President and is staffed with representative doctors, is rapidly and efficiently obtaining medical men as needed for our armed forces.

In the field of civil life, American medicine is making great contributions to the maintenance of health. As more and more doctors are called into uniform, the burden on remaining practitioners increases—but they are meeting the need. Retired doctors are returning to practice in order to help. American medicine is demonstrating its intrinsic ability to adjust itself to any condition.

 Every newspaper in the country is helping Uncle Sam's campaign to sell War Stamps and Bonds. Here's the latest idea, brainchild of Harry Nash of the Newark (N. J.) Evening News. He says that if every golfer bought a 25c stamp at the first tee, Uncle Sam would get 15 million dollars in bonds this year.
 After all," says Harry, "what harm would it do if the caddy carried a Savings Stamp book in his pocket? He might even get a bigger tip."
 Buffer
 In order to prevent excessive sales of gasoline in the counties adjacent to the eastern rationing area, a buffer zone has been set up in which deliveries to filling stations will be cut 25 per cent.

New England Civilians Gird For Enemy Air Raid Threat

The Army's P-38 interceptors (above) are ready to defend New England communities. John J. Hennessy (lower left), civilian defense expert, and representatives of volunteer services, consider problems of possible raids.

BOSTON.—For the first time in 130 years the people of New England are faced with the threat of enemy attack—this time in the form of possible reprisal bombing raids by glory-seeking Nazi fliers.
 Most of the 8,500,000 people in the six New England states are concentrated in 306 cities and towns of 2,500 and more population. In addition to the vital "civilian front," many of the area's 16,000 industrial plants, in which a large part of over a million workers are employed in war production, represent "military objectives." Other targets are army forts, air bases and navy yards.
 Under the leadership of the U. S. civilian defense office for New England, the state, county and local governments are mobilizing thousands of volunteers for duty as air raid wardens, aircraft spotters, auxiliary police and firemen, demolition squad members, first aid workers, and for other related jobs.
 "While it is unlikely that communities in New England will be subjected to sustained enemy air attacks, it is necessary that citizens in every city and town be trained so that losses may be kept as low as possible," according to John J. Hennessy, nationally known public safety expert and former chief of staff of the New York City police department.
 Hennessy has developed a "panic-proof" air raid safety plan adaptable to multiple-tenement buildings. As civilian defense coordinator of the Schenley plants which are producing ethyl alcohol for munitions, and as volunteer director of air raid precautions for the Empire State building in New York City, Hennessy has developed the plan which calls for a volunteer director to head a floor-by-floor organization of air raid wardens, first-aid and fire-fighting crews—with designated safety zones away from windows.
 With a million more people than live in Australia crowded in an area one-fourth as large, civilians of New England are ready to meet possible enemy attacks with the same courage, unity and ingenuity as their Yankee forebears.

GARDENING IN THE SKIES

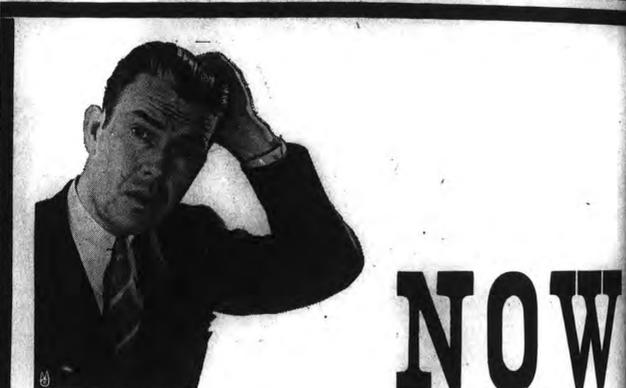

In the past two weeks people have been asking what is happening to their Maples that makes the foliage curl up and look brown, yes, and holes punched as if he had suffered from a severe hail storm and wind.
 There are four common pests that attack the Maples at this season of the year around our immediate localities. I remember about a year ago a lady asked what she could do to stop the ants from going up the Norway Maple in "droves" as she expressed it. Her tree was so covered with the Maple leaf aphid that one could not sit beneath it. The fluid secreted by these pests was dripping off the leaves. The ants were only attracted to the tree by the sweetened flavor of this fluid. They often appear on any tree, plant or shrub that is infested with aphids, on that account. The old reliable nicotine sulphate treatment, of course, is the answer in a case like this. The leaves had curled somewhat at the time.
 The second pest is the Maple leaf cutter which produces irregular oval shaped holes in the foliage. These holes are from one tenth to one half inches in diameter, caused by a tiny caterpillar which feeds around the center of the leaves of the sugar maple.
 Feeding occurs from July to September. The worm winters in the tissue of the leaves. A spray of nicotine, molasses and soap solution in the latter part of June, when the moths are breeding will tend to entrap them by sticking them to the foliage. Raking and burning leaves in the Fall from affected trees will tend to cut down the infestation the following summer.
 Leaf-scorch or Maple blotch is the third. This fungus disease attacks the Silver Maple as well. Frequent rains have a tendency to create a wider spread, and in serious cases the leaves brown to a crisp condition as if burned over a fire. Spraying to control this as well as some other leaf diseases would have to be done in the Spring before it is known whether the season will be favorable or unfavorable for the spread of the infection. Very little is apt to show up in a dry season like last year. Two years ago, being a wet season, the damage was similar to what we now have.
 The fourth is the maple twig pruner which also attacks the oak. Go into a Park or woodland where there are numerous Maples and Oaks and doubtless you will see many twigs lying on the ground or perhaps even falling if there is any breeze. The larvae hatch in July and feed around on the young twigs for a while and as they mature, bore into the center of the branch. At this season of the year the bore

McSHERRY'S VISIT CAMP DIX
SPENCER—Mr. and Mrs. James C. McSherry and daughter Lois had the pleasure of a trip to Fort Dix, N. J., where they visited with Robert Granger a brother of Mrs. McSherry. While at Fort Dix they had a splendid opportunity to inspect the fast expanding camp which has the appearance of a great city. Mrs. McSherry's brother Robert Granger who is in the Air Corps showed them all over the camp but her other brother Lt. Edward Granger, who is a navigator in the Air Corps was found to be in foreign service.
A pleasant surprise was enjoyed by the McSherrys when they unexpectedly met Edmund Dercoches, who is now private first class and whose parents live at 51 Temple street, Spencer. Mr. and Mrs. Dercoches visited their son at Fort Dix Saturday and returned to Spencer Sunday night.
Both Mr. and Mrs. McSherry were greatly impressed by the health and morale of the boys they met everywhere in the camp. This coupled with a manly courtesy shown by both officers and men made them feel that the boys were being well treated and were happy.

JOSEPH N. DUMAS SPENCER—Joseph N. Dumas, 52, of 7 Pearl street, a truckman for many years died Tuesday at the N. E. Baptist Hospital in Boston.
He was a lifelong resident of this town. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Corinne (Query) Dumas, a son, five daughters and ten grandchildren.
Funeral Friday at the home followed by high mass at 9 at St. Mary's church. Burial in St. Mary's cemetery in charge of J. Henri Morin and Sons.

MRS. JULIA ROSS SPENCER—Word has been received by Mrs. Ansley Teed of the Kingsley Block, Main street, of the death of her sister, Mrs. Julia (bits) Ross of the Royal William Hotel, Boston. She was 82 years old. She had been ill for several weeks.

State Trooper Galvin
Leaves For Army
The local barracks has taken over his duties in the U. S. Signal Corps. He is a native of Brighton and came to Brookfield for his first assignment as a trooper only a few months ago, receiving his official recognition after the probationary period a few days ago.

The First Unitarian Church will remain open during the month of August and the pulpit will be occupied by guest clergymen to enable the pastor, Rev. Howard A. MacDonald to have his annual vacation. The Rev. H. Sumner Mitchell of Sanford, Maine preached Sunday. His subject was "After the War—What?"

A woman stands a better chance of catching a man if she keeps her trap shut.

Some of the farm labor shortage maybe due to the hired men joining the Army because they heard that the soldiers can sleep till six in the morning.

24 HOURS A DAY!
Dependable Service on the Home Front
Old Glory waves 24 hours a day during war time. Our armed forces are fighting the enemy right around the clock. And here on the home front we're glad to have the privilege of supplying war industries, vital businesses, factories and homes with light and power on a 3-shift basis. My Soldiers of Service are constantly mobilized so that neither rain nor hail, sleet nor snow, may keep the needed kilowatts from coming through. Like all loyal Americans, they're happy to give their best for New England and the Nation.

Party Line Telephones

PARLY LINES have long been an object of good-natured humor. But they've given good service at lower than individual-line rates... and they served their purpose.
NOBODY SAID they were equal to individual lines. Neither is one lump of sugar as good in your coffee if you like two; nor one pants suits for two-pants men.
SERIOUSLY, saving copper may be more important than saving sugar or wool. These can give comfort to some boy in service, but copper helps him fight. It goes into bombers, cruisers, tanks, submarines - into shells and bombs tagged for Tokio and Berlin.
THE SMART thing today is not to "keep up with the Joneses," but to keep down with them. That may mean one lump of sugar, one pants suits, party-line telephones and brief conversations.
SO WHEN your neighbors take party-line service don't think they've got an economy streak. Telephones can be shared like wool, sugar, tires and gasoline.

Normand Juaire
Is Happy In New Caledonia
SPENCER—Many friends of Normand Juaire who has been away from Spencer since January is now in New Caledonia.
New Caledonia is 800 miles from Australia and is regarded as one of the healthiest spots in the world. The hottest temperatures being in Dec. Jan. and Feb. when the thermometer ranges from 77 to 86 degrees. The coolest weather starts in May but the thermometer never goes lower than 45 degrees.
The people of the Island are mostly natives and French white. New Caledonia is a French possession and French is the predominant language. Practically all the natives are devotedly and have been christianized, largely the work of the French Catholic Missionaries. There is absolutely no poverty on the island and no unemployment. There is good hunting of deer, wild pig and duck, good fishing with large variety of types of fish available. On September 19, 1940 the Caledonians revolted openly against Vichy and joined the Free French movement under DeGaulle. All the American troops have been sincerely and gratefully welcomed.

Dear Ma:
This is the new V mail and I hope you are the first one in town to get one. I am still feeling fine and am quite busy now as I am in the radio station and we have a lot to learn. I received about six of the Spencer Leaders who have been sending me and the latest one I think was May 22nd. I got a big kick out of receiving them and I want to thank you for sending them. I haven't gone out on a pass yet as it doesn't seem to tempt me. There isn't much to do when we do go out on a pass as things are much more expensive out here. I would like you to send me my second best tennis racket as I might have a chance to play some out here as it looks like we'll be here for a good while. I went to confession and communion last week, so don't worry about me, Ma. Goodnight, and give my love to the rest.
Love,
Paul.

Surgical Dressing Group Hears First Hand Story
SPENCER—The reality of the war was brought home to a group of women, making surgical dressings last Thursday when Wilfrid LaFranchise called on them in Social Hall. He is a Tail-gunner and a bomber and served on a large boat that was torpedoed in the Battle of the Midway Island. He, with five others were thrown into the sea and lived (?) for five days in a rubber boat with no sustenance but salt water. They were picked up by the "Hornet". Arrived in San Francisco, Cal. Wilfrid applied to the Red Cross for help and received money to journey East. Although he had expected to spend a longer time here already he has been summoned to return and left this week for the Pacific area. His mother is Mrs. Mary Gonyer.

Bits O' Beauty

I will say unto God, Do not condemn me; show me wherefore thou contendest with me.

It is good that thou shouldst oppress, that thou shouldst expose the work of thine hands, and shine upon the counsel of the wicked? Job. 10-2,3

RESIGNATION

I stood on the shore of a boundless sea With the care of the world in the heart of me, And feeling the surge of the world's unrest Resolved that the dead were indeed most best.

If a world of beauty was made for love, Then why this scourging from heaven above? And the burning heart of the world within Cried out in its pain, "All this wrath is sin."

For we can't blame God for the works of men If war is the devil's worst stratagem, If the grief, the woe, the sorrow and pain Are but children of those who strive in vain.

"But what shall I do?" cried my heart within, "I am part of this world's ungodly din." Then the word of God in a firm strong voice Said, "Suffer, repent, and later rejoice."

We have all come to a time in our lives when we owe it to each other to frankly discuss our mutual problems ... A world order is passing away before our very eyes ... The best of our manhood is being taken from us due to the exigencies of war ... A war that is different from all other wars ... More complex in its causes and equally more complex in its effects ... A synthetic civilization erected with the heven stones of virtue from the quarry of Christianity, has been built upon the sands of infidelity ... This infidelity in its modern phase, finds its roots in Germany where some fifty years ago the system of the higher criticism of the Bible was invented ... This system of agnosticism flattered the erring ego of the generations that have witnessed the greatest progress in scientific accomplishment in the world's history ... This germanic levity of immorality (for godlessness in all its manifestations is immoral, because God is the fountain head of all morality) worked to undermine all faith in the inspired word of God ... It not only created doubt where faith once motivated men's intellect in the way of morality based on the word of God, but it also became positive in its assertions and supplanted the doctrine of creation with the myth of evolution ... These partners in crime, namely, Higher Criticism of the word of God and the Theory of Evolution, worked hand in glove and deceived the very elect so that not only many of our colleges and other institutions of learning became filled with the loathsome disease, but many of our seminaries became tainted with its soul blighting nonsense ... The love of God as expressed in the Gospel message of his divine Son is not something to be resolved into scientific theorems like atoms, molecules and electrons ... It transcends all scientific formula and recreates itself in the hearts of men by a faith which works by love and purifies the heart ... It is the absence of this purifying element in human society in its broader aspects that has led up to our present distress of nations with perplexity ... Man, created in the image and likeness of God, motivated by the impulse of love is an altogether different species than the creature of science whose father is an anthropoid ape whose mother the daughter of blind chance ... It is not surprising that many believe that the German nation, as such, will disappear from the earth before this present struggle is consummated ... If this should come to pass how shall we, who have in so large a measure imbibed the cup of her false doctrines, expect to survive? ... There can be one answer ... Cast off and away every vestige of the sophistry that has clothed the super-men of german culture and role ourselves with the garments of a meek and quiet spirit which is in the sight of God of great price ... Let us rally round the altars that speak of the love of God ... Let us cherish the heritage of the faith of our fathers and be prepared to suffer, repent and later rejoice.

We Are Honored

Next week the Tri-Town area is to be honored by a visit from the Governor of the Commonwealth, His Excellency, Leverett W. Saltonstall, who will attend a notable gathering to be held at Sibley Farms where John R. Sibley will welcome hundreds of guests who will attend a joint meeting of the Worcester County Extension Service and the Massachusetts Jersey Cattle Club. The meeting which combines the annual picnic of the Extension Service with the presentation of twelve pure bred Jersey bull calves to owners of grade cow herds is indeed a notable event. It is part of a national program which will result in one thousand pure bred Jersey bull calves being given to farmers for the strengthening of the blood lines of the herds. It is fitting that in Massachusetts Sibley Farms should be chosen for the rallying point in this splendid labor of love and equally fitting that Elm Hill Farm will share in the program. We doubt if there is any area of equal size in the United States that can boast so many fine pure bred herds of cattle as right here in the Tri-Town area. We welcome the governor and appreciate his coming to take part in this truly notable event.

Dr. Edward H. Hume, veteran medical missionary to China, now secretary to the Christian Medical Council for overseas work, is urging that Christian hospitals in America and throughout the world enlarge the scope of their ministry by employing staff members "to inquire as to the economic, social, mental, and religious background of each patient, in addition to discovering the facts of his physical well-being." In the search for ways in which "the ministry of the spirit might aid in bringing full health to the individual, we have scarcely crossed the threshold," Dr. Hume believes, "if we need fuller understanding of the inter-relationship of body and mind and spirit. We need continued study and development of the contributions that faith can make to the maintenance of the mental and physical health and to the cure of disease."
Hearing that the United States Government is planning to settle in China about 10,000 Japanese evacuees from the Pacific coast, recently returned to the United States, the Methodist ministers recently gathered in Conway, Ark., for a conference, adopted resolutions which constitute a well-organized plan for the settlement of these new-comers. The pastors agreed to maintain a Christian spirit "toward these fellow citizens of ours", to provide them with the Board of Christian Churches and Church Extension to place a Japanese-speaking missionary among them. They have also set up a "Board of Managers" to be organized to give effect to this welcoming of the American Japanese.

Over the Garden Wall

The Lakes of Spencer or any other town can furnish inspiration for many hours of keen delight. The one I enjoy most is the Wire Hill Lake reservoir, maybe too small to be called a lake but none the more beautiful when the water is allowed to be at its natural level. Last year was a very low one for many of us who were in the habit of delighting in its accustomed beauty. The extremely low level of the water was a horror. This season we are rejoicing in a full lake once more. The view from the hill-tops surrounding it is one I'm always raving about, a true "million dollar view." The view is made to order for effectiveness. The hills come down on the far side in an effect to rival pictures of Yosemite Valley of California fame. In the spring their varied shades of green are a soft blending of color charm an artist and what the paint-brush of autumn can do to those maples, oaks and birches only those lovers of autumn tuesperities can appreciate.
The flowers about a lake are usually extra choice. Thickets of Swamp-pinks or wild zeaesias send their fragrance far and wide in the breeze. The water-lily fills annually favored coves with muddy bottoms. The water lily's fragrance is like none other if you do have to your nose down into its golden heart to enjoy it to the fullest. A half dozen water lilies can make any one's day. The rather unassuming native orchid Arethusa grows among the bogs at the lake's edge many times. Where a brook runs into the lake the Cardinal Flower may flaunt its crimson banner in late summer to gladden the heart of the passer-by.

Who owns the lakes in your neighborhood? All you who truly care: their year-round glory. Who can't to more?

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM THE BOYS IN THE SERVICE

A joint surprise party was tendered Lawrence Rice and Ernie Hayes in honor of their departure...

Robert P. Meader of Main street, East Brookfield has enlisted in the Army.

John J. Murphy, West Brookfield will leave for the Army, August 10, having passed his final test in Springfield.

Henry Brown of the U. S. Navy stationed at Newport is passing a furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, Gilbert street, North Brookfield.

Letter received from Bernard Quinn North Brookfield Boy Scout.

For Hancock, N. J. July 28, 1942. Recently in New York I had occasion to read through a copy of the Brookfield Union and I must say, after reading all the metropolitan dailies of New York and Philadelphia and large Southern cities, I enjoyed the "Union" most of all.

It is the old story of no newspaper in the world quite coming up to the home town newspaper. You read an item in such a paper; it is about people you know, and you read about events and the comings and goings of a community with which you are familiar and no other news seems as important at the time.

It seems that in this business of solidifying any contact with the home town has stronger appeal than ever. That is why it is more interesting to read writings on the doings of the town—especially in the interesting was the timely column devoted to the boys who are in the service from that area.

That is all for the best, and now, as never, we are interested in the men who have joined the various armed services from the Brookfields is being especially interested in the men who are in the armed forces. Few communities like size can match the number it is represented by in the various camps, naval stations and Marine Centers.

Such interest is all for the best and although the days of the so called "small town newspapers" are said to be numbered, we hope the numbers are large, for it is here that they continue to flourish in their simplicity and sincerity, and lack of dramatics, which makes them so much the better.

I feel sure that all the boys away, who are able to read the "Union" occasionally, are grateful for the interest shown in closing my sincere best wishes to those who make it possible that we still have a "home town" newspaper. May the venture continue with the best of luck from all sides.

Sincerely, Corporal Bernard Quinn, Hq. Btry, 7th C.A., Fort Hancock, New Jersey

NOTE—The Brookfields Union reaches a number of our boys in service now regularly, so let this above note from Corporal Quinn whom we all know, and a former correspondent of the Union promptly printed in these columns. Direct them to Frank D. Wiley, Brookfields Union Correspondent, North Brookfield, Mass.

A report from Mrs. Julia Egan, Bell street, North Brookfield comes that a nephew, Dennis Connolly of the Army, stationed at the Panama Canal, has been promoted to corporal. Dennis entered the service last October.

Mr. Francis W. Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy, Mt. Pleasant street, North Brookfield, has finished a seven-day furlough with his parents. He has been stationed at Fort Eustis, Va., since his enlistment several months ago, and has recently been assigned to the anti-aircraft division of the Coast Artillery.

Joseph J. Durkin, Jr., son of Postmaster and Mrs. Joseph J. Durkin Hayes in honor of their departure, Brookfield, has enlisted as a Naval Aviation Cadet and has left for Chapel Hill, N. C., where he will study at the University of North Carolina. He received his education at the Brookfield High School and Bridgton Academy at Bridgton, Me. In both schools he majored in athletics.

William Clark Smith, son of Mrs. Mary Lane, Maple street, North Brookfield, has enlisted as a Naval Aviation Cadet and expects to leave for Chapel Hill, N. C., where he will study at the University of North Carolina. He is 21 years old and is a registered undertaker, having passed his state board examination a few months ago. He was recently employed by the Sessio Company of Worcester, and afterwards he graduated from an embalming school in Boston. Mr. Smith is popular around the Brookfields and the Brookfields Union and I must say, especially baseball and basketball during his High School career.

Sgt. Arland Moyes of Howard street, Brookfield, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ware, who has been stationed in the recruiting office, in the officers' training school at Camp Lee, Va.

Alé and hearty!

GARDENING IN THE SKIES There are certain trees around us that are poisonous either to touch or taste, and while mention of these are made, it might be well if we know of these shrubs and plants that are also injurious to the human system. We cannot put too much stress on the poisonous properties of these trees, plants and vines. The Board of Health of the city of Worcester has issued a list of these plants and vines which are highly poisonous and which should be removed from the grounds of all houses. The list is as follows: Poison ivy, Poison oak, Poison sumac, Dogwood berries, and the young leaves of the Mountain Laurel are fatal to children. Among the plants which are poisonous is probably the most familiar. It has three, never five leaflets and produces dull gray berries and is poisonous to touch. The poison ivy is immune to it, the wisteria thinks it is immune to it, the wisteria thinks it is immune to it, the wisteria thinks it is immune to it. Cow parsnip is a poisonous weed that grows in the woods. It is a member of the Parsley family, has finely cut leaves and white hairy stems. It is highly disagreeable and, if touched often causes poisoning like that caused by Poison Ivy. The Primrose often causes a red rash to appear on the skin when handled. The Nettle, a common weedy weed which touches produces burning and itching caused by the formic acid in the hairs on the leaves. These penetrate the skin and make a May Weedy dog. Fenol is another irritant weed of the Daisy family. The juice of Daffodils is irritant to growers who handle quantities of them.

North Brookfield WORKERS REFUSE TO USE BUS TRANSPORTATION The Rationing Board announces that it has complaints under consideration where some of the workers have refused to use the private bus transportation furnished to and from Worcester and Barre and were using their own cars for traveling without carrying extra passengers, and other holders of the rationing books. The Board is investigating and using their "C" books for pleasure riding. The Board is its weekly statement called attention to the law which provides loss of rationing books, both gasoline and sugar, for failure to comply with the provisions on which the applicant was granted a supplemental ration of gasoline. On the applications of members of the State Guard belonging to the East Brookfield Company, the Board ruled it could not issue additional books to holders of A books for transportation to and from East Brookfield and for maneuver purposes. It suggests that all North Brookfield men in the East Brookfield Company use their present books and keep an exact record of additional mileage used for State Guard purposes and the Board will make an adjustment on their books at the end of each month. Some Board members have received the Board's announcement of motorist's attempting to get emergency gas. This emergency provision is for holders of A books only and persons without cars who need transportation to a hospital. It will not be issued to holders of B and C books. B and C stickers are now available at the Board office. Applicants must show their B and C books in order to receive emergency gas. Sugar certificates for canning will be issued Aug. 17, 18 and 19. The board urges all who desire sugar for canning to apply on the board. Persons who received additional sugar for early canning must specify the amount received if applying for more sugar.

Bits O' Beauty

I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding. And, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down. Prov. 24-30, 31

PAINT

In old New England villages
Snug homesteads seem to tell
Of honest ways and honest days
When men built strong and well.

Great chimneys speak of comforts where
The log fire's ruddy glow
With warm delight throughout the night
Cast shadows to and fro.

Now on a street beside the sea
Two houses, side by side,
Have stood for years before the spears
Which on the wind doth ride.

The one, since seventeen-seventy-four
Has battled wind and time,
A pretty sight, all dressed in white,
It still withstands the clime.

The other, built but fifty years,
Is doomed by dire neglect;
Dishonest paint is its complaint
And now 'tis weather wrecked.

In olden time our sires were wise
E'en though their art was quaint,
For long ago they learned to know
'Twas well to use good paint.

PRESERVATION

Paint can play an important part in National Defense . . . Not only is it a great preservative against decay but it also serves to keep up our spirits . . . The writer will never forget the picture of neglect and decay witnessed in Constantinople (now called Istanbul) ten years after the last war . . . Defeated in world war number one, Turkey for a time had lost all its initiative and courage, her people, impoverished and discouraged, left their property to rot and decay although the houses were crowded with inhabitants . . . In the short space of about twenty years one of the most beautiful of all cities had become one of the most depressing . . . As virtue is its own reward, so poverty is its own impoverisher . . . We form habits of progress and preservation or we form habits of retrogression and decay . . . As one journeys through the Tri-town area it is evident that most of our property owners take pride in their properties and are wisely keeping them well painted and attractively landscaped . . . Today, this is almost a patriotic duty . . . There is nothing more depressing than a shabby homestead . . . Nothing can defeat us like defeatism on the home front . . . Let us therefore not only keep the home fires burning, but let us also keep the home front cheery . . . We can help materially by keeping both the exteriors and interiors of our homes in a cheery dressed up condition . . . Furthermore by insulating against cold with storm doors and windows we can materially aid the fuel problem this winter, and the money saved on fuel will go a long way toward paying for the storm windows and doors . . . Now is the time to spruce up and prepare for winter.

... take good care of it
Since new irons are scarce, give your old one the care so it will last longer. And if your iron is "temperamental," a minor adjustment or repair or new part will restore it to its normal condition. Wipe cool iron with damp cloth to keep it clean. Remove starch by boiling plate over paper sprinkled with salt. Rinse iron in water. Avoid ironing over buttons, pins. Don't let cord rest on hot iron. Repair it when worn. SAFETY FIRST — Be sure cord is cold before putting it away.

M. Kincaid of Hillsville advised your reporter this week that now is the time to have all roof repairing done before the fall rains and winter snows arrive. Mr. Kincaid who is a roofing and chimney expert also advised that the best way to get the maximum efficiency from fuel is to have a clean chimney. Furthermore a clean chimney is also an assurance against chimney fires which often cause the destruction of the entire dwelling.

No chimney or roofing job is too small or too large to receive Mr. Kincaid's careful attention.

IT'S AS EASY AS THAT TO MAKE TELEPHONE CALLS BRIEFER

That's one way you can do your bit for the war every day.

YOU CAN DO still more by reducing non-essential long distance calls.

ANOTHER WAY you can help relieve congestion is standing-by at your telephone when you are waiting for a long distance call to be completed.

YOU CAN SAVE valuable telephone time by leaving messages when the party you're calling is not available. Call-backs take telephone time that is needed for speeding the war.

YOUR HELP is urgently needed because the telephone must give war needs first call.

PLEASE think before you telephone. Do you have to make the call? If it is essential will you please make it as brief as possible?

Anniversary

Five Years Ago - Miss Adrienne Kasky and Miss Apolline Aucoin were enjoying a number of weeks touring European Countries. The North Spencer Social Club were anticipating a whist party and dance at the North Spencer Club House. Wallace Benjamin of Spencer was married to Abbé Collings of Southbridge in Southbridge by Rev. Ira J. Robert of Ware. Plans were being made for a field day at O'Garra Park with the drum corps taking part with William C. Bennett as director. Twenty-five Years Ago - Isaac Wood lost a portion of his index finger when he caught it in a mangle machine at Prouty and Co. Factory. To guard against possible thefts, arrangements were made to guard the community garden of Allen-Squires Co. every night by special police until harvest time. The selectmen voted to allow the Company State Guard to use the town hall for drill purposes every Tuesday and to fit some room in the town hall with racks to hold the company's rifles. It was announced that the wedding of Jeffrey J. Baribault and Miss Mary Louisa Wood took place on Ernest Potter gate up his position Labor Day.

Over the Garden Wall

It is true after all. For years and years I've yearned over those gleaming white in the moonlight over pergolas and fences. Time after time I've started seeds, or tried to, and never a seedling had about declared that Moon-flowers were only a myth, like a dragon with thirteen tails. But this week I find when all unexpecting at an early hour I go on a prosaic errand like buying a bag of cement, that Miss Katherine Conlin has a beautiful and well worth trying again now that I know "it can happen here." We all hope you are sharing your wits to enter just a smidge of your lovely things from the garden as you possibly can to help make a fine show. You know you enjoy other folk's flowers; all right, let us enjoy yours. The fun of gardening is changing your mind about what you should do. August is the month to look around and see what changes you'd like made in your garden next year.

in the B. & A. R. owing to the fact he was called and accepted the draft examining board in New York. Fifty Years Ago - A new market opened on Chestnut street. ELIZABETH WARNER - Mrs. Elizabeth Warner, formerly of Worcester died Wednesday night at her home, 121 West Point, Ware. Brookfield Orchard Has Bumper Crop

About one mile out from the town's center on the Old East Brookfield Road is the famous Brookfield Orchards. Back in 1919, the orchard was the open fields and stony cow pastures of the Banks and Krussell farms which were purchased by the Orchard Company. The orchard has been in operation in those days would seem to play things now; never-the-less they played a great part along with plenty of hand labor to take down trees and brush and put these acres of ground into excellent shape. The writer remembers, it seems, endless rows of young trees, only whips, set so exact that one could see only straight lines at any angle. Some 20,000 of these were soon (Continued to Page Six)

Former North Brookfield Man Takes Bride at Fort Dix, N. J. The first wedding to take place at the U. S. O. building at Fort Dix, Wrightsville, New Jersey was held on the evening of August 17, in a very attractive ceremony which was performed by the camp chaplain using the double ring service. Private Paul Ellis Clark, formerly employed as a farm hand at the King Farm, Elm street, and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Clark, of Williamsburg took as a bride, Miss Sylvia L. Thayer, who lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Thayer of Haydensville. The attendants were Miss Phyllis West of Haydensville and Miss Thomas Hepton of Fort Dix. The bride wore a soldier blue steeple length dress of silk jersey with navy accessories and a corsage of gardenias and sweethearts. The bridesmaid wore a black silk dress with a corsage of red roses and gardenias. Following the ceremony and reception upstairs with about 40 camp boys attending, the bridesmaids formed a line from the foot of the stairs to the door way and through Mrs. Clark marched. Mrs. Clark is a graduate of the Smith's Vocational School and is employed at McCallum's Store in Northampton. Private Clark is also a graduate of the same school and before his induction on June 4th was for some time employed in North Brookfield. He received his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Ga.

Bits O' Beauty

I exhort therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving thanks, be made for all men; For kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. I Tim. 2, 1-2

OUR GOVERNOR
 To Lovett W. Saltonstall

The gilded dome of "Beacon Hill" means naught to him who sits beneath its august vault. For pomp and pageantry were never sought. By one, high meek and honest to a fault. A blue-blood? Yes, and that, New England's best. Where fear of God from cradle to the grave. Evolves a strain whose breeding makes it blest. With fairest charms that virtue ever gave.

These blue-bloods met at Sibley Farms today. They came from farm, from workshop and from mart; A multitude, so mixed in every way. And yet, each felt one pulsing of the heart: Their Governor had come to honor them— Good cheer and service were his diadem. W. B. T.

America The Beautiful

To all those who had the pleasure of being present at Sibley Farms on Wednesday, August nineteenth, nineteen hundred forty-two there will linger something more, for on this occasion we saw "America the Beautiful" at its best. The happy healthy throng of common people, Americans all, regardless of race or creed, mingled and co-mingled with a freedom of good cheer that seemed to the writer a little foretaste of what the Kingdom of God on earth may be like. As I write these words a lump in my throat and a moistening of the eyes cause me to pause. What a contrast to this happy scene of peace and good cheer and the bloody battlefields of the world all about us. I think of the boys all ready over there and the ones about to leave. I think of their mothers, wives sweethearts and daddys too. Following this interlude of sadness I think of Washington at Valley Forge, Lincoln at Gettysburg, Wilson at Versailles and our own president Roosevelt and the burden he now bears. Then I remember the lines from the "Book of Books" at the top of this column. Then back to the governor of the Commonwealth and the inspiration I received as I watched him make the presentation of those pure-bred Jersey bull calves from the herds of the rich to the herds of those less burdened with this world's goods but equally blessed with the cares and joys of service. Our Governor, the highest executive officer of the commonwealth was among us as one of us. No pageantry, no pomp, not even any police or other personal guards apparent anywhere. Our Governor mingling with us and among us as one of us, genuinely happy and smiling as he felt the magnetic subtle urge of love and loyalty create its own informal program. If the idealism of the American way of life finds its roots in Christian ethics, and these ethical principles are, even sub-consciously, leading us to the greatest sacrifices for our idealism, can it be that after we have given our very all in lend-lease, and blood, and sweat, we stand impoverished of all our accumulated material wealth there will still remain in "America the Beautiful" a spiritual urge to welcome the coming of the King of Kings, the Prince of Peace? We believe there will be for he shall yet make wars to cease from the ends of the earth, and cause men to beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; when nation shall not lift sword against nation neither shall they learn war anymore, for the mouth of the Lord of Hosts hath spoken it. May our beloved governor live to see this happy consummation of Christian hope.

Manpower On The Farm

In a recent address, John Brandt, head of the National Co-operative Milk Producers Federation, had some common-sense things to say about agriculture in this country.

On the subject of the farm labor situation, he observed: God pity this nation and its liberties if the farmers of America said tomorrow, "We are going to quit on Friday at four o'clock and we won't turn a wheel again until eight o'clock Monday morning. We'd be licked before we started. Our men are going to the Army, as we expect them to go, and we likewise expect whatever is necessary of the manpower on the farm to go and work in defense factories. But until such time as the manpower of the city has been used to the extent of more than 40 hours a week, they have no right to draw from agriculture men and women out of the 70-hour category."

Food is as necessary to this war as bullets. We have obligated ourselves to supply other United Nations with gigantic quantities of foodstuffs which they cannot obtain elsewhere. If the farms are drained of manpower, that food supply cannot be produced. In some sections of the country, lack of manpower for farming is already forcing curtailment of operations. This is a real and imminent problem, and it must be solved.

Over the Garden Wall

"The golden-rod is yellow, The corn is turning brown, The trees in apple-orchards With fruit are bending down— It's the same jingle we used to say with sing-song rhythm when we were very small in school, but it brings a comforting picture to mind to-day as well as then. Each season has its own individuality and the approaching autumn is no exception. Let us enjoy each glorious day to the fullest before Jack Frost puts an end to the garden season for this year, and we have to turn our minds to Thanksgiving dinners, Christmas celebrations and the making of New Year's resolutions. Then the seed catalogs will begin to come and we'll be finding the garden fever arising high once more.

"When the first cold days came along we used to hear "This makes you wonder what you've done with your summer's earnings" and also makes you ask yourself "What have I done with this summer's garden?" There must be lessons you've learned and also a few things you've learned and a rag-weed can't grow in the same spot. Or can they? Sometimes it seems hard to answer that one, they get so close. Well, we can only keep on trying!"

The Black Walnut, an ornamental tree has from 13 to 21 leaflets on its stems growing in a star-shaped pattern. The Black Walnut grows very tall, has 11 to 17 leaflets on its stem growing directly opposite each other, with a terminal leaflet. The Black Walnut grows very tall, has a brownish bark and the fruit is a purplish brown. The fruit is round, dark shelled and very rough. The Butternut grows only medium height and has a flat top giving the tree a more bushy appearance. It has a gray bark, and the wood is much lighter colored than the Black Walnut. The nut is oblong and pointed with a rough shell which is thick. The shell is covered with a thick, scaly skin which is sticky. When ripe and dry this skin peels and falls off leaving a very rough surface. Meats are large and delicious. The Shellbark or Slagbark Hickory is very common and grows in almost any locality. This variety can be recognized by the leaflets, five in number, which are much smaller. The nut has a white meat and the husk is quite thin for the Hickories. Both young and old trees have a strong odor. The tree grows both wild and cultivated. The Brown Hickory or Pignut has five to seven leaflets, usually five in number, which are much smaller. Next to our kinship to God, the most basic and significant relationship of life are within the home," says Dr. Aaron H. Rapkin, rural expert of the Methodist Church. "The home is the greatest of all institutions. The right kind of atmosphere within the home, and between parents and children, is the best basis for living a worthwhile life. Certainly there is nothing better than the home to help bring about the best relationship between man and God. Many souls are anemic and hungry today because they are looking outside for the happiness that can come only by way of the home". Dr. Robert McClure, Canadian medical missionary who has for years been directing medical work among West China's military and civilian wounded, has recently been engaged in stemming an outbreak of relapsing fever that first attacked a group of Chinese soldiers passing through the city of Kwei-yang. "The fever went like wildfire among the troops, and it is spreading to the homes there is usually a mild epidemic of the disease, he says. GARDENING in the SKIES By Frank D. Wiley Plants poisonous to eat include some species of Mushrooms, two of which are fatal. The Destroying Angel or Deathcap, and the Fly-Mushroom. Reports show that many deaths are attributed to these two plants each year by people who think the plants are edible varieties. The Destroying Angel has a white, brownish, greenish or yellowish cap, white gills and a ringed stem rising from a cup at the base. It differs from the common Meadow Mushroom which always has pink or brown gills beneath the cap and stem. The Fly-Mushroom has a brilliant orange or yellow cap, spotted with white warts; white gills and a ringed stem, rising from a swollen base. This variety is often found under native birch trees and in open pine woods where its bright color makes it attractive to children who frequently taste it as a venture. Other plants and shrubs that are poisonous to eat include Bittersweet, berries sometimes fatal, not the false Bittersweet; Boxwood, the whole plant; Castor-bean, fatal; Christmas-rose, parts poisonous, especially the leaves; Deadly Nightshade, berries very poisonous, especially when green; Death-hell, all parts poisonous, roots, fatal; English ivy, berries; False-hellebore, all parts, roots, fatal; Foxglove, digitalis, leaves; Holly, leaves and berries; Jack-in-the-pulpit, root, irritant and astringent; Jimson weed all parts fatal; Lambkill, foliage; Larkspur, delphinium, foliage and root; Lily-of-the-Valley, berries; Lupine seeds; Monkshood, foliage and root; Oleander, foliage; Pokeweed, root; Rhubarb, leaves; Waterhenlock, whole plant, particularly the root.

Dr. McClure announced the epidemic among the soldiers and in a nearby village within three days. Hundreds of people were vaccinated. "It took only 17 cents worth of drugs to 'clear up' each man", says Dr. McClure. "Every period of mobilization in our nation's history has been a time of wide and effective scripture distribution to enlisted soldiers." Dr. Francis Carr Stiller of the American Bible Society. "During the Civil War the Society distributed hundreds of thousands of Bibles and testaments to the armies on both sides of the conflict. Over two million New Testaments were distributed during the first World War. Today the chaplains of the Army, Navy, and Air Forces are sending in their requests and orders so fast that the presses are working overtime and the books are being shipped the day they are bound—the rate of output being nearly 40,000 a week".

BROOKFIELD ORCHARDS HAS BUMPER CROP
 growing trees, and thought at the time to be the largest Mac orchard in New England.

In a venture like this, as in everything else there are things to learn. It was only a few years before it was found that McIntosh alone are self-sterile and need other varieties to cross-pollinate or fertilize the blossoms. Top working many of the young trees into varieties such as Wealthy, Cortland and Delicious was done for the purpose and until this year, loads of apple blossoms have been brought in annually from other orchards to supply this lack of cross-pollination. Talking with Mr. F. L. Hamilton, superintendent, he said that the new varieties now bearing have proven this year that there are about 100 hives of bees placed in the orchards at blossom time, every essential thing in that line is taken care of.

The 20,000 trees grew and expanded to such an extent that thousands of trees have been taken out to give the permanent room to develop under the capable management of Mrs. Lida H. Lincoln, owner, who has made a study of the business now for a score of years, and has the theory and experience of pruning, fertilizing, spraying and dusting so thoroughly worked out, that in driving through the orchard, with almost every tree bending to the ground with fruit, it is almost impossible to find any but perfect apples to-day.

Her careful handling of the crop from year to year has proven its worth in that Brookfield Orchard Apples are in demand every where and recognized throughout the States. One of Mrs. Lincoln's major accomplishments was the completion of a 16,000 bushels cold-storage plant built a few years ago, which enables her to hold the crop in perfect condition by cooling the fruit as fast as it is picked from the trees.
 The courage and determination of the management, to put the orchard back in shape after the hurricane in 1938 has proven its worth today. Of no small mention is the young orchard set in the Spring of 1937. Some twelve hundred trees bearing a second crop in their fifth year.
 Beautiful buildings and grounds with never a thing out of place is a great asset to the property.
 Mrs. Lincoln tells the writer that she is trying a hormone dust this year to be put on after a portion of the apples have been picked for color and size, to induce the remainder of the crop to hang on the trees some ten days longer than they otherwise would. The crop will be picked soon now and no doubt girls will take the place of men to some extent. Dad and mother and the youngsters can turn in and make arrangements to help gather the crop. Boys and girls of school age, in fact any one who wants to work and earn in their full time or spare time can make themselves useful and in a sense be serving our country at the same time.

 Mrs. Lincoln estimates the crop at about 22,000 bushels many of which will no doubt find their way to the Army Camps and Naval Stations where our boys in Service will relish the flavor of our New England apples.

Tank Maintenance

This sequence of photographs shows the operation of an ordnance tank maintenance crew training for their job.

Trapped in a swampy hole this medium tank (at right) awaits a salvage crew. The men are trained under combat conditions.

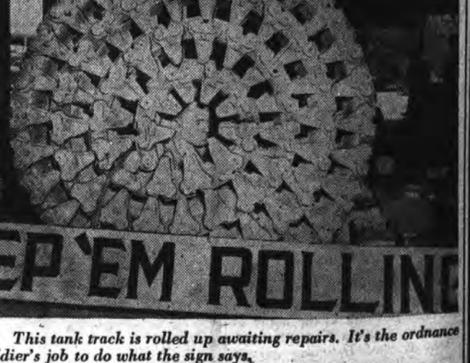

"Here she comes, boys!" A motor truck powers the winch.

An ordnance maintenance officer directs repair of the tank in a camouflaged position in the "combat" zone. The machine shop on wheels carries the tools, machinery and spare parts needed for repair.

Tanks are powered by engines similar to those used in aircraft.

This tank track is rolled up awaiting repairs. It's the ordnance soldier's job to do what the sign says.

CASINO—WARE
Anne Baxter may be little known as yet to the movie public but few newcomers in Hollywood have ever been so sought after for roles. When Monty Wooley made "The Pied Piper," which comes to the Casino Theatre, Ware, Friday and Saturday, he insisted that the studio cast Miss Baxter for the leading feminine part. And Orson Welles chose Anne from a host of well-known stars for a role in his latest picture.

Nunnally Johnson, the producer, would like her for a part in John Steinbeck's "The Moon is Down" and Jean Gabin has asked that Miss Baxter be given a role in his next film, a biography of the French explorer, LaSalle.

Monty Wooley and Roddy McDowall are featured with Miss Baxter in "The Pied Piper."

Bits O' Beauty

There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy the good of his labor. This also, I saw, that it was from the hand of God. Eccl. 2:24

LABOR
Oh that I were a bird, to fly each day
From hedge row to tree top and then away,
O'er green fields and brown fields, up to the sky
Like a lark in the twilight soaring high.

Oh that I were cattle, on sloping hill,
Filling some purpose of Creator's will,
Busy all day doing service of man,
Patiently filling my allotted span.

Oh that I were a bee, to gather sweets,
And busily search in hidden retreats,
For sweet scented nectar in pretty flowers
Mid sun warmed gardens and shady bowers.

Oh that I were a fish, in sparkling brook
Where the waters pass a shady nook,
And the rippling music, unheard by man,
Reveals in all things a Creator's plan.

Oh that I were a cloud, warmed by the sun,
Floating along till my work shall be done,
Wherever the kind winds of wisdom's will,
For the good of man, cause me to distill.

Oh that I were a sheaf of wheat, all brown,
Standing like a gem in love's golden crown,
Each living grain on my frail bending head,
An emblem of love's labor, living bread.

Oh that I were a star, high in the sky,
Shedding forth pure light that will never die,
Giving shepherds and seamen, hope and trust,
In the Maker of all things, who is just.

Oh that I were a man, living each hour
Like all God's handiwork, praising His power,
Made in His image, enabled in heart
By His boundless love of which I am a part.
W. B. T.

Labor Day

Every day is "Labor day" in mother Nature's workshop . . . Everywhere at all hours, someone or something is busy fulfilling its part in the great scheme of things we call life . . . The term, "Labor day," is a misnomer except as it applies to one day in the year in these United States when labor takes a day off to remind us that there is one section of society that really works . . . It is fitting that organized labor does take a day off to count its accomplishments in behalf of the working class . . . The great pity is that more of us are not counted in among the workers . . . What about the millions of farmers who work 14 hours a day, 7 days a week, 52 weeks in the year, with no time off except possibly a half-day off and back in time for the inevitable milking . . . Then again, what about the bankers and industrialists . . . They are just as hard workers as any of the rest of us, not to say anything of editors and publishers, and educators, ministers of the gospel, doctors and lawyers . . . You see the only thing that's wrong about Labor day is that it is not sufficiently all inclusive . . . Why not march some cows along at the head of the parade? . . . They work 16 hours a day to give us milk and dairy products . . . You might even put some pigs on a float and have them in the parade . . . They really work to make bacon and pork, although they would not get far in the line of march if they had to walk . . . Some pens of poultry to do homage to the hens, they scarce miss a day in the year in the manufacture of eggs . . . When viewed in this light, the old-fashioned fair with the big dray horses on parade and the prancers in the horse show, and the cows and the calves and the hens and roosters too, were indeed the very best type of Labor day parade . . . In other words, in Nature, Labor day means all for one and one for all, nobody on the outside and everybody within the cycle of an all wise infinity of knowledge and industry which makes life the type of thing that fills us with adoration if we are doing our bit and understand fully the fellowship of service.

One old lawn mower will help make six 3-inch shells.
One useless old tire will provide six much needed rubber gas masks.
One old shovel will help make four hand grenades.

Scrap iron and steel, for example. Old radiators, lengths of pipe, refrigerators, garbage pails, broken garden tools. . . It may be rusty, old "scrap" to you, but it is actually refined steel, with most impurities removed—and can be quickly melted with new metal in the form of pig iron to produce highest quality steel for our war machines.

South Spencer To Have Red Cross Unit
SPENCER—South Spencer will have a Red Cross unit for the following of surgical dressings, and two meetings each week are planned, according to Mrs. Wanda Spooner, who has been named director. Work meetings will be held at Community Hall. The first afternoon meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 7 o'clock. About 11 will attend the night sessions, and six and maybe more will attend the weekly after-meeting. South Spencer women have been anxious to aid in Red Cross work but conditions of travel made it difficult to attend meetings in the town center, two miles away. Now the use of Community Hall, with a unit of its own has solved the problem.

There will be a scrap metal drive on Saturday, September 19th, from 9:00 A. M. until noon. The Air Raid Wardens, under the direction of Chief Air Raid Warden John W. Beebe, will be at their posts to assist in the drive and the Boy Scouts will also co-operate. F. R. McDonough, Chairman of the Spencer Salvage Committee, is arranging for the distribution of flyers to householders making an appeal to clean out the attics and cellars for scrap metal material in order that the Spencer drive may go over the top.
Mr. McDonough also asks that metal be placed on walks or lawns in front of the houses, where the trucks from the Spencer Highway Department and others can make collections.
Three salvaged tin cans will make a hand grenade to toss at the Japs.

War Bond Drive Has Been Very Successful In Spencer
Spencer's prosperity is well re- flected in the splendid showing of the various industrial concerns in town in the matter of bond pledg- ing.
Speaking of prosperity, our re- porter was thrilled as he approached lower Wire Village and observed the newly-painted, well-kept cot- tages which line the landscape; the main mill in the lower village, thor- oughly renovated and busy as a bee-hive; the newly graded road be- tween upper and lower Wire Vil- lage; and the smoke pouring out of the smoke stacks at the upper vil- lage as one approaches the group of buildings now active in the man- ufacture of high grade building, low carbon fine steel wire. As one approaches this group of buildings, the new office building stands out as a symbol of what can be accom- plished by men with the will to do. Old Glory, floating above the Minuteman flag, caused your reporter to go inside and find out what it all meant. This is what we found, namely—The Spencer Wire Co. was the first concern in Worcester to go over the top in the 10% payroll war savings bond cam- paign. For this reason, the Spen- cer Wire Co. was the first to re- ceive the Minuteman flag which now floats on the property. At the present time, the Spencer Wire Co. are 104% in the payroll 10% plan. This means that contributions are being made above and that required by the plan.
At the present time, there are nearly 150 employees working three shifts, 7 days a week. The Com- pany is manufacturing highest qual- ity, fine wires of both high and low carbon content and is 100% war work. William R. MacDonald is President and Vice-President, and Works Manager, Frank J. Leabey is General Manager, and Fred O'Coin is Plant Superintendent.
After leaving Wire Village, your reporter felt that our readers would like to know that all our other concerns in Spencer were doing their bit in the matter of bond pledg- ing. The Kleven Shoe Co. have already earned their Minuteman flag as over 90% of their employees are on the 10% plan and the first set of bonds has already been delivered to the employees and the second group of bond payments are nearly complet- ed. At the Allen-Squire plant, 94% of the employees are making week- ly payments for the purchase of bonds. At the Town Brook Co., 100% of the employees are making new recruits may make applica- tions for membership. They must be between 18 and 50.

Bits O' Beauty

"Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit." Job 10, 12.

"And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." John 17, 3.

ARTIST AND POET

"I make a line and you make another."
Said a painter of skies to his poet brother:
"The lines which I make, both crooked and straight,
When blended with color my pictures create.

"Now hidden beneath the shade of a cloud,
An onion of death I can defy enshroud:
While in the same picture a sunrise will tell
Of life's joys and birth and mystical spell."

"You make a line and I make another."
Replied the poet to his painter brother:
"And the lines I make, though crooked and straight,
Will travel as far as to heaven's gate."

"The canvas I use is the soul's retreat,
Where the heart and my thought will often meet,
And the lines of my pen which fashion a soul
Eternally build infinity's whole."

Back To School

A nation goes back to school this week. Little tots are led by their mothers to kindergarten for their initiation into the world of organized training. . . . High School scholars find themselves in a new world of specialized studies with a separate teacher for each subject. . . . College and university students enter a world of ever enlarging horizons where science studies atoms and re-creates new universes by the nebular hypothesis. . . . A nation of adults is in a great school of experience during an era of world chaos such as has never existed since the days when Noah built his ark at the command of God. . . . A world of mankind is in the school of adversity because they have "Forsaken God the fountain of living waters (life and wisdom), and have hewed out cisterns, broken cisterns that can hold no water." . . . This great school of adversity has already written on the blackboards of the chancelleries of the world a number of problems that baffle the brain trust of an age that has failed to realize that science without clarity is as eyes without light and that the fear of God is the beginning of wisdom. . . . The problems of the world will only be solved when men and nations seek the answers by means of epiphanies whose fact and the moral law as taught by the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. . . . The fathers and founders of this nation conceived and built its structure on the foundation of principles contained in the Bible, the infallible word of God. . . . Our president has reminded us on many occasions that we shall prosper, "under God." . . . What does he mean by this term "under God"? . . . He means that if we would prosper we must seek God's way and follow it. . . . The present school of adversity in which the world finds itself today will not have been vain, if out of its returning fires the cross of national pride and greed are purged and an international brotherhood of men of goodwill comes forth which will enlighten in the kingdom of God on earth with Jesus Christ as king. . . . If we avoid seeking the king in his heavenly we must see the eye of faith. . . . Poets and artists are those who seek and find eternal verities and express them in their work and life, in this sense we can all be poets and painters if we attend the school of divine instruction contained in the word of God. . . . World prosperity can find its roots in no other source.

Is It Fair?

In theory, the government is now tapping every possible source of tax revenue. In actuality, it is completely overlooking a source which could and should pay the Treasury hundreds of millions of dollars annually. That source is government-owned business enterprises which are now wholly or partly tax free.

The most outstanding example of this inexcusable brand of "tax favoritism" is found in Federal and municipally-owned power and light systems. For many years, it has been argued, with full knowledge, that a profit earning business should be taxed on precisely the same basis as a profit-earning privately-owned business. Today, with the enormous financial demands of war financing, Federal, State, city, county and every individual income, social and business taxes must bear their share of the burden.

The Wall Street Journal recently gave a typical instance of what tax favoritism means in the case of the municipally-owned Seattle Power and Light Company had a 100 per cent increase in net earnings over the same period in 1941. The Seattle plant pays some taxes to the city, but none whatsoever to the Federal government. In those same five months a representative private utility had an increase in net earnings of 20 per cent. But its net earnings declined 35 per cent due to the increase in its taxes. That kind of thing is happening to practically all tax-paying industries, in the manufacturing as well as the service fields.

PHILIP J. PHILBIN
For Congress 3rd District

HE ADVOCATES:
All-out support of Commander-in-Chief for vigorous prosecution of war.
An invincible Army, Navy and Air Force.
Recognition, representation and collective bargaining for Labor, Wage and Hour Laws.
Justice, not charity to the Aged.
Generous treatment of war veterans.
Educational and employment opportunities for youth.

John J. Nolan, 15 Franklin Street, Spencer.

When Congress is seeking ways and means to tax even the gold in the fillings of one's teeth, as it were, it should no longer overlook the earnings of "rich" municipal and Federal socialized business projects such as power plants. Why should their profits be more sacred than the wages and profits of private citizens? These same tax-exempt parasites should begin to pay for the privilege of their existence the same as private business does. The people should demand that Congress plug this loophole.

Farmers Aren't Rich

Those city dwellers who believe that agriculture is prospering tremendously from the war should look a little closer at the facts. In a recent press release, Ernest C. Strobeck, secretary of the Dairyman's League Co-operative Association of New York, said: "Dairy farmers have responded to the government's program of increased production. They have incurred extra expenses and experienced many inconveniences. . . . With farm labor only 57 per cent of normal and with farm wages higher than in any period in history, dairy farmers are now confronted with the prospect of prices being frozen at levels below even the low levels prescribed in the Emergency Price Control Act. Also, they face a constantly shifting price policy under the lease-lend program.

Similar situations are perplexing farmers throughout the country. Increases in farm operating costs have generally offset increases in prices. War, in short, has brought agriculture some of the toughest problems it ever faced.

By Frank D. Wiley
Only a few days ago a handful of grape leaves and clusters were left for inspection. The most destructive of grape diseases namely, Black Rot had spotted both leaves and berries, and had caused a large percentage of the fruit to fall off the stems. This fungus disease winters over in the shriveled up, rotted fruit which follows an infection of this kind, lying idle on the ground ready to put out a crop of spores to infect the new growth in the Spring. By destroying the old fruit that drops off in the Fall it tends to lessen the infection. Four good sprays of Bordeaux mixture will do very well to keep grapes vines healthy; first, when the growth starts in the Spring about one-half inch in length; second, when it reaches eight or ten inches; again ten days later, and fourth, in a couple of weeks after the third spray. To the last two sprays can be added enough arsenate of lead to poison the flea beetle and the roach-beetle, also the berry moth.

Downy mildew on grapes has spread from the United States to the European countries to such an extent that grape culture there has dropped off. The affected leaves turn to a pale green and have yellow spots on the surface with downy white tufts beneath. Later the flowers and fruit blight and rot. Powdery mildew appears later in the season but usually causes no serious damage.

The grape berry moth causes wormy grapes and when at work, weals the fruit together and they fall off the stems when about the size of a pea. The worms are about one-half inch long and are of a greenish color with brown heads.

They pass the winter in the pupa state in grayish silken cocoons, and grayish-purple moths emerge in the Spring.

The grape fly, the rose-chafes, and if the berries are subject to caterpillar are all enemies of the grape and the same spray program used for the Black Rot with arsenate added to the last two sprays will control them and should bring a clean crop if thoroughly done.

PHILBIN Case
I hope you will not think I am speaking in any boastful vein because that I do not intend, but this long-continued, close official and personal association with Senator Walsh has given me, indeed it could not fail to give me, a broad knowledge of the particular problems of our citizens as they bear upon the Federal Government and an intimate familiarity with the administrative set-up and function of our Federal system which has grown so complex in late years through the tremendous development of almost countless new bureaus.

I humbly ask that you honestly appraise my qualifications measured against those of my opponents. If you then decide that I am better qualified by training, experience, and aptitude to receive the Democratic nomination and I am therefore prepared to represent you in the Congress of the United States, I promise that I will discharge that most important Constitutional office with honesty, industry and courage, with a liberal spirit of devotion to the cause of those who will most need the help and assistance of a victorious, reawakened America—the common people of the District.

Let us all work and pray for the speediest possible decisive victory and the speediest possible return of our boys to their homes, their families and their loved ones.

AAF Learns Art of Camouflage

AT FORT BELVOIR, VA., where the engineer board is training officers from all over the country in the gentle art of making things look like what they ain't, much knowledge is crammed into a two-week course.

Three busloads of officers, ranging from second lieutenants to lieutenant colonels under the direction of two first lieutenants, set out each morning to a special sector three miles from the post. In a field of about five acres are Curtiss P-40 pursuits staked down amid a group of pines. No airplane, one concludes, could land in such rough terrain. However, these planes are carefully constructed dummies, made of plywood.

These "mock-ups" serve to misdirect the enemy while the real planes, hidden a short distance away, are camouflaged and safe.

One of the lieutenants says: "Captain Blank will take ten men with strong shoulders, pick a likely spot and get going. You'll find ample supplies over there—tools, brushhooks, pickaxes. Pull your plane to your spot, find drapes, and try to conceal it."

Officers, lieutenants and lieutenant colonels alike grab the 300-pound dummy plane and carefully haul it to the appointed spot. Chips fly, stumps are razed and the ground smoothed out. In no time at all the space is cleared. The plane is pulled into position, and the officers swarm over the ship like the Lilliputians over Gulliver.

When the job is done the students return to their instructor to report. He criticizes the job from every angle. They do the job over and over again until it is done right.

The following series of pictures show you the camoufleurs at work.

Student officers from all parts of the country plot positions for camouflage and emergency fields on a relief map.

Studying turtles, one of nature's best examples of camouflage.

Officers cover the plane with trees after hauling it to a wooded area.

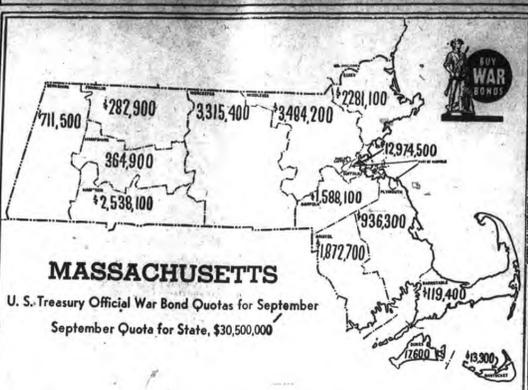

A green netting is placed over the plane.

The following letter was received at the "Leader" office this week from Private Charles E. Groat, U. S. Army, Embury-Riddle School of Aviation, 3-43D Miami, Florida. August 30, 1942

The Spencer Leader: My sincerest thanks for the receipt of the Leader can hardly be expressed in these few words to follow. I am extremely grateful for the numerous kindnesses and many considerations shown by the grand people of Spencer. Being so far from home such an array of true Americans and sincere friends makes one overjoyed at their ever-increasing interest. The Army can't fall with such splendid support as is shown by the people left behind. Until this conflict is over and completely settled, the boys will practically exist on that ever-welcome interest shown by those at home. The Leader certainly will keep the fellows well informed as to doings of townpeople and rest assured each and everyone of us enjoy receiving it.

This school of technical education as to Aeronautics is one of the largest in the country and is going through the continual support of people buying bonds etc. At the rate the fellows are graduating to take their part in this conflict, this war will end sooner than most expect. Schooling is eight hours daily and is followed by about two hours homestay daily. Each hour produces more interesting and applicable bits of knowledge. The course is complicated but as our goal is to place these "democracy" hatters where they belong, we study with the utmost of sincerity and get the very most possible out of it. All is perfect here and am looking forward to a brighter future as a member of the technical forces which will bring peace and happiness and good fortune in the hearts of each and every true American.

In closing, please permit me to say I'll never be able to thank you for your efforts properly. Rest assured I appreciate each and every bit of the interest shown. Sincerely yours, CHARLES E. GROAT.

Over the Garden Wall

Thanks to the good old institution of school children selling seeds in the Springtime, I planted several packages of Balsam seeds in my vegetable rows this spring. Although far too thickly planted, they have thrived with no care but weeding and an occasional scrap of the hoe as I went by. Now they are gorgeous, single and double like Camellias, glistening in the sun with the cell-structure of the frills, all colors and with much the effect of Gladoli without half the work and expense. Check one success for this garden season.

Some seeds of Primula Missouriana which is a biennial and which I hadn't expected to see blooming until next season, have many big pale yellow blossoms already and make something worth while getting out of bed every morning. They bloom in the evening and close up about at noon the following day. One group are very near some purple fall asters and make a fine color combination, about the effect of a goldfinch sitting on a purple thistle bloom, if your imagination is good and acute.

We are told to cut off Phlox blossoms as soon as the petals fall, for the seeds never make plants that are tender to the parent. These plants may be divided any time after blooming or early in the spring. It's time to set out peonies now too, with crowns two inches below the ground, but don't move any that seem to be "happy" unless you need to for some desired effect.

Big Navy Demonstration In Worcester Tonight

WORCESTER—(Special) The Worcester Navy Recruiting Station will present the largest Navy Program here on September 18, at Municipal auditorium on "Hurry Day" that has ever been staged locally.

More than 200 men from Worcester, Athol, Fitchburg, Southbridge, Gardner, Milford, Webster, Uxbridge, Spencer, Barre, Cleghorn, Westboro, Leominster and Clinton will take the oath of allegiance and become sailors at this gala event. Lt. Nathan Lane, assistant officer in charge of the Springfield Naval Recruiting District, urges everyone to attend the affair. Special letters have been sent to all parents of young men in this section, but a standing invitation is open to all to attend.

Prior to the presentation of the Navy program and the swearing in of the naval recruits a parade will be staged from the corner of Chandler and Murray avenue down to Main, through the city to Lincoln Square, and then to the auditorium. Included in the parade will be marching units from the local Navy recruiting station, the recruits, and a band from Holy Cross and other organizations of the city. It will be one of Worcester's outstanding parades. The parade is to begin at 7 p. m. with the activity at the auditorium getting underway promptly at 8 p. m.

Speakers on the Navy's "Hurry Day" will be Rear Admiral Walter Tyler Cluverius, USN (Ret.), president of Worcester Institute of Technology, Lt. Jesse M. LaFollette, officer in charge of the Springfield Naval Recruiting District and Mayor William A. Bennett of Worcester.

Spencer Hill Drainage Improvements Under Way

SPENCER—Under the direction of Armand Jalbert, superintendent of streets, work started on a new drain pipe line to extend from Mechanic street east on Main street to Grove street. A 21 inch pipe will be used at the lower end of the line near Mechanic street and it will taper off into 18, 15 and finally a 12 inch pipe near Grove street. Several catch basins will be installed on the route of about 300 yards. The work started last year and it is believed the new pipe line will care for all the surface water which in times past has flowed down the Town Hall hill.

Some of the Pleasantries must go FOR THE DURATION

"SHE never should have opened that hand with a heart lead" — "Wasn't yesterday a terrible day?" — "Looks like a real offensive in the Pacific" — "I'll let June go to the Saturday night dance if your Carol can go with her" — "Did you get enough sugar for canning?"

These and a thousand other pleasantries make up the friendly pattern of American life. They are the subjects of many of the one hundred million telephone calls made every day. In normal times they are the life-blood of the telephone industry which employs 400,000 people.

In war time they hamper production and jeopardize security. For the switchboards over which these pleasantries pass are the ones over which go the orders and instructions for the building of ships, the transporting of troops, the dispatch of aircraft, the supplying of munitions of war, the functioning of civil and military authority.

Certainly, the interchange of friendly conversation helps morale, and there's room for a little of it on telephone lines and switchboards. But "little" is the word. If your own family exceeds that "little," you have an opportunity to speed war communications by cutting down on non-essential calling. Will you help?

AGRICULTURE'S INTEREST IN POST-WAR PLAN

Agriculture has a definite interest in the recovery-bond plan now proposed for the benefit of American industry after the war.

The special committee of the Baruch committee and industry are inseparable units in our national economy. One cannot prosper unless the other prospers. In every way, each is dependent upon the other.

The products of the soil are available for processing into foods, textiles, leather, plastics and other commodities. Factories cannot operate unless their raw materials are available to keep their gates open and their machines running.

So it is plain that agriculture does have a stake in the industrial program, and the plan which seeks to make it possible for the farmer to keep running after the need for war materials comes to an end.

The recovery-bond plan has already been announced by the War Relocation Authority. It is a measure designed to place in the hands of manufacturers of all kinds, large and small, the cash that will be needed to change factories over from wartime to peacetime production.

This world war has already made one change-over necessary. Thousands of acres of land have been taken up by the government for the production of war materials.

Financing this second process of re-tooling will be much more difficult than the first. It will require the help of the government.

When a tire treads on your foot when you are going your 40 miles an hour, and when he makes jacking and jacking bronco jumps or squeals his tire, you give him the new "V" for victory.

Bits O' Beauty

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6

THE BOY SCOUT AND THE URCHIN

In every country town I know,
And every city too,
There are mischievous, thieving boys
And boys both good and true.

Now in the town of Industry,
Down by the old town mill
An urchin met a boy scout who Was resolute of will.

The urchin told the boy scout there
That if he came with him,
He'd show him some mischievous fun
That was not really sin.

Now when the old mill heard that boy,
Its old time water wheel,
In splashing tones, this story told
About the commonweal.

"You see," the old wheel thus began,
"The mill and I down here
For fifty years or even more
Have worked with right good cheer.

"While over there a fresher gay
Just once or twice a year,
When full of mischief and the like,
Desires to get its cheer;

"The fun the mill and I enjoy
Is making others glad,
While mischief-maker's chief delight
Is making others sad."

And so the boys who listened there
Shook hands as urchin said,
"Like you I'll do a Scout's good deed
Each day until I'm dead."

Father Flanagan Says:

The following article, taken from Boys Town Times, was sent to us by Mr. Fred Kingsbury, who felt it was of such merit that it deserved greater publicity.

"Often I receive letters from parents asking for advice in regard to helping their solve behavior problems of their children that confront them. My advice to parents who request such information is to simply develop an interest for their children.

Developing an interest for children sometimes is not as easy as it may sound. It will require patience and much thought—often times you will attempt to interest your children in a certain hobby or sport only to meet with discouragement, as the youngster will find himself unable to find an interest in the activity which you have selected, but if parents will be patient and try again and again—eventually they will find the right activity which will hold their children and their problems will be greatly lessened, if not solved entirely.

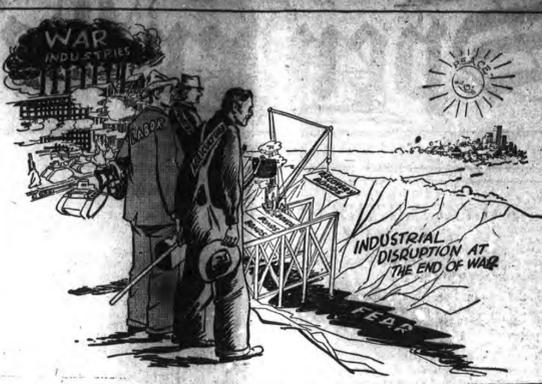

We are sometimes confronted with such problems of this kind here—whenever such a situation comes up we always interview the youngster in question and attempt to find out for ourselves the special interest that the boy in question may have. Often we find that he has no interest—usually this is the case. It is then our task to determine, or attempt to find something for this young man to do in his leisure time, his idle time, which will be interesting to him as well as beneficial.

I dare say I have never heard of a boy or girl who had an interest in say—scouting, crafts, music or any other activity who has ever gotten into mischief while following his or her chief interest.

At Boys Town we have a number of hobby clubs which fill the gap in our boys' days—that is to say, these hobby clubs serve to hold the boy's interest by getting him into an activity where he can create, and where he can keep himself busy during his leisure time. Stamp collecting, airplane building and photography are a few of the hobby clubs which we find most practical for our boys. But hobby clubs alone will not solve this problem—there must be other outlets.

For this reason we offer a number of trades as manual training, mechanical arts, printing and pottery to name a few, which have a tendency to interest certain boys and to take care of them during their outside school day. There are other boys who may not be interested in stamp collecting or a trade, but will find an outlet in athletics—and for this reason—we have a comprehensive athletic program for this group of boys. Still another activity for boys and a splendid one, indeed, is music, and in our music department we have facilities to teach these boys voice as well as instrumentation. I can truthfully say that our music department, as well as athletics, does much to hold a boy's attention and to keep him out of mischief.

BUILD THIS BRIDGE TO PEACE AND RECOVERY

For twenty-five years I have been studying boys, and after all these years I am still firm in my statement, which I made years ago—"There is no such thing as a bad boy." Boys may be mischievous but if they are given an opportunity of developing an interest in music, athletics, trades or hobbies you will find that their problem of behavior will be solved. I have found it so at Boys Town over a period of twenty-five years.

My advice to parents is to help their children properly use their leisure time. And to the boys and girls of America I say—take advantage of your opportunities—don't waste and idle away your leisure time.

Best Defense Against Incendiarities

Water is recommended as the primary agent for controlling fires that might result from possible incendiary bomb attacks on American cities, according to a special bulletin distributed by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which quotes a statement authorized for reproduction by Director James M. Landis, of the Office of Civilian Defense.

The statement says: "In recent months a great variety of 'bomb extinguisher' powders have been offered for sale to the public. Based on wide experience abroad and tests conducted in this country, commercial powders, sand, talc, and similar agents are at best considered as limited to use in places where there is little danger of fires of serious nature. Many commercial powders have been tested but none has been found to be materially better than sand, dry dirt or ashes. Therefore, unless cost is negligible, they are not to be recommended. Furthermore, they engender a false sense of security in the minds of civilians, thus endangering lives in the event of an incendiary bomb attack.

"The enemy may use any one of a number of types of bombs, all designed to start fires. For this reason, fire equipment for civilians must be of the type to fight fire itself and not merely to deal with a particular bomb. The use of water with a suitable device such as a pump tank, stirrup pump, or other water types of extinguishers is the most effective method for dealing with fire caused by bomb as well as the bomb itself.

"Devices such as scoops, grabs, and snuffers have also been widely advertised. These have been found to be of no practical value for civilian use, and in most cases equipment improvised in the home is adequate. Such devices are actually made of metals, for which there is a greater need elsewhere in the war program."

Every home-owner should read and remember this authoritative advice. And every home-owner should immediately take the simple and inexpensive steps that are necessary to home fire protection.

A Recruit's Trip From Home To California

By Paul J. Douley

From Camp Devens to Framingham, to Greenfield, Pittsfield through the Hoosac tunnel to No. Adams, from then on we were in bed, but we stopped at Troy, New York, Albany, then stopped over at Buffalo for three hours. The next stop was in Erie, Penn., then Cleveland, Ohio, then Fort Wayne, Ind., Hammond, Ill., Chicago, Ill., where we were stopped four hours at the stock yards. Merton, Kirk-bluffs, Iowa, to Omaha, Nebraska, then to Rock Island where the large arsenal is located. We then crossed the North Platte River where a large U. S. O. is located at Kimball, Nebraska. Then to Cheyenne, Wyoming, then 4 miles further to Fort Francis E. Warren.

We left the barracks at 5.30 p. m. Monday night, March 16, then went to Cheyenne, then to Greeley, then to Denver, Colorado, then to Greenville and Trinidad, to Pueblo, Colorado. At 8.30 a. m. Tuesday, we hit Polson, New Mexico, at 9.45 Clayton, New Mexico, at 10.00 a. m. Texline, Texas. We stopped at Dalhart, Texas at 11.00. At 11.35 we hit Narvissa, where a nazi swastika was flying from a club house. We then hit Tucumcari, New Mexico, then at 9.00 we hit Carrizozo, New Mexico and at 10 Three Rivers, New Mexico. At 10.30 we hit Tulsa, Arizona which

We crossed the Colorado river at 19.00 a. m., then crossed into California and struck Amos at 10.00, Nyland at 10.20, Wister at 10.40. We then hit Salton Lake at 11.00 m., which is below the sea level and a salt water lake at the foot of some mountain ranges. We hit Mecca at 11.20, Coachella at 11.40, Indio, at 11.40. We hit Garnet at 12.45, Bonning at 1.00, Beaumont at 2.00, Ordway at 2.10. Lots of orange and lemon trees here, we went by Bryn Mawr College at 2.20, Lonna Linda at 2.25, Colton at 2.35, Ontario City at 3.00, Pomona at 3.20, Alhambra at 3.30. We got into Los Angeles, which is a real nice clean city built mostly on a hill. We leave there at 5.30, then pass the San Anita race track, then Glendale at 5.40, Burbank at 5.45 where we saw the Lockheed Plane Plant with a full yard of bombers, pursuit planes and the employees cars parked there could not be estimated. What a place, as it covers about 7 square miles, almost as big as our camp here which covers 8 square miles. We also saw the Vega Plane Co. where a $10,000,000 addition is being built and there was also a large number of planes there ready to be used. We then pass through a five mile tunnel built through a mountain and hit Santa Susanna at 6.20, Oxnard at 7.00 p. m., Ventura at 7.20 where we saw the Pacific for the first time. The tide is coming in and it is pretty. It looks a lot like Narragansett and Provincetown. We pass San Cliff at 7.40, Santa Barbara at 8.05, Santa Maria at 9.30 and then arrive at camp at 10.45 which means it is 12.00 p. m. before we get our bags and are checked with the shipping order. Then draw sheets, make our beds and get up for reveille at 6.00 a. m. the next morning. WHAT A TRIP! An army trip to be remembered which brought me 3000 miles from home. Came home for the first time in nine months August 30, 1942.

is surrounded by mountains. At 11.05 we hit Alamogordo, New Mexico where we saw a lot of cactus bushes. At 12.10 we struck Orogrande, New Mexico, then we go back into Texas and hit Plainport and Fort Bliss at 12.10. We then went to and stopped at El Paso, Texas from 1.30 until 4.00 p. m. where the U. S. O. passed coffee and doughnuts, cards and paper. We then left for Hachita, New Mexico, arriving there at 5.45. We passed into Arizona again at 6.50 p. m. We hit Apache at 7.05 p. m. and saw a coyote from the train, then arrived at Douglas at 8.00 p. m., saw Bisbee at ten from our berth, then at 12.20 we hit Tucson and then Ray and I slept until 7.30. We hit Wellton at 7.35, then Yuma at 8.30, and as it is mostly desert around here, we had to keep our windows closed due to the dust.

GARDENING in the SKIES

"The trees in apple orchards. With fruit are bending down." The picking and handling of New England's apple crop today is coming to be one of the most essential problems of the grower.

Back in the beginning of the 20th century the apple industry here was, more or less, a side line in agriculture. The production of milk in the hill towns, and the raising of onions and tobacco in the River Valley were two important lines of diversified farming. Almost every dairy farmer had enough fruit trees set around the edges of the meadows, scattered around the pastures, or in some rough, stony corner to supply the household, and give him revenue to pay the taxes, interest, and perhaps reduce the mortgage if necessary. The same was true to a certain extent in the Valley. This income was "gravy" in those days, with little competition, practically no spraying and the old reliable Baldwin occupying first place on the fruit stand and in the market.

We cannot conceive to-day of one man picking 100 barrels of apples from the trees in one day; of course not, in the manner we must handle them now. It was Willis B. Wells, of Buckland, Mass., who first attained the mark of 64, and his brother, Walter A. Wells, who reached the goal of 100 barrels, which as far as we know is the unbroken record. There are growers in Apple Valley, Ashfield, who no doubt can recall the incident.

With the vast increase of the apple industry in New England in the past twenty or twenty-five years, the Melanah apple predominates and must be intelligently handled. It takes expertise to know when the fruit is "firm ripe" and ready to pick. The grower must be able to tell by feeling the skin, and by the texture and sweetness of the pulp, when harvesting will start, when color comes into the picture also, and whether the fruit is going onto the market at once or into cold storage.

Proper handling of the ladder, padded receptacles, picking, by turning the fruit from the twig rather than by pulling it off; placing it into the basket instead of dropping it; rolling the apples into the crates; care in handling and hauling from the orchards to the packing house, and so on down, little items make the difference between Fancy and ordinary grades when placed in front of the customer.

Fruit picked too early shows defects in handling far more than fruit picked too ripe on account of the sugar content. Color is sometimes good before the flavor is there and on the other hand an apple with little or no color may furnish both flavor and texture. The grower must decide for himself what fruit must remain on the trees for a longer period, to give him time for harvesting. Apples growing in dense foliage, or in the center of the trees, still green in color or when the crop is picked, usually take on plenty of color if left to "full ripen" on the trees, although such fruit should be placed on the market for immediate consumption.

West Brookfield

Last Sunday, the Fire Department put on their annual clam bake at the summer cottage of Fire Chief Ralph O. Allen, on Lake Wickabog. The committee was Eginer Hudson M. Bennett and Omer C. White, North Brookfield, for the house, and the Rev. Mr. Stone, West Brookfield, for the Post Office to register between now and October 15.

The local director of the Worcester County Extension Service, Miss Jessie L. Gilbert, West Main street, came as last year.

The Congregational Church Guild is serving a public supper in the Parish house of the church to-night, Friday at 6:30 o'clock. There was a good attendance at the Parish Auxiliary birthday party held Tuesday night.

The committee for the parish supper consists of Mrs. Emily Burdett, North street, chairman; Mrs. Helen D. Burdett, Mrs. Shirley Carrol, Mrs. Marjorie Sampson, Mrs. Anna Buxton and Mrs. Helen Clark, will assist. The entertainment will be in charge of Mrs. Irma Adams, Mrs. Nancy Allen and Mrs. Anna Buxton.

Anniversary
FIVE YEARS AGO
Governor and Mrs. Lewis H. Barrows of Augusta, Maine, were dinner guests at Brookfield Inn.

Co-captain, Wendell Wilson of Spencer track team did outstanding work by "copping" three events in the Massachusetts States' 7th annual Fall track and field meet. He took the low hurdles, the pole vault and discus throw.

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown toured for ten days in Nova Scotia. Mrs. Russell Powers of North Brookfield, vacationed for two months in New Brunswick.

The highway, which is the New Braintree-West Brookfield mail route, was completely resurfaced and tarred.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
The Fidelity's Muster was held in Spencer with visitors from far and wide.

Three trucks were involved in a collision on the East Brookfield road in Brookfield. One was mired, and tipped over on the third drive off and left the others to their fate.

Rochdale had abad electrical storm. Cars were struck and many buildings burned.

Rochdale also had a bad train wreck when a locomotive crashed into the rear coach of a train stopped at the station.

Bill Carroll's Is Hunter's Rendezvous

These early frosty mornings when the leaves begin to turn, hunters and woodsmen begin to take counterstock and check up on what they are going to need for this season's hunting.

Many of them will just naturally gravitate to Bill Carroll's Sporting Goods Emporium in Ware and at any time of the day and night now you will be apt to find a group of hunters discussing the best places for rabbit, coon, foxes and deer.

Bill says that the wise ones are coming in early to get their hunting equipment and ammunition and as Bill Carroll's store is open evenings you can be accommodated after work if you so desire.

George Rogers Reports Much Activity At The Crossroads

The last time we talked to George Rogers over at the Crossroads in Brookfield, he was in fine fettle and was looking forward to an especially active fall business at this well-known, pleasure spot. George has been taking special pride in his fine cooked foods and the quality of entertainment provided on Saturday evenings and expects that with the arrival of cooler weather, there will be large gatherings of dancers at the Crossroads.

Tip Melanson Anticipates Early Xmas Trade

When your reporter called over at Tip Melanson's in Ware the other day, he found Tip was anticipating an early Xmas shopping season due to several causes. First, many of the folks with boys in the service want to be sure and get just the kind of gift they want before stocks are depleted and secondly, they want to follow Uncle Sam's suggestion that gifts be mailed early in order for them to get to the boys in time for Xmas. This is essential because the boys are being moved from point to point and time must be allowed for the gifts to travel to the farthest possible point they may be at Xmas time.

Elmer Sylvia Enlists In Navy

Elmer Sylvia, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Sylvia, corner of Main and Grove streets, Spencer, who for several years has been associated with his father in the Western Auto Store, has recently enlisted in the Navy. Prior to his enlistment, his father had released him from his duties in the store as he felt that his efforts in defense work were more important. Elmer accordingly took employment at the Reed and Prince Mfg. Co. on 100 per cent defense work where he had been employed until his recent enlistment. For some years, Elmer attended Worcester's Trade School and he anticipates that his training in mechanics may stand him in good stead in the Navy.

With a rapid increase of war production, this firm whose reputation for fair dealing with their employees is so well known, can now place quite a number of women on defense work which is suitable for women operators and under pleasant conditions. For many years, Gavitt Mfg. Company has made steady progress and has been a real boon to the Brookfields and being centrally located, with convenient service via the Shortline, many women of the tri-town area will no doubt wish to qualify for one of the positions open.

National Newspaper Week

By MAX R. GROSSMAN

(Professor and Head of Dept. of Journalism at Boston University)
BOSTON—This is National Newspaper Week, one of the most significant celebrations of the year and a period which has been set aside to call to the attention of all Americans the importance of our press.

Between October 1 and 8, educators, economists, political leaders, business men and others will stress the vitality of our free press and will summarize the great contribution to American democracy which have been made by newspapers and newspaper men.

There may be a few Americans who still have to be told of the virtues of a free press. The likelihood is, however, that nearly everyone is aware of the fact that the press in Nazi and Fascist dominated countries is blighted. Nearly everyone knows that it is a capital crime for residents of occupied countries and of Germany to tune in on foreign radio stations.

The importance of a free press is shown most clearly in the fact that hundreds of thousands of Europeans do listen to foreign radio stations and also help to edit and circulate "underground newspapers." Which is to say that men will risk their lives to learn the truth. Which shows also the extreme to which men of courage will go to learn what's going on in the world.

It is not necessary, however, for Americans to look upon the European scene to understand how important free and independent newspapers are. The scores of young men in the armed services who receive the Tri-town Weeklies know that this newspaper gives them the closest possible tie with the folks back home.

Surveys show that our fighting men prefer, most of all, (after arms and food) letters from home. It is difficult to write a lively or an all-inclusive letter. There is, for one thing, the constant problem of trying to make up your mind what to write. And that is followed by the hard, physical (and mental) work of setting your thoughts down on paper.

Scores of residents of the Tri-towns find that by sending chatty little notes of the family proper and by supplementing these comments with clippings from the Tri-town Weeklies or with a subscription to the publication the boys away from home feel that they are being remembered.

How eagerly they consume the newspapers from home! How delighted they are to keep posted on developments in surroundings to which they long to return. How important then does the home town paper seem to them.

In many respects the home town newspaper is much more important than the metropolitan daily. It is for one thing, much more intimate. It can take time to give attention to items which the big newspapers ignore. It can—and must—be neighborly.

Cumulatively, the weekly newspapers of the nation are much more important and influential than the big dailies. This is brought about by the fact that readers and editors know each other well. In many a community, the editor is the most influential person in town. And many a person knows that the editor is always fighting to better the community—in every possible way.

When a big city editor speaks (on the editorial page), readers ignore him. A Gallup survey showed that only 12 per cent of the readers of one of the most important daily newspapers in the country read the editorial page of that paper.

Buy Bulk This Year

This year, more than ever, wise buyers are laying in their stocks of fruits and vegetables early. For the next 30 days there will be buying opportunities in all sorts of fruits and vegetables that can be kept in the cellar until next Spring. It is true that some items may not last until after Christmas, but wise buyers will select their purchases in a way to effect the greatest savings with the least handling and expense of marketing time.

Macintosh apples are now at their best and can be bought at lowest prices. These will keep until Christmas if they are hand picked. Potatoes are now at as low or lower in price than they will be this fall. Those purchased now will keep all winter.

Squash is beginning to come into the market and this is the time to buy it. Prices are a little higher than last year but we have got to expect higher prices but they are nowhere near what they will be later in the winter. 50 or 100 pounds of good squash in the cellar is a good investment. Baldwin apples will be in their prime in two or three weeks. This is also true of Delicious apples. If you are going to pickle do it now. Tomatoes and cucumbers, green or ripe, will not be any lower than they are just now. Parsnips are better left in the ground as long as possible. Onions will probably be expensive this year. Don't wait for too big a bargain.

Yankee Swap Night at Women's Club

SPENCER—The Spencer Women's Club will hold its first meeting of the season, Wednesday evening, October 7th in Social Hall at 8:00 o'clock. The program will feature a Yankee Swap Night. Each member is to bring one or more articles they do not want to exchange gratis for some desirable thing some other member may have brought. There will be singing of yankee songs and a general get together.

Has Six Boys In Service

SPENCER—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Gadbois of South Spencer now have six sons in the United States Army. Rene, 19, made the sixth when he signed up Thursday. Ernest and Arthur Gadbois Jr., are now overseas. George is in the Infantry and training at Westley, R. I., while Ray is also in the Infantry and training at Framingham. Edward Gerald Gadbois, who enlisted about two months ago, is at Camp Croft, S. C. Frederick B. Traill, chairman of the selectmen, recently presented Mrs. Gadbois a five star emblem. The father of the six boys is a defense worker in Worcester.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our sincere appreciation to our relations and friends for their kindness and sympathy during our recent bereavement, the loss of our beloved mother. For the many spiritual and floral bouquets offered, our heartfelt thanks are given.

The Family of the late
Mrs. Leonie R. Berthiaume

Leicester Scenery

Dear Editor:

Fame, I see by the dictionary, is the widely disseminated report of character, deeds or personality. Now lets take Myrtle the turtle. I told you once before about Myrtle and how Al down to the store shot flies for her to eat. Now I find that Myrtle is becoming famous. My little grand-daughter who is six and in the second grade of school down to Revere, told the class all about Myrtle the turtle. Her mother reports that the class and teacher could not stop laughing while she told about her grandpa and Myrtle. It happened this way. The family went away for a vacation and allowed me to follow them for a couple of days. That meant I had to leave Myrtle the turtle home all alone. My wife was quite reluctant to have me do this, but after she gave me exact and exhaustive instructions about how I should leave Myrtle, she thought that it might be safe. I put Myrtle in a large pan of water, with sand in the bottom and rocks for her to climb upon. I carefully warmed the water so that there might be no shock to her and sprinkled in it a generous serving of dried flies that is turtle food. My wife eagerly asked for Myrtle on my arrival, and her last goodbye when I left, was instructions as to Myrtle's comfort and welfare when I arrived home. I went directly to work and it was not until midnight that I got back home. The first thing I did was to go look at the turtle. But, Myrtle wasn't there. The pan was empty. I looked to the windows and doors to see if anyone could have come in and kidnapped Myrtle, but all was secure. I looked in all the corners. I looked under the couch, I looked under the buffet, I nearly stood on my head to peek under the radiator, I inspected the kitchen, I went out in the back hall and looked under the ice box, I spent a good half hour on my knees looking under everything there was to look under, and I wasn't praying either. Finally I gave it up and in my mind I was making up an explanation to give to my wife. Have you ever tried to explain how you came to lose a pet turtle? I am telling you that is something that takes explaining. I sat down and removed my shoes and when I put my slippers on, there was Myrtle in one of the slippers. My family laughed at me, but I don't see anything funny in nearly losing my wife's pet turtle. My wife was fearful that Myrtle was lonesome so another turtle was purchased as a companion for Myrtle. His name is Butch. There is only one trouble, we don't really know whether Myrtle is a she-turtle or a he-turtle nor whether Butch is a he-turtle or a she-turtle, neither do we know whether they are both he-turtles or both she-turtles. Whatever they are they are very friendly.

LIGHT AND BRAKE TEST TIME IS HERE AGAIN

Once again October has arrived and the very wise state regulation which calls for periodic inspection of lights, brakes, windshield wipers, tires, etc., will be enforced during the month of October. While some of the garages are extremely busy with regular work, most of them have made special arrangements to take care of your inspection on short notice. However, they all agree that wise motorists will get their sticker on the windshield at the earliest possible moment. It is well to remember that any standard garage man can prepare your car for inspection and check your brakes and other details for you before you go to the regular testing station. However, your car must be passed by a state inspection station and you must pay 50c for your inspection, and if there is other work you must be prepared to pay for it if it is necessary before your car can be passed. In other words, motorists may as usual have their regular service stations do the preliminary work if they so desire.

SPENCER KEY DRIVE STARTS ON SATURDAY

Hotel Proprietor Leaves for Service

SPENCER—Philip A. Quinn, proprietor of the Massasoit Hotel, Spencer, leaves Monday for Uncle Sam's Service when he will report for duty at Fort Devens.

Mr. Quinn has arranged to have his brother, John, and his sister, Dorothy, carry on for the duration. The Massasoit Hotel is an important link in Spencer's Social and Commercial life and was for years one of the finest Hosteltories between Springfield and Boston.

Phil will be missed in many of the town's activities. Especially will this be true in relation to amateur sports. He has been a member of the board of governors and track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of U. S. A. and his friends hope that Uncle Sam will avail himself of Phil's special talent in this line.

Phil's brother, Nate, is a Captain in the 3rd Armoured Division.

SPENCER—A house to house canvass, to salvage old keys of all sorts will be conducted on Saturday, October 3rd, when nearly 100 Boy Scouts in the three Spencer troops, under the direction of Walter Bonifard, will undertake this important work. The Chairman of the Committee, who have arranged and will conduct a comprehensive program throughout the tri-town area, is Richard Rowlett of McLaurin-Jones Company, Brookfield.

This key drive is being sponsored by the Paper Making Industry of the United States and as McLaurin-Jones are the leading paper manufacturers in this section, they have undertaken the responsibility of the general supervision of the work in the area which includes the tri-town area.

Following the door to door canvass next Saturday, boxes will be placed in all the stores in town where any keys that have been located following the door to door canvass may be deposited until October 17th when the drive will close.

You are requested by the committee to look up your keys today and have them all ready to hand to the Boy Scouts when they knock on your door tomorrow. The Scouts are doing a big job and the least we can do is cooperate with them.

The Boy Scouts have already done a marvelous job in the Scrap Metal Drive. On Saturday, September 19th, they were out in full force helping householders to get their scrap metal out onto the sidewalks. Again on the 26th, they repeated their good work and much of the success of the scrap metal drive can be credited to the Boy Scouts activity. So let's help them put it over on the key drive.

THE RIVER AND THE LIGHT

(A fable)
Upon the bridge at Lewiston
Where Adroscoegin flows,
I stood in awe at what I saw
As nature wrote its prose.

Methought I heard a street lamp say,
"Oh, flowing river there,
You have no light, you're dark as night,
Just see my brilliant glare."

For sure enough 'twas Christmas time
And gaily colored light
On tree and strand made fairy land
Of winter's tintled night.

Now while I stood the river said,
"Dear lamp you do me wrong,
'Tis my good turn which lets you burn
To cheer this happy throng."

Next day I stood in that same place
And heard the sun at noon,
Say, "I am loath to tell you both
You praise yourselves too soon."

For if I did not lift the mist
Which make the river flow
No turbid power could pour on hour
Cause incandescent glow."

Moral: Our Blessings come from unexpected places.
W. B. T.

Appreciate - Conserve - Co-operate

Once more we come back to the same old starting place, namely: "The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom." . . . The aged prophet, Jeremiah, who wrote the lines at the head of this column, lived in a time very much like our own . . . Greed, avarice and violence were everywhere rampant in the earth . . . Even the church of God had forgotten its heritage of faith, hope and love, and while the altars of Godly devotion were neglected, the high places of riotous pleasure were crowded with the worshippers of Baal . . . The insidious work of infidelity had so leavened the moral standards of the time that men who had learned the primary lessons of faith in God and the resultant mutual trusts of one another became untrustworthy themselves and distrustful of others . . . This distrust found its roots in lack of appreciation . . . When a man realizes and appreciates what his neighbor is doing for him, he loves and trusts his neighbor, and peace and prosperity is the logical resultant . . . When individuals in large numbers fail in this matter of mutual appreciation the nation as a whole resolves itself into "pressure groups" and political profiteering which saps the vital force of patriotism and fills men's hearts with fear and depression such as we experienced for a decade before the outbreak of this war . . . In like manner this war is but the outward manifestation of international rivalries and distrusts which come from a lack of appreciation of what other nations have done and are doing for us and we for them . . . Had the German people appreciated what our former President Hoover and the American people were trying to do for them in the moratorium they might never have given their power and liberty to the Nazi and his bloodthirsty Hitler . . . Many, today feel that had we as a people backed the late President Wilson in his original League of Nations program we might have avoided the present crisis in which we now find ourselves.

What has all this to do with our Bits-O-Beauty? . . . Much every way . . . When we appreciate we conserve for others and co-operate with them too . . . We do not spend all our substance on self indulgence . . . We conserve a portion of our wealth and by pooling our resources build great public utilities with our investments which we trust in the hands of others . . . The modern history of this nation reveals the tremendous power for good which mutual trust between free men can accomplish . . . Mutual trust built our railroads . . . Mutual trust built our great power and light utilities . . . Mutual trust built the white steeples of our churches . . . Mutual trust beautified our towns and cities . . . Mutual trust is the backbone of Democracy . . . Mutual trust finds its roots in the fear of God, which is the beginning of wisdom . . . As we lose our individual freedoms and find ourselves regimented by laws, regulations, rationings and such like, let us remember that we lost our birthright when we failed to Appreciate, Conserve and Co-operate . . . We shall not have that birthright restored to us until, and at such time as we get back to the simple rules of morality which once served to make this nation great . . . The editorial which follows illustrates in a measure one phase of this retrogression through which we are passing . . . When you read it remember that State

Socialism is soulless . . . They call it National Socialism in Germany . . . Its children are the Nazi and its God Hitler.

Is State Socialism the Goal?

In a letter to the New York Times, Elisha M. Friedman, one of the country's most distinguished economists, had this to say about the effect of new tax policies on the public utilities of the country: "If the companies cannot finance them must borrow from the government." Thus the government may have to take them over. Bankruptcy, by government tax policy, of privately-owned utilities, will result in government-owned utilities. These pay no Federal income taxes. Their consumers are thus subsidized by the rest of the country. How long can we shrink the number of tax-paying utilities? How far can we reduce the sources of taxation? How long can we permit such legalized dodging of Federal taxes?

"What other industry is pushed into government ownership by excessive taxes? Is not this government policy for public ownership similar to the methods used by the financial pirates of the Nineties? These would cut or pass a dividend to depress a company's stock, and then buy up stock sold in distress and resume dividends . . . when the government, by taxation, forces a utility into government ownership, are not the methods similar? That it is the government itself that resorts to such practices makes them no less unethical."

In short, what the proposed tax bill would produce is state socialism through ruinous taxation. There never was a better example of the truism that the power to tax is the power to destroy. The utility industry is obviously a very different sort of industry than those which are booming with war orders. For the most part, utilities have suffered, not gained, from the war. Being stringently regulated by both the states and the Federal government, their profits are held to low levels at any time. To subject them to the same kind of "excess profits" taxes which are applied to businesses which are legally permitted to earn gigantic profits, is manifestly ridiculous.

The people will do the paying if taxation forces socialization of the utilities. They will pay in higher taxes, because all taxpayers will have to help make up for the loss of the gigantic revenue now paid by utilities in normal course of business. They will pay in poorer utility service, because never in the history of the world has a politically-managed business been as efficient as a privately-managed business. And they will pay in loss of liberty. Never forget that if the government can socialize one man's business by destructive taxation, it can socialize every man's business.

Philbin Expresses Appreciation

Democrats in the Third Congressional District will present a united front in the coming November election, Philip J. Philbin, Democratic nominee for Congress, was assured today following pledges of support from the various candidates in the primary race.

"I sincerely appreciate the splendid vote of confidence given my candidacy throughout the district and I assure the voters of the district that I will do my best to merit this trust, in representing their interests to the best of my ability," said Philbin.

"I am most grateful to the many workers who strove so assiduously to promote my decisive victory in the primaries. With their loyal help, we will gain an even more impressive victory in November."

Because of the important national issues facing the American people during this election year, the Democratic nominee lost no time in getting into action after the strenuous primary campaign. A former Harvard football player, he amazed his workers during the primary by his vigorous and unceasing activity, often embracing a 20-hour day.

"My past experience in Washington and with senators who wish to give me a deep insight into and a knowledge of the duties of an elected representative of the people. With my background, I can assure this district of a Congressman who can roll up his sleeves the day he arrives in Washington and put every talent to work immediately in support of the war effort and combatting dangerous tendencies that have taken deep root in America," he added.

Government Milk

SPENCER—A conference was held between Mr. George Dunn of the Agricultural Marketing Administration and Mr. Agard, Superintendent of Schools regarding the possibility of inaugurating a school milk program in Spencer. Under this plan the Federal Government would pay the established Class One price for the product in fluid milk in sufficient quantity to enable all children in the community to buy it at the rate of a penny per one-half pint.

Local milk distributors would be invited to submit bids for the delivery of this milk to each participating school and all children would receive at least one-half pint per day regardless of their ability to pay the penny involved.

Mr. George Dunn completed a survey of this area and has forwarded it to his Regional office in Philadelphia for approval. Mr. Agard stated that if this area is designated by the AMA for the school milk program the schools may be able to start serving milk to the children in the near future.

GARDENING in the SKIES

By Frank D. Wiley

For a number of weeks we have been discussing trees, insect pests, diseases, care and the like. What about their virtues? Did some one say trees are common-places? How could he? One can make them anything but that. Isn't it true, with anything until we grasp its usefulness or in some way get the benefit of its existence?

Common-places! The forest or woodland seeded and grew up, trees by the wayside, yes, the open field left uncultivated is soon filled with all sorts of bushes and trees and yet the instant any of these are given attention whether made use of or not, cannot be called common-places.

To the careless observer a tree is just an object. Its branches, leaves and blossoms, why, they just happen, that's all, they grow that way. The lover of trees and nature, each branch, how wonderful, each leaf, no two alike, each blossom an emblem of beauty, which in season transforms itself into a new life wrapped up in the tiny seed.

The Oak tree, from which an acorn fell into the seam of a monstrous ledge, rooted, grew, then half a century made itself into a mighty wedge to open the crevice, making a haven and hiding place for numerous wild game. Are trees common-places?

The War Department says, "Preserve them, if an air raid should come, trees will be invaluable." Some one writes, Appreciate shade? Then remember "This is God's hospitality, And those who so rest beneath a tree, Hath reason to thank him gratefully."

Not so common-places after all are the trees that cover our Native Land.

Human Guinea Pig Club

The guinea pig, which is domesticated in most parts of the world, has been widely used in bacteriological experiments. This experimental use of the guinea pig has become so general that the mere mention of this creature's name suggests the idea of "try it out on Rover."

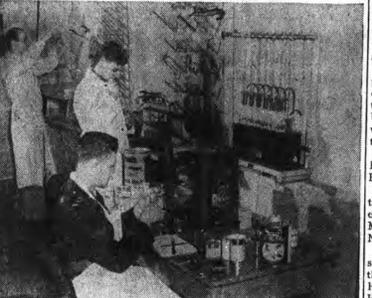

The "Human Guinea Pig Club" is the unofficial caption of the U. S. Army substance research laboratory at the Chicago Quartermaster depot. Here samples of the foods manufactured by various firms are submitted for analysis, tested for vitamin content and other nutritional values. It is here that the containers are subjected to tests simulating tropical and arctic conditions. Here also are evolved the emergency rations designed for aviators, paratroopers and commandos.

The Guinea Pig club is comprehensive in its membership. Generals, lieutenants, famed scientists, stenographers, civilians and enlisted men all partake of food prepared under various formulas. It is they who decide whether the rations are palatable, digestible and nutritious. Every noon the club meets for this purpose, and its members risk their digestions in the name of patriotism, so that the soldier may eat the proper food. And we all know how very important it is that the soldier gets the proper food to sustain him in his grueling routine from day to day. It has often been said that food will win the war. Certainly there is no denying the importance of the part it plays.

The following series of pictures gives you an opportunity to take a peek at America's most unique club.

Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding general of the Chicago Quartermaster depot, at end of table, presides over the famous "Human Guinea Pig club." The ham served at this particular meal was eleven years old, and the eggs used in the dessert were four years old. (U. S. Signal Corps photos.)

In this laboratory, the army technicians break down the food to determine the vitamin content and its nutritive value.

Under supervision of the Quartermaster Corps the concentrated food for use of troops in the field is packed by a chewing gum manufacturer who has converted his production line to the packing of emergency rations.

Piston Rings and Over-haul Really Pays Dividends
Dear folks: The Editor recently had his car equipped with new piston rings, valves ground and general motor tune-up at one of the tri-town area garages and after driving 6,000 miles can attest to the following facts: The car is using no oil in 2,000 miles between oil changes. With a little care, the car is averaging 22 miles per gallon of gas using any of the standard gasolines of the high test type. Prior to this motor over-haul, the car was using a quart of oil to each hundred miles driven and was averaging 18 miles per gallon of gas. From the foregoing, you can realize that I have saved 15 quarts of oil in each 2,000 miles drive and 25% on gas consumption. By the end of 10,000 miles, the repair job will more than have paid for itself.

News and Views From the Boys In The Service
In a letter from Australia to his parents, Wendall Wilson of Spencer asked that the "Leader" print his thanks to the people of Spencer and the City Club for the gifts sent him. He also said, that he had been away for a week and on his return to camp found so many cards, letters and gifts there for him that he would be unable to write and thank all of his friends who sent them to him. So we are extending Wendall's thanks for him.

Over the Garden Wall
Remember that poet who sang, (or sighed)
"The melancholy days are come,
The saddest of the year,
With falling winds and naked woods
And meadows brown and bare?"

I once heard that he was talking about an English Autumn but it was William Cullen Bryant and he was our poet, as New England as any of us. Maybe he went to England on a visit and then wrote the above sentiment. That could be. But I find him far from right; there are more charming and more glowing colors today in any country roadside than at any time in the year. The black alder sparkling with scarlet berries every bit as lovely as the holly. Blue asters trace a wandering brook away down through a long meadow. Wild white cranial is a feathery, greenish white along the sylvan tops in fescue meadows. Woodbine burns with a deep red son along the gray stone-walls and drop the fence posts. One tall telephone pole is draped from top to bottom with woodbine and every autumn it reminds me of the pillar of fire by night." The ferns are setting into their cinnamon-brown fall suits. Along the swamp one branch of a soft maple begins to imitate a bonfire. And all this before the grand parade of autumn leaves begins. "Melancholy days," indeed!

Last week as we rode past some tall and impressive sunflowers, my passenger said "Yes, sunflowers have a lot of backbone." They surely do and they always look on the bright side, too as they turn their faces always toward the sun. And they not only look pretty; they feed the birds. Any more good points for the humble sunflower?

Did you listen to the lecturer from the Natural History museum last Sunday as he told of the uses of herbs as set down in the old books? He mentioned Solomon's Seal as being "exceedingly useful in removing bruises which a lady might acquire by running into her husband's clenched fist."

Our fighting men are doing their share. Here at home the least we can do is put 10% of our income in War Bonds for our share in America.

C. Learns Jungle Warfare

able antitoxins, compasses, mosquito netting and medicines are part of the regular equipment of American soldiers now receiving training in jungle fighting in the Caribbean area. To reach their objectives, jungle fighters must climb and descend mountains, hack their way through jungle growth, traverse swamps and cross rivers.

A large body of men carry a good deal of equipment—one soldier a rope, another dynamite, others gasoline and a stove; others additional medical supplies and weapons.

Soldiers in the Caribbean area learn to swim rivers with their rifles over their heads and know the trick of bending over, when they have reached the opposite bank, to let the water run out of their packs. In low, swampy places and when crossing streams they must be on the watch for a wall of water which might come at them because of a cloudburst high in the mountains above them.

Food is a problem in the jungle, for everything molds, and tin cans in most cases are too heavy to carry. The soldier must learn to live off the jungle as far as possible on fruits or on the meat of cantons, tapirs, snakes and monkeys. He learns that iguanas are a delicacy.

Men in training are never sent on a mission alone; two men must always be together. In actual combat, however, men will be put to use all they have learned in order to out-filtrate and outfight the Japs.

Presented here is a series of jungle warfare training pictures taken by the U. S. Army Signal Corps in remote outposts manned by U. S. troops somewhere in the Caribbean area.

Asked about the team work of both clubs, Vernon said, "Those Cards are snappy; play like clock work; like old timers that have played together for years."

"What about Chandler, as a pitcher?" I asked. "Those pitchers," said Smith, "were, well, one about as good as the other. Everything is said, those three great plays in the outfield by the Cards out there off the wall, robbed the Yanks of a win. That was one of their comeback in the ninth and break it up. DiMaggio got a single off White, as I remember, but another great catch by Slaughter and Kellers fly off the fence, wound up that inning, and the game."

"They had two hot arguments in the contest didn't they?" I asked. "O, yes, that made a little excitement, along with an error or two," Smith replied, "Anyhow, they shut the Clamps out, 2 to 0."

"What did you think of Sunday's games?" asked the reporter. "I was glad to see the Cooper brothers in action, Frank, we have heard so much about them. They are a good think; didn't you play semi-pro baseball in your day?" "Yes," was the answer, "for a club in Western Massachusetts; My brother and I, the twin battery, they called it."

In passing, space does not allow for all of our conversation.

"Tell me about the uprising in the fourth inning!" "Well," said he, "the Cards, of course came to bat. A slow bunt to third by Musiel's leg reached. The batter, the catcher, banged out a hit, and on a misplay by the Yanks, Musiel went to third; then Brewer walked, hitting the batter, but say I, my body out; Kowroski hit past Rolfe at second, scoring two runs; the next batter walked, then up again Cooper the pitcher, he was out, and got a hit, scoring two more, making it 4 to 1, nobody out. Those kids went around the bases like a run, making the score 5 to 1, and one out; the next man was out, then Musiel came up for the second time in the inning, doubled, hitting in the sixth run for the Cards. Cooper, the catcher, filed out. Some inning! It looked to me as if the Cards had everything sewed up."

"Things went along ordinary like until the last of the sixth, when Keller, of the Yankees hit that home run with two on, nearly tying the score, driving Cooper off the hill, and before the Cards could stop them the score was tied up 6-6."

"Did you think the tide had turned, and the Yankees were going to win?" I asked Smith. "To tell you the truth, I felt a bit jittery myself," he replied, "but the way the boys came back in the next inning made me feel better, with those two runs."

"The Yankees failed to score again and the Cards got another in the ninth inning making the score, 9-6 for St. Louis."

"What about Monday's game?" I asked. "That was worth the price of all three," said Smith. "I've always wanted to see Kuffing pitch; he's nearly 40 years old, but he can pitch," Vernon continued. "I thought those Yanks were going to come back in this one; little Phil Ritzuto is a little chap, and he whanged a homer on the second pitch in that first inning, but saying no less of Slaughter of St. Louis, he matched it up in the first of the 4th, making the score even up, 1-1. Then the Yanks got hot again in their half when Red Rolfe punched out a bunt, and Beazley, the Cards, pitcher made a poor throw, allowing Red to go to second, who scored when DiMaggio singled putting his club ahead 2 to 1."

North Athlete Sees Series

Vernon Smith, North Brookfield Athlete, who attended World Series, interviewed by "Union Reporter."

"Perfect weather, good company, and everything that makes such an event perfect, accompanied me at the World Series. Three days, three games in New York, and three game win by St. Louis, taking the series; what a ball club, winning four out of five from the World Champions," said Mr. Smith as he started the interview.

"I suppose you were in favor of the Cards," said the writer to Vernon. "That was my opinion," he said. "You take a team of young players, not one of whom ever played in a World Series before, put them in a World Series, like the New York Club; what do you think?" "Definitely, the Cards."

"What were the thrills in Saturday's game?" I asked. "Plenty," said Smith. "You get some idea of the game on the radio, but you want to see guys play. Those St. Louis outfielders, Terry, Slaughter, and Slaughter, one after another were fairly taking them off the wall to save 'home runs' that we work of both clubs, Vernon said, "Those Cards are snappy; play like clock work; like old timers that have played together for years."

"What about Chandler, as a pitcher?" I asked. "Those pitchers," said Smith, "were, well, one about as good as the other. "Things went along ordinary like until the last of the sixth, when Keller, of the Yankees hit that home run with two on, nearly tying the score, driving Cooper off the hill, and before the Cards could stop them the score was tied up 6-6."

"Did you think the tide had turned, and the Yankees were going to win?" I asked Smith. "To tell you the truth, I felt a bit jittery myself," he replied, "but the way the boys came back in the next inning made me feel better, with those two runs."

"The Yankees failed to score again and the Cards got another in the ninth inning making the score, 9-6 for St. Louis."

"What about Monday's game?" I asked. "That was worth the price of all three," said Smith. "I've always wanted to see Kuffing pitch; he's nearly 40 years old, but he can pitch," Vernon continued. "I thought those Yanks were going to come back in this one; little Phil Ritzuto is a little chap, and he whanged a homer on the second pitch in that first inning, but saying no less of Slaughter of St. Louis, he matched it up in the first of the 4th, making the score even up, 1-1. Then the Yanks got hot again in their half when Red Rolfe punched out a bunt, and Beazley, the Cards, pitcher made a poor throw, allowing Red to go to second, who scored when DiMaggio singled putting his club ahead 2 to 1."

Perhaps, Smith continued, "Beazley didn't have good enough to just toss them in there to Flash Gordon, after Keller had singled, putting Joe DiMaggio on third; but these boys know their stuff and

An idea for an unusual form of entertainment is a breakfast. Invite your "gang" to come home with you "after the club dance" or "after the show" for breakfast. You may keep your menu simple or have it as elaborate as you care to.

If the dance has lasted late, your guests will probably be hungry, so give them scrambled eggs, bacon, hot toast and coffee. You can prepare that in a hurry.

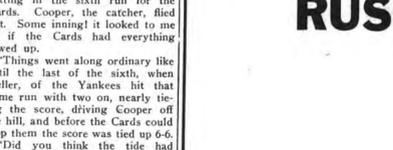

However, if you are having them in after the show, the hour will be earlier and I would suggest you serve them chicken in pattie shells, or chile con carne, or any of your favorite substantial supper dishes.

Refreshment service.

By now your guests will welcome relaxation so try an old favorite. One guest commences by saying: "I'm going to New York and I'm going to take a trunk and in it I am going to put," and names her article. The next one in turn repeats these lines, each guest repeating all the articles named by other players in their right order of order to eliminate or duplicate subject, and blowing up a top balloon. You will be surprised at what a starter activity will do to create the hilarious spirit in which other games may be introduced.

The deeper your tan is, the sooner you'll need to start fading it. But, of course, you should go on having a good time in the water and sun a great time; just switch to lanoline or some cream—and use it generously. Renew it often. Prevents further tanning while your present tan fades.

A party can mean real fun and relaxation if you don't go too hard getting ready for it! Choose a simple theme to carry out so that you can enjoy yourself while providing fun for your guests.

When your guests are arriving, supply them with some amusing stunts and games. Begin by giving each newcomer a simple or difficult task; for example, winding yarn, reading the last paragraph in a specific book, coloring a picture in a child's drawing book, dropping several clothespins into a bottle from shoulder height, talking to another guest for three minutes on any desired subject, and blowing up a top balloon. You will be surprised at what a starter activity will do to create the hilarious spirit in which other games may be introduced.

MINUTE GIVES SLANT ON 'EATS' AT CAMP

NORTH BROOKFIELD—P. F. C. Bernard Quinn, stationed at Fort Hancock, N. J., writes:—

"Past the side army," said the soldier, looking across the table at the quiet fellow who had arrived the night before. It was breakfast time and the new soldier was some what ill at ease as he glanced at the food. The others, eating, paid little attention to him—except the one who said again: "Sidearm?"

The new soldier stared, he was puzzled. The speaker understood the situation; with a grunt he rose and leaned across the table and reached. "Hey, Mac," he said, sharply, "when any one asks for 'side arms' that means he wants the milk and sugar. Then he sat down and proceeded to flavor his coffee."

I talked with the new soldier that afternoon. He was from Norton, Virginia; had been in Army but a short time before coming to Fort Hancock, and admitted, that while he had a knowledge of mess hall slang, he expressed "sidearm" was a new one on him.

This is not an article on Army slang but it is one concerned with the important matter of the food, its administration, preparation and service. The matter of feeding an Army.

Physical fitness is required, and that is where the subject of food is concerned and with it goes "slang."

At breakfast the soldier next to you would never guess it, but he wants the hot cakes, griddle cakes to New Englanders and they rarely have them in the States. In Massachusetts, from Blanding in Florida to Lewis in Washington. It's "chow" three times a day from Trinidad bases to Iceland outposts, and there is a difference from the days we ate at home.

So, when Johnny Comes Marching to the front, he'll forgive him if he happens to say "Butts on the Liver."

STEWART ROWLETT AT WILBRAHAM ACADEMY

Thomas Stewart Rowlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Rowlett of Cherry street, Spencer, is a member of the Wilbraham Academy, Wilbraham, a short distance from Springfield.

Rowlett will take an active part in the 125th Anniversary Celebration that is taking place this month.

During the Annual Alumni Homecoming Day, October 10th, at 10.30 in the morning, the English and Brownstone Chapel is to be rededicated in which extensive interior alterations have been completed this summer. Honorable Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Academy, will be the principal speaker. Rev. George E. Heath, Pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church of Worcester, Mass., will give the invocation and benediction on this occasion.

During the afternoon the home football game between the Wesleyan Freshman and the Wilbraham football team is scheduled.

For many years Wilbraham has claimed "the honor of being the oldest literary institution existing under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America."

With the trend in recent years toward nonsectarianism in many educational institutions, the school adopted a similar policy, and, accordingly, the church service in the rededication will be nonsectarian. Charles L. Stevens is the Headmaster of the Academy.

My daughter has become engaged to a boy with whose parents I am not acquainted. What is the proper way to meet them?

Answer—The family of the young man will call on your daughter and you as soon as they are notified of the engagement. This is a "must" call and whether or not they approve the match they must put themselves out and pretend they like the engagement.

When the mother of the bride announces the engagement in the usual way, she will send engraved cards to her friends and relatives and mention an afternoon when she and her daughter will be at home in gray, bread, butter and coffee. That's a good meal. The usual mid-day meal is of same volume.

AMERICA IN ACTION

WASHINGTON—A Maryland school teacher wants to find out how to get a job in a defense factory.

A young woman in Brooklyn asks for details about making a visit to a soldier friend in a Texas camp.

A mother in a western state is eager to learn what opportunities her soldier-son has to attend church.

This is not a military "information, please" program. It's a small cross-section of the large number of queries that come in every day from all parts of the country to the Women's Interests section in the war department at Washington.

Officially, the chief of this section is the liaison between the soldier in camp, and his family and friends back home. Unofficially, she is on the receiving end of a nation-wide "information" outburst that comes to her desk by letter, by telephone and by personal interview.

A young woman in a southwestern state wants to be a ferry pilot and writes in for information as to the proper place to make application.

A mother in Pennsylvania writes to request the chief of the section to visit her son, who is ill in a post hospital in Texas.

A veteran of the First World War urges her to seek the secretary of war for reinstatement in the army. The veteran explains that he has a son in the service and thinks the "father-son" combination would be a good one.

A registered nurse in Michigan writes in to ask how she may join the army nurse corps.

The president of a club in Tennessee asks for the army menu for her club, at one of its weekly luncheons, may duplicate the soldier's "mess" for that particular day.

A national defense group in New York state asks for literature to help answer "about 50 questions a day" on the army.

The Women's Interests section has jumped up the old game of "Twenty Questions" to "about 50 questions a day."

Don't take my WORD for it! FRANK COLBY

SURPRISE WORD OF THE WEEK

It is natural that the word WORSTED should remind us of the word WORSTED, an English pronunciation of "WERT-sted," but the words have no connection whatever. The cloth is named for an English town, Worsted, where the fabric was first made.

As you know, the English have an unpronounceable word, "chumley," which is pronounced "Chum-lee." The name of the town is pronounced "Chum-lee," etc. And they are quite in character when it comes to the word "worsted," for the "w" is given the sound of "oo" as in foot, and the "r" is altogether lost in the shuffle. The American dictionaries give us these alternatives:

First choice: WOOL-ted
Second choice: WOOL-sted
(Capitals indicate syllables to be accented.)

It's Hard to Believe

Camp Wallace: Some of us here have been wondering about the origin of the word AMBULANCE. Please explain—Pvt. Answer: Ambulance is from the French ambulant, which is a corruption of the Latin word ambulare, which means "to walk" (hold tight) "to take a stroll!" In France, the first ambulance was called hospital ambulante, meaning "an ambulating hospital." It's hard to believe that an ambulance case, literally, is simply a pedestrian taking a hiking trip, but it's true!

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 50-caliber Browning machine gun is one of the most efficient short range weapons used by U. S. fighting forces. It is effective at ranges up to 2,600 yards and fires about 600 r.p.m. caliber bullets per minute.

One of these guns costs about $1,000, while a thirty-caliber machine gun costs approximately $600. Our fighting forces need thousands of these rapid-fire guns. Even a small town or community can buy them. Buy them in units of the purchase of War Bonds. At least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day will get you the trick.

MODERN BULLY FITTERS

WASHINGTON—It is a long shot from the modified bullet of the gas to the high-powered artillery projectiles of today. But as weapons poured the modern lead into crude molds to make those bullets, so women today work on the modern shell.

More and more women are taking their places in wartime industries, working to put into the hands of their men the weapons that will win victory. These modern processes are complex. Each worker does only a small part of one of them. She may never see the finished product. It is the product worked out by the man who uses it. But her work is just as important, for without it the product would not be finished.

For example, a primer is a little brass cup that contains the explosive charge—a small explosion pellet pressed to a falling disk. It must be set under a tiny arvil through which the flame passes from the ignited pellet into the vent hole in the cartridge case to ignite the powder. The falling paper must be perfectly in line with the vent hole, or it will not ignite. It must be placed in the primer cups by hand. This is just one small process, seemingly simple, but in the density of the worker depends the effectiveness of the missile.

In many plants women are employed as testers. They do such intricate jobs as adjusting hair-strings in strobo-globe machines and projecting fuses parts on cameras or shadowgraphs—a process which would have alarmed their grandmothers. Some women are given an entire year's training as time-piece makers so they can be transferred from one operation to another; still others lead primer boxes with no mischief mixed with them.

These are by no means all the things that women do today to supply ammunition to the soldiers, but they indicate how the modern woman emulate the Molly Pitcher of Revolutionary fame who rammed the powder down her husband's gun at the Battle of Monmouth.

Bits O' Beauty

That hast beset me behind and before, and laid things hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it. — Psal. 139, 5-6

INTROSPECT

I am an idler who sits by the sea
Whose rhythm, eternal, enchanted me.

I am an idler who sits 'neath the stars
Whose radiance peers through infinity's bars.

I am an idler who watches the wing
Of eagle, or swallow, or insect thing,
And while each in it's living active grace
Enhances the charm of it's native place,
I, though an idler, like them active too,
Am part of the rhythm—part of the view.

All poets suffer from an overdose of introspection . . . That's why they are poets . . . They find themselves so completely a part of, and associated with, everything in the universe that they become enraptured with all nature . . . They become part of the rhythm—part of the view . . . Self becomes merged into the larger aspects of life . . . Selfishness becomes poverty . . . The more selfish, the more limited the horizon . . . The less selfish the larger the horizons of both time and place . . . A parasite crab in the shell of an oyster living on the vitals of its host, has indeed a very limited horizon, it may cause the oyster to grieve and produce a pearl of great price as the oyster patiently endures the torture from the one it is befriending, but that parasite crab does not produce the pearl . . . It's greedy selfishness is the cause, and in a sense of origin, of the pearl but the oyster's patient perseverance in overcoming the evil of the parasite is what makes a pearl the precious symbol of patient fortitude . . . What have oysters, parasite crabs and pearls to do with our "Bits-O-Beauty"?

Each of us is smart enough to produce a pearl . . . In the immensity of this universe of infinity in which we live at the bottom of an ocean of atmosphere forty-five miles deep, we are little more than oysters . . . Not one of us is smart enough to make a genuine pearl . . . But we can be patient enough to produce characters, precious as pearls in the eyes of our creator, if we are smart enough and kindhearted enough to overcome evil with good . . . In every age of the world's short history great men have known truth . . . A Moses finds himself so inseparably a part of his people that he prays that he might be blotted out of the book of life rather than that they should perish . . . A Paul could wish himself a curse from Christ for his brethren, his kinsmen according to the flesh, if they could win Christ . . . And Christ the innocent and righteous savior willing gives up his life for sinners.

The world of which we are all component parts is undergoing well deserved punishment for its iniquity . . . We are in it . . . We are part of the rhythm—part of the view . . . We cannot fly off to Mars if we would . . . We hate war . . . We may hate regimentation . . . We may hate high taxes . . . We may hate rationing . . . We may hate our enemies or we may be of those who hate our enemy's actions but would save our enemies from themselves if they would allow us . . . In any event we can be of those who can practice introspection without becoming introverts if we will be willing to share in the sorrow and suffering of this generation of which we are a part . . . To produce a pearl of great price we must give of ourselves to aid in the alleviation of the sorrow and sadness that stalks every corner of the globe we call earth . . . As our humbled hearts feel the pearl forming in the womb of our experience we will take courage and thank God.

Keep Faith

One of the most powerful safeguards of individual liberty can be found in the thousands of community banks scattered over the three million square miles of the United States. The question of size either of the banks or of the communities in which they operate, is irrelevant. They are all community banks and they all safeguard our most vital freedom—economic freedom.

There exists hardly a citizen who at some time has not found it necessary to go to his local banker for financial advice or aid. He may be seeking money for a new business venture. His family may have suffered illness requiring immediate emergency funds. Or he may be a farmer in need of seasonal stock or crop loans. In every case, the reason is economic. In plainer language, bread and butter necessities drive us to our local banker for help. It is his business to lend that help where the facts justify, as painlessly and as efficiently as possible. It is a difficult task. He must have a broad knowledge of agriculture, business and industry together with an intimate understanding of the men and women in his community. No amount of regulation can relieve him of his responsibility as an individual, to the thousands of other individuals who rely utterly on his integrity and competence. If he fails, the community may fail, and vice versa.

Thus, it should not be hard to see why the community bank is the key to our "fifth" freedom. It would be tragic indeed if the day ever arrives when the private citizen finds in his local banker, not another free American citizen, but a controlled puppet of a dominant political party in a vast bureaucracy. Such a tragedy can befall us if we ever lose faith in our ideals of free private enterprise.

GARDENING in the SKIES

By Frank D. Wiley

Many people will say, "Well, we have had a couple of hard frosts, but the leaves will be turning soon." That is true enough, but do you know what really happens? It is the ripening of the foliage, of deciduous trees which in the autumn turns to gorgeous crimsons, purples, yellows and browns. These remarkable displays of color result after life changes take place in the trees themselves. When the trees feel the colder weather approaching, nature has provided a way in which the tree stimulates its own life by putting on an extra growth of bark on the twigs.

The first step of nature is to put into safe keeping the chlorophyll, the green matter in leaves, which has two coats, green and yellow. During the summer the green predominates, unless by some lack of nourishment or moisture, when the leaves turn yellow.

The process of this green matter in the leaves being drawn back into the tree is also taking place. Sometimes at one night a whole tree has suddenly, as if by magic, put off its green robe and become flowered in full garb of crimson. The leaves suddenly metamorphosed through the enchantment of God's color artist Jack Frost and became flowered in full garb of crimson. The leaves brought them from the clouds at night. But while some trees are thoroughly changed in their appearance, others are only impregnated with a delicate shade of red, or slightly tinged with orange or russet. The green matter is being scattered in one uniform color, scattered over the remainder a gentle sprinkling of every hue.

While we are enjoying this gorgeous scene of mixed splendor, our eyes are attracted towards an occasional towering evergreen, that stands alone among the glittering multitude, unshorn of its verdure, like some proud spirit, that scorns the fashions of the world. What is this? It is also inspiring to us, like some proud spirit, that scorns the fashions of the world. What is this? It is also inspiring to us, like some proud spirit, that scorns the fashions of the world.

Worth While

Warren, Mass., Oct. 8, 1942

Jack is still in the green and will be in the autumn.

It's lovely weather we're having. This is, you know, the most brilliant of the months, unsurpassed in charm of its skies and in the wonderful variety of tints sprinkled over its vegetation. Though the present is a melancholy time of year (draft-board quotas have risen), we are preserved from the cheerless reflection by the brightness of the sunshine and the interminable beauty of the landscape.

Directed by the unusual charms of nature, while we look with a mournful heart upon the graves of the flowers, we involuntarily turn our eyes upward and around us, where the trees are gleaming like a wilderness of roses, and forget in our rapturism the lovely things we have lost. As the flowers wither and vanish from our sight, their colors seem to be drawn back into the tree, as if each drying blossom had bequeathed its beauty to the forest depths, that had kindly protected it from wind and blast. The trees are one by one putting aside their verdure of green, and slowly assuming their new robe of many hues.

Sometimes at one night a whole tree has suddenly, as if by magic, put off its green robe and become flowered in full garb of crimson. The leaves suddenly metamorphosed through the enchantment of God's color artist Jack Frost and became flowered in full garb of crimson. The leaves brought them from the clouds at night. But while some trees are thoroughly changed in their appearance, others are only impregnated with a delicate shade of red, or slightly tinged with orange or russet. The green matter is being scattered in one uniform color, scattered over the remainder a gentle sprinkling of every hue.

While we are enjoying this gorgeous scene of mixed splendor, our eyes are attracted towards an occasional towering evergreen, that stands alone among the glittering multitude, unshorn of its verdure, like some proud spirit, that scorns the fashions of the world. What is this? It is also inspiring to us, like some proud spirit, that scorns the fashions of the world.

Leicester Scenery Monday night I was lying on the couch reading when it occurred to me that the Leicester Rod and Gun Club was having a meeting at which they promised some war pictures were to be shown. Seeing moving pictures of the war the safest way to get a look at it, so I thought I would go. I remarked to my wife that I thought I would go and she asked if I were sure. Not only did I remark but surely they would not throw out a reporter from the Leicester Banner. But, never the less, I sort of drifted in and quietly took a seat next to nobody so that nobody would ask me what I was doing there. They were having a business meeting. Miss Leake was telling the club that they had a lot of clay pigeons left from the shoot. He said they would sell them to anybody for $2.50 a box and also some sixteen gauge shot gun shells to shoot them with for $1.25 a box. He then told the members "inasmuch as the State Game Commission has voted to allow this year that they would not shoot more birds and rabbits than they could eat, I am new to this thing and I am going to buy a pair of shot gun shells for acquired pie, and rabbits for rabbit pie and I suppose clay pigeons for mud pie. The next morning I went to the store and bought a pair of shot gun shells and a pair of rabbits. He asked for a dollar, but I trustingly gave it to him and he gave it to young Roger. Stone. Forrie wrote something on a bit of paper and passed it to the Thompson. Bob, the president of the Rod and Gun Club put it in a box and gave it to young Roger. Bits O' Beauty

"Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; all is vanity."
Ecl. 12-8.

THE BLIGHT
(A lament for the departed glory of N. E. Chestnuts)
No more thy golden flares shall shine among
The flame of maples or the somber oak
No more upon thy leafy boughs are hung
The frost browned burrs or songs of feathered folk.
Denuded trunk with scarce a branch or limb.
Grey, mid the galaxy of autumn leaves,
You stand alone, silent, morose and grim,
While summer in her passing, sighs and grieves.

Here mid the glory of the autumn show,
Where opalescent leaves tish as they fall
And death forbodes the coming of the snow,
Whose chaste white silence is to bury all,
I to am grieving as I wait in vain
To hear the patter of the chestnut's rain.

Retrospect

We have just received from the Texas Company a charming little book written on the event of their 40th anniversary and as the company was organized 40 years ago, it gives a brief picture of the things which transpired in the year 1902. . . Among them were the following: "The Gibson Girl" was the ideal of feminine beauty and the well-dressed lady was hemmed in by whalebone and steel, burdened with yards of sweeping skirts. . . A great ping-pong craze swept the country and whilst tournaments abounded. . . Hardy males used straight razors. "In the following year Gillette pioneered the safety razor. . . There were only 45 stars in our flag, Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico were still to be admitted as states. The phonograph, with its wax cylindrical records, had the place of honor on the parlor table. . . President "Teddy" Roosevelt sent a message to Congress urging a Panama Canal. . . Jim Jeffrey successfully defended his heavy weight title against Bob Fitzsimmons. In Dayton, Ohio, two lads named Wright, built a wind tunnel to experiment with wing shapes, then the following year at Kitty Hawk, they made the world's first flight in self-propelled, heavier than air machine. . . Two automobile records were made, New York to Boston, 225 miles in 15 hours and Toledo, to New York, 825 miles in 16 1/2 days. . . The nation was agog over the antics of a new advertising character, "Sunny Jim" who expounded the virtues of a breakfast food called "Force". . . The scientific world was watching and doubting the experiments of Marconi, who had managed to send a message by wireless from England to Newfoundland. The national debt was less than three billion dollars. . . There was no income tax, and no gasoline tax. . . Leading articles advertised in national magazines were Ostermore mattresses, Pear's Soap, Pianola, Eastman Kodak, Royal Baking Powder, Baker's Cocoa, and an occasional timid announcement of the Locomobile, the Olds, Peerless, Apperson, Pierce Arrow automobiles. . . The population of the United States was about 76 million. . . There were no filling stations. . . The first one is accredited to the year 1905. . . A man named Henry Ford decided to go into the manufacture of automobiles. . . Nine thousand motor cars were produced in the United States. . . The Republic of Cuba came into being. . . Unceasing biscuits made their bow and spelled the doom of the open cracker barrel. . . A motorist was arrested for speeding in upper New York City at 12 miles an hour. . . There were more automobiles in Great Britain than in this country. . . The gay nineties, with their vanity of vanities, were merging into the 20th century super-scientific era. . . We are nearly half way through that century. . . Many of our liberties are leaving us as international struggles cause us all to be shackled as gaily slaves to the oars of the ship of state in the day of storm and strife.

Already, as one walks through the woods, he will observe young chestnuts struggling to make their way in the forest which gives promise, to its old timers, that our grandchildren may yet enjoy the hunts for chestnuts and that the landscape will again be beautified with the rich golden flares of the chestnuts shining among the brilliant flames of the maples. . . By the same token, we shall live in hope and expectation for the return of civil liberties and a righteous peace when the warmongers of the world have been destroyed or see the futility of force in international relations.

News In The World Of Religion

The United States Navy Department announces that it needs by January 1, 1945, some four hundred additional naval chaplains from eleven communions. Those churches that have not filled their quotas of chaplains are the Roman Catholic, the Baptist, the Methodist, the Congregational-Christian, the Protestant Episcopal, the Disciples of Christ, the Lutheran, the Reformed, the United Brethren, the Unitarian, and the Presbyterian. To be eligible for a navy chaplaincy a minister must be not more than 44 years of age, ordained, and have both a college and a theological seminary training. They are commissioned in the Naval Reserve at lieutenants or lieutenants (junior grade).

General de Gaulle, of the Free French forces in Africa, has given assurance to the Paris Missionary Society that there will be no opposition on the part of his government to the evangelical missions which the French Protestants are carrying on in the Cameroons and in Gabon, in French Equatorial Africa. "As soon as we had finished the occupation of Gabon," he wrote, "we thought of your missions and of their needs and if means of giving them the help they needed, and at the request of the Governor of Gabon a special credit has been placed at his disposal so as to allow him to help, with both money and supplies, the missionary establishments in charge of the development of the Maritani Rural Reconstruction Center in South India—have been "handed" to the Young Men's Christian Association of Mexico to help in development of a program there for the betterment of the peons and poorer rural groups. At the village of Camahima ("Place of the sweet potato") they have begun a demonstration center for the "founded" reconstruction of village life; improving the soil, demonstrating field crops, fruits and vegetables suitable for village growing, controlling insect pests, selecting and distributing improved breeds of animals and poultry, and erecting a model home.

Something of the change in ideas and in ideals which has taken place among many thousands in China in recent years may be gleaned from these "Standards for a Christian Home" which have been adopted by the National Christian Council of China and broadcast through churches and schools: "Both parents should be Christian; the law of love should predominate; there should be respect for personality; there should be equal opportunity for both sexes, especially in education; there should be a working fellowship; there should be training in Christian practices, attitudes, and faith; health and recreation should be available to all; the home should be an educational center; there should be economic security for all in the home."

Dr. D. Spencer Hatch and his wife, Dr. Emily G. Hatch, perhaps the best-known rural life experts serving the outcast peoples of India—having been for twenty years in charge of the development of the Maritani Rural Reconstruction Center in South India—have been "handed" to the Young Men's Christian Association of Mexico to help in development of a program there for the betterment of the peons and poorer rural groups. At the village of Camahima ("Place of the sweet potato") they have begun a demonstration center for the "founded" reconstruction of village life; improving the soil, demonstrating field crops, fruits and vegetables suitable for village growing, controlling insect pests, selecting and distributing improved breeds of animals and poultry, and erecting a model home.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Armetine (Girard) Raymond; two daughters, Mrs. Leo Madaux of Southbridge and Mrs. Eva Lavigne of Spencer; two sons, Alfred and Camille, both of Spencer; five brothers, Edward of Worcester, Abraham of Newport, Vt.; Francis, Edmond and Cyril of Magog, P. Q., and eight grandchildren.

Bits O' Beauty

I will make a man more precious than fine gold; even a man then the golden wedge of Ophir. Isa. 13, 12.

SERVANTS VERSUS SLAVES

I sought and found an honest man Who loved and served his native land; For truth to him was more than life And by it's rule he kept from strife.

W. B. T.

You cannot legislate honesty... It has to be motivated from the heart... In the social order men are free in proportion to the degree of their honesty... while it is true that obedience to law is liberty, it is equally true that in the moral sense liberty is something more than mere obedience... Liberty and freedom are kinship who walk hand in hand with love and truth... I feel perfectly free with my friend when we both enjoy each other mutual confidence... By the same token I am at liberty to express to him any and all of my inmost emotions and ideas... This mutual confidence is based on integrity... It was these moral virtues which cradled our nation from its birth at Plymouth to its constitutional manhood at Philadelphia... For over one hundred and fifty years these basic principles announced at Sinai and fulfilled in the life of Jesus Christ were a vital factor in the development and growth of this nation... Since World War Number One there has been a very definite trend away from the idealism which made this nation great... This trend has been evident in every so-called Christian nation... Men everywhere have become lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God... Scientific living (falsely so called) has taken the place of God fearing, God guided living so that nearly all flesh have corrupted God's way... The world of which we are all component parts is beginning to pay the price of its folly... Whole nations are temporarily enslaved to foreign overlords... Free peoples, or shall we say once free peoples, are finding that each day their personal liberty is becoming more restricted... Our legislators are not fools, it is we the people who have been fools... The new restraints and regimenting of our lives are necessary because we as individuals are no longer trustworthy... In our greed we hoard sugar... We hoard coffee... Perhaps some lie about their gasoline requirements... Others may boast that they have bought "hot" tires... Because bootlegging, abortions, stiff penalties are administered for violation of what some would have considered a trivial offense... This week we learn of a neighbor being indicted for wrongfully selling tires and has hanging over his head a penalty of forty years in jail and fines aggregating $40,000.00... This is not funny... The exaggerated penalties only serve to tell us how far we as a people, all of us together, have strayed from the paths of rectitude... Our prosperity and freedom, instead of being prized possessions for which we should be thanking God, have become a means for license and self gratification... We have developed a super race of skilled men... Wise men (Worldly wise)... Keen men... Shrewd men... Daring men... Brave men... All specialists in creating a colossus of world efficiency which fools thought could operate without the aid of love... Like the god of gold which Nebuchadnezzar set up on the plains of Dura it now mocks its king as its victims emerge from the fiery furnace unharmed by the heat of its tortures... A man more precious than gold?... Let us see... We have $22,000,000,000.00 of the world's gold currency hidden away in subterranean vaults out in Kentucky... Why is it hidden there?... The answer is very simple... It cannot be trusted in anyone's hand... We took it from every quarter of the globe in our international trade wars because we could not trust those who owed it to us... By a like token our government made it unlawful for freemen in a free land to have gold currency in their possession... Who is to blame for this state of things... All of us together... Mutual trust is the birthright of freedom and liberty, both national and international... The world has sold its birthright for a science, falsely so called... We shall never again have liberty until the fear of God makes us all better men and women than we have been for the last two decades... For a man is indeed more precious than fine gold, even a man than the golden wedge of Ophir... Out of the present furnace of affliction there will no doubt emerge a generation of such men.

Elections

It is not surprising that the State and National elections this year fail to develop any startling issues or fanfare... So many homes are disturbed by the departure of loved ones and political creed has seemed to play such a small part in National and State legislative procedures that most of the electorate who visit the polls will in a large measure forget party lines and vote for who they think is the best man... This seems to be as it should be in times like these... On the State ticket, the democrats have some strong men with good records behind them while the republican party seeks re-election of almost all its leading State candidates solely on the basis of their record and past performances... In any event, there is every reason to believe that a light vote will be cast and the party that is most sure of itself will be the one which will lose out in this election... In other words, it is the party that gets out its followers to the polls next Tuesday, that will probably take most of the office.

 OF CLINTON
STATE SENATOR
 For
WORCESTER-HAMPDEN SENATORIAL DISTRICT

Never too busy to be of service to a constituent.
 A working man himself, he understands and is sympathetic to the needs of the worker.

Favors prompt and proper care of our older citizens.
 As chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, he is conversant with agricultural problems, being especially active in the passage of many bills to benefit Massachusetts Dairymen.

His 12 years of service and experience in the State Senate is his best recommendation for re-election and will be invaluable in solving the problems confronting our legislature during the war and post-war period of reconstruction and return of the American way of life.

Important State legislation will no doubt be necessary in behalf of our boys in service when they start coming home. As your candidate, you can be sure their interest will not be overlooked.

Always voted for honest, humane, and efficient government.
 He Will Appreciate Your Vote November 3.

The Centennial

The Centennial of the Spencer Methodist Church marks a milestone of Christian Service in this community, of which the congregation may well be proud... Methodism in the United States and throughout the world has been a power for good for many decades. The carefully prepared program for celebrating this event presented opportunities for all the good folks of the Tri-town area to participate regardless of creed... The joint services on Sunday, when the Congregational Church joined hands, was symbolic of the type of cooperation between these two bodies which has been so much in evidence ever since the Rev. N. Bond Fleming and the Rev. George G. Parker first met... In the early summer, I saw these two ministers of the gospel slowly walking up Main street, shoulder to shoulder, in step, in serious conversation... The picture was so indelibly impressed on the writer's mind, that it will probably never be erased... It told of the unity of spirit that bridges minor differences of creed, and that morning, these two Christian gentlemen silently preached a sermon to the writer that will never be forgotten. That part of the centennial program that traced the historical background of the present church should rekindle smoldering fires of devotion in the hearts of parishioners in a manner that will make them emulate their forebears in the support of their church... The centennial program was a worthy tribute to the church of which the church was worthy.

By Frank D. Wiley
 What is a tree? Nothing in all plant life creates as many uses to mankind as do the trees. It's beauty is a delight to everyone; its branches offer shade and shelter to man and beast; its fruit furnishes food; its structure is used to build houses, furniture, tools, weapons, and the whole or any part can be used for fuel. The dictionary says, "A woody perennial plant, having a single stem or trunk, commonly exceeding ten feet in height and usually bearing a head or crown of leaves at the summit." The defining word further, the botanist will tell you that the garden pea is a cousin to the locust tree, for both bear pods; the strawberry is kin to the pear tree, the fruit of both is similarly shaped, and each have a core; both belong to the rose family.

The two main classes of our trees are described as conifers, those which hold their foliage during the winter; cone bearing with needle shaped leaves, and deciduous trees, which bear seeds from a blossom and shed their foliage at the approach of cold weather.

The oldest and largest living things are found in tree life. Trees in California reach the height of three hundred feet and there are some that have been known to live for a period of three thousand years; in fact, claim is made that trees will not die unless injured. Can you think of any tree that died a natural death?

The cambium or a mass of cells between the outer bark and the sapwood, is an ever youthful tissue; that is as fast as these cells become at all aged, become cells of the sapwood and so on to the heart of the tree. This heartwood has nothing to with the life of the tree except to strengthen the structure, and yet when used for fuel or lumber, it is of the most value. So it goes, each year the tree puts on another layer of this sap-conveying wood just inside the outer bark, therefore increasing the circumference and crowding young cells back into the sapwood where they have less work to do and finally to the heartwood where the sap gradually ceases to run. This applies to the two familiar classes of our trees, the deciduous and conifers. Pines in the south have no

ROYAL Notes
 The first weekly sale of War Stamps in the local public schools amounted to $248 with nearly 30% of the pupils making purchases. There will be competition in the selling program, according to Ruth Rhoden B. Eddy, based on the number of pupils participating rather than on the amount of money received. The idea being to encourage all the children to do something rather than for a few to make greater purchases. The teachers will assume this work and take charge of the Stamp Books if the parents so desire.

Rhoden B. Eddy, Supt. of Schools attended a meeting of the county superintendents Monday to line up the fuel rationing program. The teachers and volunteers under his direction will have charge of the rationing here. It is expected that the registration of consumers will take place the first week in November.

The Rationing Board urges motorists not to wait until their supplemental books expire to apply for supplemental gasoline. Applications may be made 15 days ahead and the books will be dated accordingly. New rules provide that applications for tires are to be issued on the basis of mileage with defense workers traveling the longest distance receiving the preference.

Wilson's Service Station Moves To West Brookfield
 Many of Lawrence Wilson's friends are congratulating him on his move to West Brookfield where he has taken over the management of the large Socony Service Station opposite Ye Old Tavern. For some years, Mr. Wilson operated a service station on West Main Street, South Spencer, where he made a host of friends. However, all agree that he was wise in taking up the management of the larger station in West Brookfield.

Red Cross Needs Nurses

The Red Cross First Reserve is the chief recruitment agency for Army and Navy nurses. All nurses graduated from accredited nursing schools, between the ages of 21 and 40, in good health and unmarried are eligible.

Worcester Chapter Red Cross Headquarters at 61 Harvard Street is taking enrollment for the Red Cross First Reserve of nurses from this area most of whom will be assigned to immediate military duty.

The Red Cross is now recruiting alien nurses who are citizens of cobelligerent or friendly nations for their Red Cross First Reserve. These nurses may serve only with the Army Nurse Corps.

The basic pay in Army or Navy Nurse Corps has been increased to $90 a month and full maintenance.

Nurses entering the Navy from the rolls of the Red Cross First Reserve have the relative rank of ensign. Those entering the Army have the relative rank of second lieutenant and are in line for promotion.

Thousands of married and inactive nurses are coming out of retirement to take "refresher courses" so that all nurses under 40, unmarried and in good health may join the Red Cross First Reserve and serve with the armed forces of the United States.

Healy Style Show Is Big Success

Miss Irene McNamara, Commentator, described the highlights of fashions modeled through the courtesy of Richard Healy Co. at the meeting of the Monday Club held October 27th at the home of Mrs. Grace Seymour, High street, Sports clothes, tailored and dressy suits, afternoon dresses, dinner gowns, fur trimmings, cloaks, coats, hats, and fur coats were shown by Mrs. Mildred Bonis, Mrs. Charlotte Fowler, Miss Sybil Green, Miss Inez McMurdo, and four models from Worcester. While Miss Cynthia Fisher played piano selections. Popular shades included midnight purple, V-scented blue, cerise, and the new water Orange.

Climaxing the fashion exhibit came the bridal party with the bride dressed in white faille taffeta with short finger tip veil, caught with two plumes for headdress suitable for a Chapel Military wedding. The two attendants wore Dawn blue and shell pink velveteens with Queen Anne lace to trim the collars and cuffs. The Mother of the groom was gowned in a Hattie Carnegie dress of solid blue crepe with neckline of cerise and blue flowers with a cerise velvet turban with chin veil of matching blue. She carried a muff of beaver. The costume of the bride's mother was mist gray crepe, with cerise fox finger tip length jacket.

Hostesses were Mrs. Cora Dunton, Mrs. Inez McMurdo, Mrs. Helen Kingsley, and Mrs. Mildred Bonis.

Will Hunt Mt. Katahdin Area

C. Boyd Allen of Spencer, and Frank E. Sessions of Worcester are planning a week's hunting trip into the hunter's paradise, where Mt. Katahdin rises its lofty head above the surrounding plains. The hunters will make Millinocket, Maine their headquarters. They plan to leave on October 30th and will be equipped to take deer and bird but will have no reserve against taking a bear or moose if they come across one. If they bring back a bear or moose we promise them a picture of their quarry in the home town paper.

George Motors Of Worcester Staging Big Auto Sale

George Motor Company of 50 and 60 Shrewsbury Street, Worcester, who for many years have been Worcester County Distributors for Dodge and Plymouth cars and Dodge trucks, have been using the summer months to recondition many fine cars in preparation for their fall trade. Many of these cars will now have to be put under cover before inclement weather arrives. This necessitates the immediate sale of a large number of trucks. It is this immediate need for storage space that has caused the George Motor Co. to drastically reduce prices on all used cars, both reconditioned and many fine cars which have not needed complete overhaul and which will be sold at bargain prices as is.

The George Motor Company is one of the largest buyers of used cars and trucks in Central Massachusetts and are especially equipped to give you higher quality at lowest prices on used cars. As we anticipate that used cars will be rationed shortly, it is expected that many folks will look ahead and get a better used car during this sale.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEES POLITICAL VIEWS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—"Throw out the incompetent!" "Quit playing politics with the war!" "Use our best brains as well as our best energies." "Win the war quickly." "End uncertainty." "These are some of the reactions of good Americans, encountered by those who have been making a coast-to-coast analysis of the political situation; an analysis that indicates a strong Republican trend, North, South, East and West," said Frank Gannett, Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee today.

"This painstaking survey, just completed," he added, "indicates beyond reasonable doubt that the Republican on November 3rd will gain a minimum of 35 seats in the House of Representatives. The ground-swell that will sweep many a New Dealer out of office certainly will give the Republicans the advantage in close, but doubtful districts. It is entirely possible that the Democratic majority may be wiped out."

"This pronounced trend," Mr. Gannett explained, "is due to unrest, deep concern, even alarm among the people. They feel that up to now Washington has been losing the war; that our war preparations have not been intelligently planned nor efficiently carried out."

Philbin Stresses Training For Congress

Philip J. Philbin, candidate for Congress in the Third District, pointed to his familiarity with legislation affecting war veterans, in several talks in Spencer and other towns in the district this week. This important experience, he feels, is an excellent use in meeting the various post-war problems, with which Congress will have to cope when the war is over.

He spoke of the difficulties that arose after the last war when the government struggled with the problem of rehabilitating the veterans. Various bureaus, created to help the veterans, were working at cross purposes, duplicating and wasting each other's efforts.

Senator David I. Walsh, his close friend and associate, was one of the first to appreciate the necessity of quick action by Congress. In the important work of merging these conflicting bureaus he chose Philip J. Philbin, a veteran of the last war. It was not long before the various bureaus were joined together by law in one coordinated bureau, authorized to take prompt action through the presumptive clauses which Sen. Walsh sponsored, enabling the Republic and mental cases to receive adequate compensation.

Since that time, Philbin has worked with Sen. Walsh on veterans' cases brought to his attention. In the case of young men in the armed forces, he has pledged himself to render every possible protection and assistance to servicemen while they are away and to work for their interest and welfare when they return home.

In all his talks, Philbin stressed the Washington background, as secretary, campaign manager and personal representative for Senator

Over the Garden Wall From some paper a headline started up at me the other day "Don't Waste September." Don't waste September, indeed, also October, November, and December, like January, through to August. The garden can keep on your toes (or knees) very nearly every single one of those months. In December you can plan Christmas presents for gardeners and in January the new catalogues come and then away you go with new plans for next year. Don't worry, we won't waste September.

The Extension Service has an advisory committee whose program is to hold for the next season. Then the town committee get together and decide what their groups would like to do next season. The selected projects are then sent to the head office and the programs planned as well as can be according to the requests. This fall, when the requests are tabulated, the results are surprising. Of all the courses, nutrition, cook making, child care and so on, the one that was most often requested was "Getting Along With Other People." Isn't that encouraging "sign of the times"?

I have some gay and startling news to report to the members of the small groups in winter decorations. Did you read the small poem to October in a recent magazine? It's by Frederick W. Branch.

Each night the tide of fall creeps up the hills, Across the homestead of the whip-poorwill, Till to their tops, their smother in the haze That grays the mornings of these October days, The sunlight strikes into golden flame.

The pine trees sigh and whisper at the shrubs dancing naked in the breeze, Of sumac, staid old oak and maple trees Who, overnight, have gone out of their heads And dressed themselves in all these brass and reds, Trading the long-worn monotonies of June For one brief fling beneath the hunter's moon." Hazel Andrews

Plans are under way for the organic union of the Congregational, Christian Church and the Evangelical and Reformed Church in the United States. Oddly enough, both of these churches are now the result of still earlier union of other denominations. The new church, uniting at least four former denominations, would be called "The United Church of America," all former titles being dropped.

The women of the town under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Wood are doing excellent work at the defense center, but it has become necessary to make an appeal to residents to volunteer for the celebration. Anyone wishing to help even by short shifts are asked to contact Postmaster John A. Gilboy, G. C. Clark, Church street, or E. E. Shaffer, Maple street.

The Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety has appointed Mrs. Charles Wood, chief of the Fire Department, that there will be a survey of all types of oil burners in the Sandera in town, used to store oil with the next two weeks. Firemen will call at the various homes, and the cooperation of the townpeople is requested, as this order for inspection comes from Washington, D. C., and is not a local project.

CASINO—WARE Now that Lynn Bari is playing her second top role within three months in 20th Century-Fox's "Orchestra Wives," she can look back with some dispassion on the days when she was either the victim or heroine in "whodunits."

"It's a real thrill," she remarked on the set of "Orchestra Wives," to pick up a script and find myself going all the way through to the last page, instead of finding that I've been stabbed and carried off on page 83."

But Lynn is the first to admit that these minor roles gave her the valuable acting experience that has enabled her to reach stardom. "Anyway," she adds, "I had a lot of fun doing those thrillers."

Glenn Miller and his Band share stellar honors with George Montgomery and Ann Rutherford in "Orchestra Wives," which is due today at the Casino Theatre. Lynn Bari, Carole Landis and Cesar Romero have important featured roles. William LeBaron produced, and Archie Mayo directed from a screen play by Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware, based on an original story by James Prindle.

Stands On His Record

When Senator Thomas H. Johnston of Clinton, our State Senator for Worcester-Hampden Senatorial District, called at the Leader Office this week, we were again impressed by his old-fashioned, rugged, honesty of purpose.

For 12 years Senator Johnston has served this district, and as a working man, he has, all through this period, been sympathetic to the needs and problems of workers and the proper care of the older people who often times become incapacitated in early life due to modern industrial strain.

As chairman of the committee on Agriculture, he has gained a wide experience in the problems of Massachusetts farmers and dairymen, and during the past 12 years much of the legislation in behalf of the dairy industry of Massachusetts, has been steered through the legislature under his able leadership. He is quite content to stand on his record.

Tri-Town Area Mourns Passing Of George M. Cohan

Had Many Intimate Boyhood And Life Long Friends In Spencer And The Brookfields

George M. Cohan

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—George M. Cohan, famous actor, composer and playwright, died at his 5th Avenue home here, this morning. He was 64 years of age, having been born July 4, 1878 in Providence, R. I. Many of his boyhood years were spent in North Brookfield, when in the late eighties and early nineties the "Four Cohans" gave the staid old village a thrill and injected a little drama into its otherwise conventional calm. From the moment that Jerry, Helen, "Josie" and George alighted from the little two car train which jogged over the rails from the main line in Brookfield to the town on the hill, North Brookfield realized that a talented family had come into their midst. Bell Street became the headquarters for many activities headed by young "George M.". He was captain of a baseball team, and staged his own juvenile plays in the neighborhood barns.

As time went on, the "Four Cohans" used to give a show in the Town Hall before they went on the road for their 40 weeks grind around the country, and in these later years, George took to writing on his own account and produced much of the materials used by his father, mother, sister and himself on the stage. George M. Cohan was the author of some 300 songs, 60 plays, and had acted in some 5000 performances during his life. Following World War I, he received the congressional medal for his services in writing "Over There," the outstanding inspirational song of the day. At 11, he was the star of "Peck's Bad Boy" in which his parents and sister played with him. At one time, he was part owner of 6 theatres. He was an exceptionally fine story teller and it is said that he had 5000 intimate friends who knew and enjoyed his company whenever he met them, in addition to millions of admirers.

Chief among his North Brookfield intimate friends was Mortimer J. Howard, whose early boyhood friendship continued during his entire lifetime. One of the finest friendships that could possibly be built up was created by a group of North Brookfield boys, among them being Dennis F. O'Brien, George M. Cohan's personal counsel, who with Arthur Driscoll and Edward Raftery formed the law firm of O'Brien, Driscoll and Raftery, all native born in North Brookfield.

George M. Cohan never forgot the town of his boyhood days and North Brookfield has many tokens of his interest.

The town which saw all his boyhood days in the formative years of his life received him back almost yearly when he regularly visited and was the house guest of Mortimer J. Howard.

Another fine friendship which ties into many local families was that which existed between Mr.

Cohan and Brainard H. Smith, whose friendship dated back for years in both men's families. All in all George M. Cohan was always a loyal friend, a genius of world fame and a scintillating star in the theatrical firmament of the "gay nineties" and the legitimate stage of the twentieth century.

Brookfield "Son" On Wasp

Vincent Topping, son of Samuel Topping, Fiskdale road was among those rescued when the Wasp went down. He enlisted in the Navy two years ago and has been with the Wasp ever since she was launched in Boston. The young man was serving as second-class storekeeper. His family had no word from him for months and his arrival home was a complete surprise. Not until official news of the sinking of the Aircraft Carrier was published did his own parents know of his experiences. Like other boys in the Service he is true to his training. Vincent is enjoying a 30-day furlough at his home.

Bits O' Beauty

Through desire a man, having separated himself, seeketh and intermeddeth with all wisdom. Prov. 8-1

THE PIONEER

I seek a new horizon
And find much pain and work,
As forward steps enlark
A quest that cannot irk.

So forward with endeavor
And inner sight to guide,
I find new worlds wherever Faith leads my forward stride.

Discovery and Progress

An Aram discovers the tree of knowledge of good and evil... A Noah discovers the rainbow... A Moses discovers the "Ten Commandments"... A John the Baptist discovers the Christ... A Galileo discovers the rotation of the earth... A Newton discovers the law of gravity... A Franklin, electricity and an Edison the incandescent lamp... Little did Edison realize when he discovered the incandescent lamp, that burned without consuming, that the same Moses, who discovered the ten commandments, also discovered in the burning bush an incandescent fire that does not consume... Few of us realize that this burning bush could easily have been a beautiful symbol of the ten commandments who's moral law was and is provocative of that type of love that burns and gives light but never destroys... And that the rainbow of hope which Noah saw, in like manner, was a beautiful symbol of the deified virtues which the moral law radiates... What has this to do with our "Bits O' Beauty" and "Pioneering"?... Much every way... Pioneers are invariably men who love life, light and liberty... Their quests, beyond our normal horizons, have in many cases resulted in devoted lives giving their very all for the common good... Be it a Captain John Smith, Daniel Boone or an Edison, they were all motivated by these men did not cease when their work was finished... Others cooperated to make their discoveries vital living factors in the community life... It is 60 years since Edison discovered his incandescent lamp... The writer's memory goes back 55 years, when as a small boy he visited the first electric light and power exhibit in the Worcester Skating Rink on Foster Street... Miracles were being performed with this new thing called electricity... Miniature electric cars were being operated... 8 and 16 candle power lights made a fairy land of the exhibition hall... Following these early days of discovery far sighted and progressive men pioneered and financed the development of great power plants and distributing systems throughout the land and later throughout the world... Private initiative and public service created a mutual trust and confidence that rewarded the pioneers with much success... The following editorial, written by another, is timely and is a warning lest we disparage private initiative and free mutual cooperation by governmental regimentation.

Electricity's Birthday

On September 4, 1942, the electric light and power industry reached its sixtieth birthday. That marked three generations of achievement and progress that have revolutionized the industrial and social life of the nation.

In 1902, the average consumption of electricity was 60 kilowatt-hours per capita—in 1942, it was 1,417. Around the turn of the century, each one of those kilowatt-hours cost the consumer about 25 cents. Today a kilowatt-hour costs from less than one cent to five cents, depending upon the amount used and the varying operating costs in different parts of the country. Thirty or forty years ago, even fine homes used electric power for only a few incandescent lamps. Today the typical American home uses electricity for a multitude of things, including cooking, cleaning, lighting, water-heating, radios, phonographs, razors and other conveniences and necessities too numerous to mention.

No other major country on earth uses electricity so abundantly. And the main reason is that electrical development in this country has been primarily a function of private enterprise. Private enterprise, not government, pioneered every important electrical development. Private enterprise, not government, spent its money and its energy and its progressive genius to give people on farms and in tiny towns electric service as good and as cheap as that enjoyed by the residents of great cities. Private enterprise, not government, was responsible for the extraordinary engineering achievements of the industry—improvement in generators, in transmission methods, in the electric light, in rural electrification, etc. It is a statistical fact that there are fewer municipal power systems today than there used to be—simply because politically-managed plants could not compete in service or price with business-managed plants.

Despite all the hallyhoo concerning the hydro-electric plants the government has built—plants which were built with tax money, which are largely tax free and which are completely unregulated—the private electric companies serve close to 90 per cent of all the industries and consumers of the nation. As a result, free enterprise in the field of electric power is the basic source of electric power needed in the war effort. And the industry is entering its seventh decade determined to make its achievements of the future exceed those of the past.

Headache For The Merchant

Price fixing may sound simple to the man in the street. But it is a monumental headache to thousands of retail merchants. Never before have the people and the industries of America faced the necessity of donning a regulatory straitjacket such as embodied in the deluge of pamphlets now reaching stockpiles from Maine to California. Everything from guns to tractors is being "fixed" or "frozen." The price of each item on a retailer's shelves must be carefully set according to formula.

The policies and methods used in enforcing these new laws will make or break the entire price fixing effort. Long before the establishment of the price laws, retail merchants bent every effort toward holding down inflationary rises in the cost of living. They did an effective job for which they received praise from high government officials.

And now these same merchants, many hundreds of thousands of them, are striving valiantly to comply with the complicated ceiling decrees issued from Washington. A great many of them have unknowingly become lawbreakers because they have found it impossible to quickly understand the technical rules. Their cases deserve far different consideration than those of the very few who maliciously seek to evade the law. In this instance the old saying that ignorance is no excuse should not be applied. Ignorance, if you wish to call it that, is a very definite excuse.

And if the administering officials are wise they will not begin our new authoritarian era by fining or throwing any erring storekeeper in jail until they have determined his intent. After all, our main job is to win the war, not persecute good American citizens.

Birth of a Bombardier

Would you personally like to bomb Berlin and Tokyo? Frats towns, cities, farms, factories and colleges thousands of American youths are answering "yes" and swarming into the world's largest bombardier college at Midland, Texas, to learn the technique.

Scientifically selected to operate the secret, deadly U. S. bombsight, bombardier cadets are trained in 12 weeks to be the "most dangerous men in the world."

Where they are going is a military secret.

The tyro bombardier becomes familiar with his thrilling job with the bi-motored AT-11 training bomber. He watches mechanics who "keep 'em flying." At the bomb-loading dump, brawny ordnance men carry the kind of bright blue 100-pounders used for practice.

Each cadet drops as many as two hundred bombs during training — the equivalent of forty real raids. A scale model of Tokyo's waterfront industrial section provides a realistic target for bombardment, and really gives the boys something to shoot at.

These pictures tell how cadets from all corners of the U. S. become "lords of the bombsight."

Physical fitness is the prime requisite for cadets. Here they use practice bombs for "bombardier build-ups."

Ready for bigger things, a cadet sits in the shark-nose of a B-18 bomber, awaiting the loading of the bomb bay by ordnance men.

Skimming low over a 30-foot target shack, a cadet at Midland army flying school sends missiles skimming into the ground whence they rocket, rocket-like, into the pyramid-shaped structure.

It's summer time to be thrifty. If you save you save thrifty. War Bonds help you to save and help to save America. Buy your ten percent every pay day.

GARDENING in the SKIES

Of the most important, and perhaps the least thought of, phases of tree care among the property owners in general is a thorough clean up in the fall. The removal of material capable of harboring disease and insects pests through the winter is an important matter.

Sanitization at this time of year is a foremost factor in reducing infectious diseases and damage by insect pests in the valuable trees around the garden and lawn.

The compost pile is an asset to the arborist or gardener, providing it is not a disease breeder. Leaves covered with fungi raked up and left in a pile is bad practice.

Prune out the fire-blight, canker, cut and burn egg clusters of the tent caterpillars, and the aphid galls on the Spruces. While you are looking around, you may see some of those orange-colored, velvety nests of the gypsy moth. Daub them over with a creosote mixture prepared for that purpose. Fallen mummified fruit and those in the trees are full of canker spots and are breeders of black-rot also.

Therefore, it is good advice to be thorough in your Fall clean up campaign, for here you may find all sorts of insects, eggs and larvae, and all turning your landscape effect into a harbor and feeding place for millions of insect pests and fungi spores in the Spring.

2. News in The World Of Religion
Clergymen should perhaps go out in the highways and byways and lead worship for the people in the people instead of always expecting the people to go to the minister and to the church, according to the Archbishop of Canterbury speaking recently to English church leaders. At the present time, this may include services in cantons and in motion picture houses, he said. "I believe there is a widespread feeling that we must now consider how to bridge the gulf between traditional habits of worship and the minds of the people," the Archbishop said. "Our task in public worship is to lead worship for the people in the people."
Christian missionaries have helped build a "reservoir of friendship and goodwill for America throughout the world, Wendell Willkie told the nation by radio last week. "At the top of this list (of things that have created this reservoir) go the hospitals, schools and colleges which Americans—many of the missionaries—have founded in the far corners of the world. Many of the new leaders of old countries—men who are today running Iraq, or Turkey, or China—have studied under American teachers whose only interest has been to spread knowledge. Now, in our time of crisis, we owe a great debt to these men and women who have made friends for us."

Sioux City: If Frenchmen is the plural of Frenchman, why isn't German the plural of German?—P.V.L.
Answer: Frenchman is a compound of French plus man. German is not a compound of Germ plus man. The plurals of German, Burman, Musselman, and Ottoman are formed by adding "s."
Cincinnati: Recently you reported some extremely long words. Here are two long words that I learned as a boy in Germany: Constantindopolitiner, Dudenstiftungsmaschinen-gesellschaftsverbandsbureau-frauelin. The words mean, "The office girl of the association of the medical helpers of the bagpipe makers of Constantinople."—E.L.S.
Answer: H'm.
Gallup: Which is correct, "Dr. Brown operated on Mrs. Smith," or "Dr. Brown operated Mrs. Smith"?—L.B.
Answer: Dr. Brown may operate his automobile, or his X-ray machine, but I doubt if he could "operate" Mrs. Smith. Better say: Dr. Brown operated on Mrs. Smith.

Bits O' Beauty

Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. Psa. 30-5.

WATCHMAN

All through the night on a lonely high hill
 I watched for the dawn with resolute will,
 But the night grew darker as leaden clouds
 Enveloped the he'ns with ominous shrouds.

I knew that the stars were shining above,
 And God in his heaven was God of love,
 But why was the night so dark and so long?
 And why such weeping and so little song?

I looked to the north where the Pole star stood Eternally fixed for mariner's good;
 I looked to the south where the Southern Cross
 Reminds us that Christ made good Adam's loss;

I looked to the west where the planet's flame
 Is kindled anew after day's dark shame;
 I looked to the east for promise of morn
 And cried, "Lord how long 'till the coming of dawn?"

But the night grew darker, the stars were gone,
 And the chill of fear had made me forlorn,
 'Till a few small voice, in depths of my heart,
 Said, "Courage and faith must now do their part."

For faith is a light no blackout can dim,
 It kindles fond hopes in the heart of him,
 Who, warmed by it's love in service to men,
 New courage will find, again and again.

W. B. T.

What Of The Night?

If you do not think it is dark, come down to the office of the draft board some morning when the boys leave their mothers, wives and sweethearts to go out and fight your battles . . . If you do not think it is dark travel through your mind's eye to China, to Russia, to Finland, to Poland, to Belgium, to Norway, to Britain, to Java to Guadalcanal, to Egypt, to Lybia, to the Balkans, to the lands of our enemies who must begin to realize the futility of their struggle . . . Eight million Germans killed, wounded or prisoners . . . As many more Russians . . . Fifty million men in the fighting forces of the world's great armies . . . Every one of these men have a wife, mother or sweetheart back home who watches and prays for their safe home coming . . . Scarcely a home in the whole wide world which does not feel the dark shadow of war's desolation hanging like a pall over its threshold . . . What of the death and destruction in the wake of the scourgings from the sky when a thousand bombers have dropped their high explosives? . . . The night of war is now in its fourth year . . . Watchman, what of the night, and what of the dawn? . . . Where will the light come from? . . . Will science and worldly wisdom solve the problems of peace? . . . Did they after the last war? . . . What new assurance have we that history will not repeat itself? . . . When will peace come? . . . How will peace come? . . . Do we deserve peace? . . . If we do, why does a just God allow these heavy clouds of darkness and despair to hang over a world of his creation? . . . Is it lawful to ask such searching questions? . . . Is it wise to ask such questions? . . . Is it expedient to ask such questions? . . . Or shall we like all blind moles of the earth who for the last six thousand years have shed each other's blood in vain, blindly follow in their footsteps?

What of the night? . . . The night is upon us because "Our iniquities have separated between us and our God, and our sins have hid his face from us." . . . Christendom has allowed Nationalism to replace its Lord and Master . . . Ever since the language of a Godless world was pronounced at the tower of Babel, nationalism has prospered at the expense of peace . . . For two thousand years Christianity has struggled to create internationalism in the hearts of its followers . . . "For in Christ Jesus there is neither Jew nor Greek, bond or free, male or female but all are one in him" . . . Christendom has failed because it lacked sufficient faith to put into practice the doctrine that God, The Father of all mankind, must have our first love . . . Nationalism must take second place . . . If the Christian nations of the world had rallied around this transcending idealism there would have been no conflicts among them . . . German Christians could never make war on British Christians and visa versa . . . Had the Christian nations, as such, espoused this unifying doctrine they would have presented a power against paganism quite different from what we see today . . . On the positive side of their power there would have been international relations between Christian nations far different from those which have obtained since the last war . . . Had the relationship such as obtains between Canada and the United States existed between all so called Christian nations what a different world it would have been . . . Do you think I am severe in my assertions? . . . Then remember World War Number One was a war of "Christendom," so called . . . We owe it to one another and ourselves to be truthful in such times as these . . . The world needs that man and woman who really love God, cry aloud and spare not even though their message be but a voice in the wilderness . . . What of the night? . . . It will grow blacker and blacker, darker and darker . . . More terrible and more terrible until the "Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in his beams" . . . "For behold darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee and His glory shall be seen in thee" . . . When? Where? How? . . . When the "Prince of Peace" shall come . . . Who is the Prince of Peace? . . . None other than Jesus of Nazareth . . . Where will he come to? . . . Let the Angels answer here is what they said as Jesus ascended to heaven, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." He went into heaven as a glorified, immortal man . . . The angels have said that he will return as the same . . . The apostle John wrote, "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. And the nations were angry, and they wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to them that fear thy name, small and great; and thou shouldst destroy them which destroy the earth" . . . That process is now going on before our very eyes . . . What shall you and I do? . . . What can we do? . . . "We can fear God and give glory to him for the hour of his judgment is come" . . . We can do good to all men, we can alleviate suffering and pain by contributing to every worthy cause . . . We can cheerfully look forward to the coming of a new day when the song of the angels at the birth of Jesus will be fulfilled, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace and good will to men."

News and Views OF THE Boys in Service

By FRANK D. WILEY

Phone North Brookfield 509 If You Have Any News

A letter to the reporter from Private Henry Grabert, of the Army Air Corps Training School at Madison, Wisconsin, says that he refers to "good old North Brookfield" often and also to the "Dairyland State" which is Wisconsin. He says the people there in Madison are really something to write home about. They have open house to all service men at all times. The Churches, U. S. O., Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and the Masons are always having parties for us. Private Grabert states that there are 500 W. A. A. C.'s there. One of them is Governor Saltonstall's daughter. He met a Brookfield boy yesterday. Henry tells of the package received from the Community Club at North Brookfield. Eddie Barry is there with him. Private Grabert writes a fine letter and wants to be remembered to all his North Brookfield friends. Address, 620 Technical Training School, 1440 Barracks, Madison, Wisconsin. (A "Union" is on the way, Henry.)

A letter to the reporter from Private Philip C. Woods, 374 Port St. Co., C. T. C., Camp Yosemite, Pittsburg, Cal: Private Norman Heald, another North Brookfield boy can be reached by the same address. Private Woods says "Will you send me another copy of the Brookfields' Union. We like it very much here in California. They use as well out here; plenty of food, and nothing but the best; plenty of sleep; and plenty of drilling also. The weather here is very warm. Forty miles from San Francisco. In five minutes the lights go out so good night; give my regards to the Boys and tell them to write. O. K. Phil, here is your Brookfields' Union."

Another letter just received; this one from Frank E. Kingsbury, A. S. U. S. Naval Training School, A. He says, "It would be wonderful if O. M., Barracks 19, Memphis, Tenn. I could get hold of a 'Brookfields' Union' and I would know what is happening back home in North Brookfield, or I don't think anybody would be pleased and glad if you left to have anything happen." I would write often. Will be waiting to hear from you. (Glad to mail you a "Union," Frankie.)

Note: There are thousands of boys who are just hungry for letters from home folks; the government is doing everything it possibly can to keep the boys physically and morally strong. Let us write more often to them. They will appreciate it.

Tri-Town Weeklies
Gentlemen:
In the last nine months while I have been in the Army I have read a large number of different newspapers, but as yet, I have not been able to find one that could compare with that swell paper from home; "The Brookfields' Union."

Besides my regular mail from home, this paper has been the one thing that I have waited anxiously to receive. It has enabled me to keep track of what is going on around the old home town, and also where the different fellows in the service are stationed and how they like the service.

Since I enlisted, I have joined the best outfit that the Army has to offer. The U. S. Parachute Troops. They are the best dressed, best paid - well they are just the best in all ways.
